- A Chance To Help

It will be hard indeed for us to take part in this morning's Christmas Chapel without a rather wry smile, just as it has been hard for us to frame our minds into the proper Christmas spirit this year, or to gain the sense of peace that we have long associated with the music of Christmas. Without some ceremony, without some chance, we begin to feel itinerant in feeling "home on earth and in joy"; if not possible, we have only to pick up the Christmas spirit in our own way in order to see just what kind of peace there is on earth.

But if the joyous feeling we have long associated with the Yuletide season is missing this year, then, as we have felt this year what is truly meant by another saying dont associated with Christmas: "It is better to give than to receive." We cannot see how any student—living in a country at peace, with as many products as he may wish to buy available, with, in short, everything necessary, for a Merry Christmas—could really enjoy this holiday without doing his part in all these less fortunate.

Students at the University have the opportunity of aiding not only their fellow Philadelphians, but those men and women in other lands to whom Christmas will be merely one more day in a ceaseless struggle for freedom from oppression. Undergraduate Council is sponsoring a drive for children's groups in the city, and the Student Council is once again sponsoring a drive to provide food baskets for the needy in the University area.

We cannot urge too strongly that all students—living in a country at peace—cooperate in this undertaking. We'll know when we've reached our goal if we don't let things slide from us. The University is heard as a whole instead of as the sum of its parts. We will be the larger for it.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I am writing to you to draw your attention to a fact which I feel is rather important.

The fact is that many students at this University are not aware of the fact that the University has a complete book collection, and that it is available to all students.

I believe that this information should be made known to all students, and I would like to suggest some ways in which this could be done.

First, I think that a poster could be placed in the main lobby, with a brief description of the services offered by the library.

Second, I believe that a leaflet could be distributed to all students, explaining the services offered by the library.

Finally, I think that a notice could be placed in the student newsletter, informing students of the library's services.

I hope that you will consider these suggestions, and I look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

PS: I would also like to suggest that the library consider offering workshops on research skills, in order to help students make the most of the resources available to them.

Frosh Five Tops Garnet

Jack Savanezy, a senior starter, scored 24 points—31 of them coming in the half—to pace the Pennsylvania Freshmen against a 74-44 win over the DeSwarmeans jayvee at the Millfield Field Gym.

The 6 ft. 3 Savanezy had beautifully decided to forgo his court play and devote his time to training for the whole season. He has logged practice over a week ago, Coach Holt said.

The Red and Blue employed a fast break with some sharp- shooting to open up a 42-23 advantage by halftime. Savanezy contributed heavily to the Quakers' lead with jump shots from around the keyhole.

Joe Cook, 6 ft. 5 in. center, contributed to the Penn cause with 10 points and a workmanlike effort on the boards. The senior, who recently joined the squad after playing basketball on the school's junior varsity, is expected to open in night with starters.

Another 15 points was reported to be the fantastic man on the floor for the Quakers.
