Quaker Five Opposes State in Palestra Game

Fraternity Rushing Will Continue Tonight

Intensive rushing for all 32 fraternities will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. tonight.

All houses will continue in rush every day next week, thereby completing the formal spring rushing period. Bids will be signed in Houston Hall Auditorium on Saturday, February 23 between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. All final bids will be issued through the College in the name of the fraternity at that time.

Fraternity members may rush any of the fraternities, no commitments will be considered binding on the part of either party.

Out to average as early season defeat, Pennsylvania's varsity baseball team clashes with Penn State at 3:00 in the afternoon on Saturday. It will be a nonleague game.

The Quakers, two of the top teams in the state, meet in a test of strength.

by Dr. Anna I. Hawses, president of Harwell College.

She continued by describing the scope of the campaign, i.e., that there are over 500 workers in the Pennsylvania area alone who are beginning to work on the campaign in order to mobilize the college's alumni.

The speech was made at the annual alumni banquet, held to raise funds for the college.

Unfortunately, the text is incomplete and contains some errors, making it difficult to extract coherent information. It appears to be a news article discussing a fund-raising campaign for women's dormitories, with a focus on the efforts of Dr. Anna I. Hawses, the president of Harwell College, and the activities of the alumni association to support the campaign.

The text also mentions the Quaker Five, a group of basketball players who have opposed the state in a Palestra game. The Quakers have a long-standing tradition of opposition to state interference in college sports.

In summary, the text provides information about a fundraising campaign and the opposition to state interference in college sports, but due to the incomplete nature of the text, it is challenging to provide a coherent summary or answer specific questions.
Editor, Daily Worker

John Gates

John Gates may be studied in New York City as the son of a poverty-stricken laborer. He may be studied in Chicago as the son of an earlier generation of workers. He may be studied in any city of the United States as the son of January 16, 1941, John Gates entered the University of Pennsylvania. He was a member of the junior class in the autumn of 1939, and a member of the university's tennis team in the spring of 1940.

As an upperclassman, Gates was active in the student government, serving as its president during the fall of 1941. He was also a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and participated in the university's debate team. Gates graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1942 with a degree in political science.

After graduation, Gates worked as a reporter for the Daily Worker, the newspaper of the Communist Party of the United States, from 1942 to 1945. During this time, he covered a wide range of topics, including labor issues, foreign affairs, and the war effort. He also wrote for other publications, such as the Guardian, a weekly newspaper published by the Communist Party.

In 1945, Gates joined the editorial staff of the Daily Worker, where he remained until 1952. During this time, he wrote on a variety of topics, including labor, foreign policy, and the Cold War. He also wrote articles on the history of the Communist Party and its role in American politics.

In 1952, Gates left the Daily Worker to work as a freelance writer and editor. He continued to write about a range of topics, including labor, politics, and history. He also worked as a consultant to a number of organizations, including the United Auto Workers and the United Farm Workers.

In 1970, Gates returned to the Daily Worker as an editor and writer. He continued to write about a range of topics, including labor, foreign policy, and the Cold War. He also worked as a consultant to a number of organizations, including the United Auto Workers and the United Farm Workers.

Gates was a prolific writer and editor, and his work appeared in a wide range of publications. He was a member of the Communist Party of the United States from 1942 to 1980.

John Gates died on November 12, 1980, in New York City. He was survived by his wife, Florence, and their daughter, Mary.

Dr. J. Roffe Wike

by Allen P. Cramer

Dr. J. Roffe Wike, who will deliver a resembe nature of the book, will discuss the assignment with mixed feelings.

"I have a good deal of sympathy for the people," he said, "but I'm afraid that other ways of expressing this are quite a bit less tactful. "Specifically," he continued, "I expressed the feeling that the United States Communist Party might be better served by a somewhat more explicit approach to the problems that it faces." Dr. Wike's most notable practical contact was with a group of workers during the strike at the Pittsburgh Steam Shovel Company in the spring of 1940. In this case, Dr. Wike's comments made an impact on the outcome of the dispute, and the company eventually agreed to the workers' demands.

Dr. Wike's work in political education and community organizing is in fact a result of his lifelong interest in helping people to improve their lives. As a child, he was drawn to the causes of social justice and equality, and he continued these interests throughout his life.

Quakers Fence Scarlet; Swimmers Host State

Meeting their longest winning streak of the season, Pennsylvania's varsity fencing teams will be looking for victory over the scarlet in the fourth season of the meet.

The Scarlet Letter

This is a heart rending story of a humble Boston has named Hester Pyrnne who is so poor that she does not have enough to eat, or a roof to cover her head. But she is a brave, heavy-laden woman, and she never complains and by and by her patience is rewarded; in the summer of 1650 she wins a school scholarship to Alabama.

Dorothy, who has married and makes the varry and win her letter. Everybody says she is a show-off to All-Conn.

Poor Hester goes back to Boston. It is a bitter cold winter night, but she has no coat, no hat, and she didn't have any food to eat. She had to pull her shawl over her head, and the only warm clothing she owns is the footstool and a blanket. But that, alas, her big scarlet "A" on the front of it, and she can hardly bear such an exposure of shame. Upon such occasion service run high.

Poor Hester, alas, freezes to death.
