Baseball Team Opens Campaign at Villanova, Bests Hawks in Opener

by Mark Rosenfeld

Pennsylvania's varsity baseball team opens the 1957 campaign tonight against Villanova at West Philadelphia.

The game will be played at 7:00 on the Mainline's diamond.

Possessing all the necessary qualifications for a highly successful season, Coach Jack Machockey's players have worked hard for weeks to round themselves into a winning outfit.

Yesterday, the Quakers played against St. Joseph's at Murry Field. The final score was an encouraging 11-3 victory. This scoring came about in the fifth inning when, after Desert's three-run double, Carroll Meany's sacrifice and St. Joseph's four bases on balls, soprano W.C. Cooper hit a home run and third baseman Walt Rohrbacher finished with a bang that drove in two more.

On the mound for the Hawks at this turn were four Villanova, four in April. The game will be played at 3 p.m. at Bethel Park. The contest will feature the thunderbolt attack of the Hawks, solid hitting, and strong defense. The game will be played at the Olympic Stadium, at 3 p.m. St. Joseph's, also an excellent team, will be the guests.

On April 8, 1957, Father Divine and his followers are to be inaugurated as the leaders of the world, in the presence of a vast audience at the University of Pennsylvania. The leaders will be present at the University of Pennsylvania, where the inauguration will take place.

Father Divine, the leader of the Divine Universal Religion, has been ranked as the most influential person in the world by Time magazine. The inauguration will be the culmination of a long and difficult struggle for Divine, who has spent his life fighting for peace and justice.

Cricket at Penn
by Philip Mackey

It is a matter of course on our campus, as well as on most campuses with a heritage of cricket, that the first step in evidence itself, a rash of outdoor sports is some sort of committee of the prominent members of our family of athletics in the cricket team which is yearly holding ground reviews on campus.

Cricket at Penn is working the fourth birthday of the Penn cricket team in Philadelphia, now into its second year. Since the Penn cricket team was formed in 1912, it has had an enthusiastic following, most of it centred in the vicinity of the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, commonly called the "Penn Cricket Club." The cricket team has been a part of the University of Pennsylvania's athletics department since its inception in 1912. The team has a long history of success, having won numerous championships and producing many talented players over the years.

The University has a rich cricket history. When the Pennsylvania Cricket Club was founded in 1844, it was the first cricket club in the United States. The club played its first match against the American Cricket Club in 1845. The club later became the Philadelphia Cricket Club, which still exists today. The University of Pennsylvania's cricket team has been associated with the club since its inception. The team's first recorded match was against the Ivy Cricket Club in 1853.

In 1858, when the University of Pennsylvania was founded, cricket was already a popular sport on campus. The first recorded cricket match at the University was played against the nearby University of Pennsylvania Cricket Club in 1858. The team has continued to play matches against other universities and clubs over the years.

The University of Pennsylvania's cricket team has had many talented players over the years, including future President James J. H. Terborgh Jr., who was a member of the team in the 1920s. The team has also had many successful seasons, including a national championship in 1929.

Cricket at Penn is a reminder of the rich cricket history of the University of Pennsylvania and the sport's enduring popularity in the Philadelphia area.
Yale Stickmen Favored To Retain Ivy League Lacrosse Championship

By Barry Rishel

Wood from New Haven has hit Yale's powerful lacrosse team as it wore its team to head in the Ivy League. The Elks have the league crown last year, and this year it is expected to be a close race. The Yale team has been practicing hard during the spring and is expected to be strong this year.

North Carolina head coach is confident that his team will be strong this year. He has added several new players to the team, including a number of sophomores.

Johnson Makes Final Parings For Net Squad

With the season opener less than two weeks away, coach Wallace Johnson made his final cuts in the varsity pool yesterday, but there are still questions to be answered.

The Penn crew will be carrying a varsity squad of four freshmen, one junior, and four sophomores. The crew is still solidified, though there are still questions to be answered.

Johnson had been hospitalised by the injury of Dave Briggs on Monday. Briggs had been a key member of the varsity crew.

The first attack on Marjorie, Fred Frits, and Carl Weber has been the steering line.

Defensive Problem

The Quaker offensive problem has been in controlling the ball. This has been the center of concern in the daily drills on the banks of the Schuylkill. The varsity has been working on the ball-control aspect of the game, and the results have been encouraging.

The Princeton varsity will be carrying a strong squad of four freshmen, one junior, and three sophomores. The crew is still solidified, though there are still questions to be answered.

Johnson explained that the team would be working on the ball-control aspect of the game, and the results have been encouraging.

The varsity list is headed by captain Ralph Levy, who played on last year's championship crew, andargue Mangros, who missed the first two years of eligibility, will probably be jumping into the lineup next year.

Second Cut

One cut was made last Friday and the Penn crew plans to announce the second cut on Monday. The team will not cut any man except in the finding of a replacement for the team.
