Dr. Robert Strausz-Hupe, director of the Foreign Policy Research Institute and chairman of the Strauss-Hupe Lecture Series, will discuss "Power Politics in the Nuclear Age," as part of Wharton Tomorrow, at 2:30 p.m. in Alumni Hall of the Wharton School.

Dr. Strausz-Hupe's lecture is the first in a series of events sponsored by the International Affairs Forum, in association with the "World Politics in the Nuclear Age" course.

During 1945-1949 he was an economic officer of the German Embassy and volunteered to aid the war effort. He has been a consultant to the U.S. government and foreign governments.

In 1945, Strausz-Hupe returned to Germany as a member of the Foreign Policy Institute and in 1946, he founded the International Relations Group, which published the "Strausz-Hupe Lectures." He lectured at the Wharton School in 1960.

Strausz-Hupe has written books on American politics and foreign policy, and is a member of the German Society for International Relations.

"American and British Foreign Policy," first published in 1958, was written with J. C. E. Dognon.

The German Society for International Relations, the Academic Society of the Christian Science Monitor, and the American Political Science Association have all named him a member of their faculties.

Dr. Strausz-Hupe, writing on "The United States and the Atomic Bomb: Power and Community," said that the policy of the United States is to "defend the free world and the United States against any attack by the Communist bloc without sacrificing our national interest."

On Lame Ducks

In an eleventh-hour attempt of its present leaders, the Interfraternity Council is again trying to amend its constitution to add the notion that only house presidents be permitted to serve on the Council. We could not have been more pleased when The Daily Pennsylvanian observed that this change was not exactly an improvement. We find it, as an alumni, we should not be considered with the Freshmen members of the University.

Many of us often wonder what will happen to our lives with the Council after our active work is done. We feel that, as alumni, we should not be considered with the Freshmen members of the University. It is a matter of an ending of our college life. Thus, the Freshmen members of the University should be considered with the Freshmen members of the University.

The problem of finding a medium by which Freshmen can express the concerns of their school can be solved by two means. The University should have a Freshmen magazine, or, if the Freshmen magazines are not good enough, they should be considered with the Freshmen members of the University.

Thus, early alumni organizations began to acquire the same voice that Freshmen who graduate in the early days of the University; men who graduated because a single incident is that for the University department of which they were a part.

In 1953 the first formal alumni organization was founded by the College, followed by the Law School alumni organization. In 1951, the Alumni Association was founded by the Class of 1950, as a means of alumni communication. It was intended to communicate with the University department of which they were a part.

The Freshmen Council is the Council which is the only one in the country. It is the Council which is the only one in the country. It has been suggested by some that the Freshmen Council is the only one in the country.

Mr. President, it is evident that the Freshmen Council is the only one in the country. It has been a study for many years, and it is evident that the Freshmen Council is the only one in the country.

The Freshmen Council, in its by-laws, is to "promote the interest and welfare of the University of Pennsylvania, its students, faculty members, and alumni and to develop and maintain the interest of the Freshmen in the University, its students, faculty members, and alumni and to develop and maintain the interest of the Freshmen in the University, its students, faculty members, and alumni and to Penn Nine Defeats Wildcats in Opener

Pennsylvania's varsity basketball team opened the 1957 season by defeating Villanova in a 83-78 slugfest that was played Saturday on the home court.

The Quakers were led in their victory by veteran center Cowen, who belted a thunderbolt from the lane, and two assists. Antulin, who belted a three-point shot from the corner, and was five of six from the free throw line, was one of the few freshmen who contributed a single and a solid performance to the team effort. He scored 16 points and had three assists.

The game ended on a high note with an all-star victory being awarded to the Quaker backcourt, and an all-star team consisting of John Jacobs, Frank K, and Joe Rutberg.
