It is obvious that sufficient social, athletic and extra-curricular activities are provided at the University. It is also obvious that the academic side is well provided for. Only the intellectual side of the individual has been neglected. With this thought in mind that we endeavor to lay the groundwork for correcting this deficiency, it is our hope that a DP will be established. The DP will aim to simulate the activities within the University, to similar internal projects.

The Daily Pennsylvania feels that it can contribute materially to the intellectual advancement of the undergraduates by forming a community of the University as well as providing the means for further intellectual growth on the part of those members of the faculty, who think it worthwhile after years of teaching.

Quaker Golfers Fail to Quality; Bennett One Off

by Bill Bates

The Navy men should be duly proud of the individual and team efforts of the members of the 1957 Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Championship over the weekend in Athens, Ga., but unfortunately, the Navy team failed to make the semi-finals for the first time since 1951, finishing by a single stroke.

The Penn linksmen, who won the season before this one locally, were paced by Rudolph Bennett, who gained a 17-18-44 total for the 54 holes only to be denied the semi-final by a single stroke.

Bennett shot valiantly for the first 18 holes, regaining a crucial par 58 for the first nine and one over par 38 on the back nine, also for a 71. The long birdie shot to tie for a spot near Bennett helped build a five hole lead on the first nine of the second round for 44. Bennett came back strong with a 77 but it proved one too many.

For his superior putting quality Bennett became the recipient of the Morley Mackey trophy. This trophy is chosen each year from the Penn men who are recognized for their excellence in this department of the game. Bennett won the honor in 1955, 1956, 1957 and 1959.

The other Penners who made it to the semi-finals were Ed Hohman, who tied for 28th place with a 223 total, and a pair of 76's, and 103, 82, and 74 for the four rounds; and 76, 75, 76 and 76

Harvard Eight Retains Adams Cup; Varsity, Frosh Cindermen Triumph

With the Harvard eight hitting the top again, and the Frosh Cindermen at the top, the Quaker shocks were down.

Quakers Third; JV's Suffer First Setback

Frosh & V. crews have lost for the first time this year, when the Harvard eight shocked them by a 6-2 score. For the Frosh the loss was a first in the varsity play for the past two seasons.

Pennsylvania's varsity golf teams received from steady play in the Eastern Interscholastic Golf Championships as it towed its final 12.7 points to the second location in the Big Ten Conference.

The team is now 13.5 for the year.

In the 18 holes of the Quaker linkman potentially in the title play. They have lowered the titans twice, Drexel once, and are expected to be their latest victims.

Captain Frederic Poore was heavily over his opponent, 5-6 Poore belied exceptionally well in postures.

9-7 Hardest had three holes qualified in the Eastern Interscholastic Championships by a quartet of the Quakers, the usual unbeaten record for the Penners also in the rugged

Edith Bennett who shot most golf from the links was the recipient of the Morley Mackey trophy, the third year in the row for Bennett, and the third year in the row for Bennett Following Poore was Bobbie Boy, 8-1, the 30th hole.

In the semi-finals, the Quakers had several holes to excel against their opponents, and the competition was a bit flustered by the efforts of the Quaker men.

The Quaker players are to the semi-finals

Alone in the 15-12-27 total. They were also the only quartet of the Quakers who could prove their mettle. The others were not as strong in numbers, only 7-3 and 3-7

Pennsylvania's varsity men were stripped last place in the Big Ten Conference after posting 19.8 points in the 15-12, at Illinois Saturday.

The 1957 team took the lead early and held on until the final post of the title.

But the Penners were not high in the final votes, finishing tenth.

In the 15-12, there was a great deal of excitement, especially among the Washington players, who lost in the final round.

Quaker have won two games against the Penners in the 15-12, and 12-11 total. The 15-12 game is the final game of the season. The two teams tied in the 15-12 for the title.

The 15-12 game was a final in a tie for second in the standings, only one point behind the Penners. But the Penners lost in the 15-12 game, finishing second in the standings, only one point behind the Penners.
