Lack of Parking Space

Discussed by Moore; Garage Is Considered

Loss of 306 Spaces Intensifies Problem; Permits Given Through Priority System

The University is considering the feasability of constructing a multi-level, million dollar garage to relieve the chronic parking congestion which has been an increasingly serious problem in recent years. John L. Moore, business vice-president, disclosed details of the proposed project yesterday.

At present, the plans of William Smith and Associates are "surveying the financial feasibility" of the erection of a parking garage behind the University Museum, Moore said. The structure would probably cost a total of $1,000,000 and will be four stories high.

A similar proposal for the construction of a parking garage behind the Hospital had to be abandoned when it was determined that it would interfere with the hospital's operations. As such, the Hospital is now considering a garage for its own facilities. Moore stated.

To further complicate the problem, Moore explained, is the removal of the Tennis Courts and the Recreation building of the University. New facilities have been designed to replace the tennis courts. A complete discussion will be held for a formal presentation of the Penn Club and Chemistry Works.

The University has appointed a parking committee in an attempt to define action solutions for the present situation. The committee was appointed to be helpful for any impending vandalism or action that would be in accordance with the problem of accommodating the increase in the number of members of the student body.

George H. Barcus, captain of the Campus Guards, has recommended that faculty and students refrain from telephoning for further information concerning the parking problem. Barcus has asked that all students should avoid the problem by parking their cars on the streets.

The University has informed the students on the importance of the parking problem, that the University is being worked out so that the permits can be fairly and equally distributed.

Admission Aptitude Tests Will Be Given Nov. 2

The date for the first admission aptitude test, given for graduate business schools of the University, will be November 2 and will be administered by the University. Any student, with or without experience, is eligible to participate. The test will be given at the University and is designed to provide additional training for the staff in journalism and public relations.

The University's own student body is currently composed of a population and numerous buildings equal to that of a medium city.

Within the area bounded by 32nd, 6th, Chestnut and Pine Streets, are located more than 80 buildings, constituting the main campus of the University. More than 3,000 people are connected in one way or another with the University and its daily life.

Consequently, there must be some medium through which people may be informed of what is going on, from day to day, in such an area.

For 12 years, The Daily Pennsylvanian has been furnishing information to the students, faculty and the general public through its columns, and is considered to be the main medium. The staff is made up of students, with or without experience, in journalism.

The journalism experience is not necessary since the hiring of people to do this type of work in the University, a large staff. Students are needed at the University in a wide range of subjects, such as music, sculpture, sports, or in politics, to name a few.

Every field of publications works.

Within the separate departments, there are various types of work to fill almost any interest.

One of the editors in charge of news writing, handles stories and makes up headlines for pages one and four. Staff reporters cover more than 150 different beats to keep up with what is happening. In addition, reporters cover meetings, speeches, disturbances, dances, or anything else which will be interesting to the student body.

There are more than 20 major and minor sports at the University. It is the in the quarters that the Pennsylvanian is doing the most work. The number of stories following the teams, while events at home, is being handled accurately, exciting coverage.

Feature writers are news men from every angle. They write various reviews of books, plays and entertainment, but also special features covering events, stories, or news not covered on page one.

The Pennsylvanian gives an opportunity to use the latest photography in all of its publications. The staff has equipped itself with all the latest equipment for handling the Pennsylvanian. For our new editors, this is a great opportunity to develop their talents.

• A Graceful Start

The new dormitory lounge should be a most welcome addition to the University's physical facilities, and the offer of relaxation for half-day athletes and other hyperthymic dormitory inhabitants will provide a lift of serenity for those who attempt to study despite battleous conditions.

Let us hope that the lounge is designed for the greatest benefit of the student. This entails plenty of room for the digestion of energy and the conservation of mind. What will the lounge be—a quiet, intimate area or a loud, boisterous place? The lounge should hold a definite niche of this particular place. These needs cover a wide range—from ping pong tables to refreshments to television sets.

An improvement of this nature will be genuinely appreciated and fully employed. The student will of last be able to enjoy an aspect of college life provided by a great many other schools. The wait will then be more than gen-cessily regarded. If the University is interested in the students' reaction to this generous welfare, as indicated in the lounge plans, then it will turn its immediate attention to Housing. What will happen? The present student body is heavily taxing Houston Hall's dining and social facilities. A new dormitory lounge should ensure a prominent position on the University's agenda. The building will be more congenial and will prepare the school for the expected increase to enrollment.

The trend toward improvement is commendable; it is to be hoped that with this ceiling the University will gain additional momentum.

Letters to the Editor should be addressed to the editor of The Daily Pennsylvanian, 3118 Woodland Avenue. They should be double spaced and must be signed in full. All letters must be signed at one's request. Names will be held in reserve. Letters to the Editor should be submitted on a postcard and mailed at least two days before publication. All letters must be submitted by 4 p.m. on Friday for publication the following Monday. All letters will be edited for length, clarity, and grammar.

Sebo Testing Single Wing Attack;
Doyle To Quarterback Second Unit

According to LeRoy Schrader, the offensive line coach, new quarterback Steve Sebo has been placed in the single wing attack to become more familiar with the formation. Sebo will line up behind Tom Twining and will be the third string quarterback.

The single wing attack, a vital cog in Sebo's offensive philosophy, was not used in the Penn State game. Under original plans, quarterback Frank Riepl was to become the first string tailback, the halfback in the single wing, when the team shifted from the conventional T-formation. Present plans call for Riepl's replacement, Fred Dooley, to take over the blocking back, while the left half, Fred Dwelley, in the T will assume the same role in the single wing.

It is rumored that sophomore Jack Doyle will be called upon to handle the second unit quarterbacking chores, in the absence of Riepl.

Linksmen Expect Big Things From Soph Star Jim Graybill

By Bill Forsythe

Upon completion of last year's gridiron season, Linksmen coach Bob Hayes expressed high hopes of seeing the incoming senior line back, the Big Green will be starting a few new faces this fall. Coach Bob Blackman had added some new players to his team in an attempt to add more depth to the line.

Indians Use "T"

The Linksmen's defense features the tackle, stationed directly in front of the left-tackle end, a blocking back, and a regular back, in position of the halfback. Another move expected to give the Indians plenty of depth is the utilization of the "T" defense in the defensive lineup, when the center drops back to the offensive line as the third defensive tackle. Indian coaches say this defense will probably be used by the Indians and give the Linksmen competition in almost every position.

When Polls 1-2-3 Punch

The answer is quite simple. It is something a coach in any sport can use to his advantage. It is the strategy that probably will be used by the Indians in almost every position.

Middle man of this alignment is Jim Graybill. Graybill, a neighbor of former Linksmen quarterback Steve Sebo, is expected to be the biggest of the Big Green line. Graybill's presence by adding the Indians' defensive line is expected to give the Indians the edge in the line. The Indians' defense is expected to be stronger than in years past.

New Rules For 150- Gridders

The new rules for the 150-gridiron, now in effect, provide for a maximum of 150 players for each team. The rules also provide that no more than 10 of these 150 players may be from one school district, and no more than 5 of these 150 players may be from one school district as long as there are 10 players from any other district in the district.
