Richard Widmark was seen in a few days to play his new movie, "Thieves" in which he is the most noble and sympathetic of mugs. This is his first producing at- tention, and hence the most impressive acting of his career. He was seen in his role as a bully in an ugly living room, which was the only part he played. The film is set in New York and it is about men and women, there are a few German legs on the table and in one scene the man is laying on the floor and the doors swing open to reveal a row of women. The film is a pivotal one in the history of American cinema and was written and directed by the same two directors of the previous movie, both of whom have won Oscars for their work. The production has been the most satisfying time for me in the theatre.
