Wharton Studies Five-Year Course: Communications Deficiency Is Cited

Faculty Committee Proposal Suggests Giving Simultaneous BA, MBA Degrees

A radically changed program for the Wharton School, involving a five-year course of study leading to simultaneous B.A. and M.B.A. degrees upon graduation, and with heavy emphasis on liberal arts courses, has been proposed by a faculty committee of the Wharton School.

Both the five-year course and a four-year course, which would lead to a B.A. degree only, would have, as a base of study, a 21/2-year "Wharton-Liberal" core, followed by three and one-half years of either business courses and 72% business courses. Upon completion of the 21/2-year program, the student will either (a) be admitted to the five-year program or (b) enter one of the undergraduate major programs in business.

Pre-Registration Begins in Undergrad Schools

Students in Wharton, the College, the engineering schools, the School of Arts and the School of Education must pre-register this week for the following terms of 1947.

The Colleges and universities, often will receive class schedules also from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Students should meet with their registrars to arrange to schedule.

Students in the Wharton School will receive registration instructions, course cards, catalogs, student information blanks, activities and calendars of classes from the office of the Vice-Dean, who will have completed four terms in February should request a Major Registration Card. Students who expect to enter the College or who wish to enter should request a Diploma Card. Students who expect to repeat, should request a Transfer Card. Students who expect to move from their activities class must register with their activities class and apply for home improve classes and special instruction.

Business-Business Courses Included

In discussing the proposed Four-Year University Program, a group of professors of Wharton, University of Pennsylvania, are proposing the creation of the Four-Year Program, which is designated primarily for graduates from other college and university programs in the business field, and as a two-year course for graduates from non-business schools, and would be offered by a college of business administration within the Wharton Graduate School.

Five-Year Program Discussed

In further discussing the five-year program, the committee notes that the program's integrated character, "it has over the past year a more comprehensive program and includes the major goals that is normally achieved in separate courses and graduate programs."

The committee concludes that the student's total academic effort has been more than double the effort of students of the same level of education.

The committee also noted that the student's total academic effort has been more than double the effort of students of the same level of education.
