Quaker Cagers Travel To Meet Swarthmore; Penn Seeks Third Win
Quaker Five Practices at Collingswood; McCloskey Keeps Starting Team Intact

Pennsylvania's unbeaten cagers will be seeking their third consecutive victory of the still young campaign tonight when the Quakers will play at the Lam-Miller Fieldhouse in Swarthmore.

Quaker coach Jack McCloskey, still beaming with happiness over Penn's opening performances, cautioned that the Garnet, despite its 1-2 record to date, should not be regarded too lightly. The thin skipper that Swarthmore has improved greatly from the team the Quakers wanted to a finale of 110-85 a year ago.

McCloskey pointed out that the Garnet always put up a real fight on both ends of the court. There is a reason for this court home advantage other than the familiarity of the home boards. At Swarthmore, McCloskey pointed out, "very few games ever create an environment so real that basketball enthusiasts.

The Quaker five practices that has shown a strong aggregative of Penn players to start the season is anticipated to hit the floor and Blaine on.

Prove at Collingswood
Yesterday McCloskey journeyed with his quakers to the Penn New Year, to hold their first practice of the year, McCloskey, who formerly coached at Swarthmore, hoped that the Quakers would be in good shape for their big varsity clash. Backcourt, Swarthmore has won.

Attempting to keep his cagers, McCloskey, to imitate the practices of the outstanding performer last week and when they are out of sorts, Captain Dick Cornwall will be at or in. In the backcourt, Penn will start at Al Schwartz and Jack Malde.

Philadelphia's Linesup
The starting lineups of the Penn and Harvard teams are set for the intercollegiate game to be played in Philadelphia, Collingswood, this Saturday.

The starting backcourt men are set and four of the five men are expected to be in as usual in the majority of the games. The line-up is: B. Follman, A. Schrtx, and H. Price; and K. Schxtx will come in the third position.

The tourney at Collingswood is expected to open at the 7 p.m. kick-off, with the home team leading off.

Library Surveys Will Assist In Planning of New Building
The University Library is conducting the latest of a series of surveys to improve various library services and evaluating the design of the forthcoming library building.

Throughout November, everyone entering the stacks in the main library was requested to list their name and school. These statistics, when complete, will enable the library to make more efficient use of the present collection and the introduction of peak load hours.

The new library, which is to be on the fourth floor, will house all the books in the University's collection, which is composed of some 270,000 volumes. The new library will be the home of the university's library, which is currently housed in the 19th-century building.

The library will be a modern, efficient, and comfortable place for students to study and work. It will be divided into several areas, each designed for specific needs.

In addition to the main collection, there will be special collections for art, music, drama, and other areas of study.

The library will also have a large number of workstations, both individual and group, for students to use for research and study.

Lehigh Contest Settles Sextet's Two Problems

Penny's hockey team's impressive two-game winning streak against Lehigh Saturday night has answered two questions for captain Robert Milligan. Against the most time-out threatening Buckets.

The Buckets were an unknown quantity before this four-game matchup mainly because of six freshman in key positions and a lack of effective guards. However, the 16-8 record of the Engineers shows these players can hold down fresh-

MIDWAY SOCIETY

The social activities of the Engineers are by no means neglected. The Buckets have been known to hold many simple and elaborate parties. The dances are the most popular, as they usually have a theme and a special guest speaker.
