What's it like to be with IBM?

"I became interested in computers and translators at college," Robert Pike recalls. "In fact, my senior project was building a small computer. So, when I graduated from the University of Maine in June, 1955, naturally turned to the computer field. IBM recognized me as a leader in this expanding electronic area, located a good place for me."

Bob Pike began his IBM career as a Technical Engineer, starting with a training program that lasted several months. Then, asked to select the work area of his choice, he became a Senior-Contrac Developer and Research Group in Research. "My first assignment," he says, "was to plot various electrical and physical device parameters for a large number of transistors in the form of graphical histograms in order to obtain correlation coefficients of the device characteristics."
