Shepherd is Featured at Highball Installation

Discusses Conformity

New York Daily News, April 17, 1938

Shepherd is featured at the annual Highball installation banquet last night at a downtown hotel. The installation banquet was sponsored by the campus humor magazine, Highball, which is now in its sixty-second year. The event includes a formal dinner and speeches by faculty and administration, followed by a variety show. In recent years, the banquet has become a significant event for showcasing student talent and humor. The Highball安装仪式于昨晚在市内举行，由校园幽默杂志Highball赞助。这项活动包括正式晚宴和院长、教师的演讲，以及随后的滑稽表演。最近几年，该宴会已经成为一个展示学生才能和幽默的显著场合。

Phi Beta Will Present Lectures

On Literature in Civilization

Phi Beta Kappa, the honor society, will present lectures on literature in civilization. The lectures will cover topics such as the role of literature in shaping historical events, the influence of literature on societal values, and the impact of literature on cultural development. R. Tait McKenzie

Divers Geniuses

d by Derek Davis

The statue of The Young Franklin in front of Westmount Hall has long been one of the campus landmarks. Penn campus lore as well as a widely known work of art. Studying in the presence of this ideal male likeness has impressed many with the point that R. Tait McKenzie, the sculptor of the statue and a former member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, was an artist whose work was admired by many. But one thing that most people do not know is that he was a scion of the MacKenzie family, one of the greatest of Scottish clans. In fact, he was the first member of the MacKenzie family to graduate from the University of Pennsylvania.

The statue was commissioned by Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, who were done by all members of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were both graduates of the University, and their daughter, Miss Smith, is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society.

The statue is located in the front yard of Westmount Hall, and is visible from the main entrance of the building. It is a large, life-sized statue of a young man, with curly hair and a beard. The figure is shown in a dynamic pose, with one arm extended and the other bent at the elbow. The statue is made of marble, and is painted in a realistic manner. The statue is a testament to the artistry of R. Tait McKenzie, and is a point of pride for the University of Pennsylvania.

In addition to his work as a sculptor, R. Tait McKenzie was also known for his writing. He wrote several books, including "The Latest Generation," which was published in 1885. The book was a popular success, and is still considered a classic today. McKenzie's work has been praised for its humor and its ability to capture the spirit of the times.

In conclusion, the statue of The Young Franklin is a testament to the artistry of R. Tait McKenzie. It is a symbol of the University of Pennsylvania's rich history, and of the contributions of its alumni. It is a point of pride for the university, and a reminder of the importance of the arts in our lives.
Cindermen Hope To Escape Injury Hex for Spring Card

Relay Carnival Again Features Champ Series
The 64th annual Penn Relay Carnival, to be held April 25 and 26 in Franklin Field, will once again feature the annual championships of America series.

As "Mr. Injury" goes, so goes the Quaker track team.

With a disappointing, injury-ridden indoor campaign behind them, Penn's cindermen hope to redeem themselves outdoors but they've got to beat the almighty bugaboo.

Quaker track "Blue" Mascots feel that his trackmen can score a lot of points this spring, but that the clean meets stay healthy. The highly-rated Bill and Blue suffered their first physical setback after another during the recent winter campaign, but now, with the outdoor schedule ready only nine weeks away, the cindermen's hopes are clearly returning.

Half-Mile Star
Junior middle-distance star George Kattermann, who missed entire indoor season because of monomelicus, began working out earlier this week. Kattermann broke his arm last fall and is the only man on the Quaker's distance team who has not been injured during the two months since the indoor season began.

Juncow York, a senior, and one of the Quaker's who is returning, will make his first college appearance this year in the Penn Relay Carnival.

High jump and hurdles are Andy Doherty, who feels he is finding more quality under the guidance of Dr. W. Fontaine. Doherty has also worked with some out- standing Quaker trackmen in Juncow York, a senior, and one of the Quaker's who is returning, will make his first college appearance this year in the Penn Relay Carnival.

For the first time, the Pokey, Delaware, will be swimmers on the Quaker's distance team the next two weeks.

KEN ROBERTS

Cinder through the two days as has been done in the past, the races will be more attractive.

Included in this two-day-a-half relay program will be a four-mile dash-pulling world record attempt by Bobbly Munn and Dan Green, as first reported in The Daily Pennsylvanian.

Interest is also being sparked by the semiannual Champion- ship of America, which is the climax of the college relay season. Villanova will be seeking its third consecutive championship in that event.

In addition to the one-mile relay, Relay Championship of America events will include competition in the half-mile, 100-yard relay and two-mile relay. Other championship series events will include sprint, hurdles, and four-man relay. These events will be held in Franklin Field on April 26.

The Track Carnival has become a university-wide phenomenon through the years. Over 5,000 students from America's colleges and universities are expected to attend during the two afternoons of constant competition.

Matthews Working On New Lacrosse Defense

Although favorites in their first warm-up clash by the New Jersey University College at Union, "Shine" Matthews and his lacrosse team were for the first time in 30 years, the 7-5 score, according to Matthews, was not a true indication of how the Quakers were playing. They are "working out their first real bites," Matthews said, "and the score is very disappointing.

The 7-5 score, according to Matthews, was not a true indication of how the Quakers were playing. They are "working out their first real bites," Matthews said, "and the score is very disappointing.

Matthews has worked on a week defense for this season and was happy with the way the week's play went. Last year he pio rated this much closer to work on an adequate defense, and if this continues, the Quakers will be the 2-0 mark this year.

The team has two more games before they open their regular sea
