Stapleford Urges DP To Consider Franklin's List of Essential Virtues

A former editor of The Daily Pennsylvania, Stapleford, in an editorial addressed to the newspaper's readership and its future contributors, cites the importance of considering Benjamin Franklin's list of virtues. Stapleford emphasizes the enduring relevance of Franklin's list and urges the daily paper's readers to reflect on its contents, which may include virtues such as frugality, honesty, industry, and temperance. The editorial concludes with the call to action for readers to consider these virtues in their daily lives and in their contributions to the paper.

Fosmire Elected Editor-in-Chief of DP

Robert D. Fosmire was elected Editor-in-Chief of The Daily Pennsylvania, assuming the role at a time when the newspaper was undergoing a period of transition and growth. The selection of Fosmire reflects the university's commitment to selecting a leader who is forward-thinking and dedicated to the paper's mission.

It’s time again for the outgoing senior board to look back on the past year, sum up the events that have passed into University history, and offer a few words of advice to the incoming editors. Sufficient to say that we have enjoyed every minute of our tenure in office, the triumphs, the failures, the mistakes, the achievements, all went to form an experience that will last us all our lives.

It seems like much more than a year since we first tried our hand at running the paper; we remember how confident we were but how really strange it all was to us. We hope we have prepared the new editors for some of the things that they will have to face, but most likely they will steer their own course and most likely they will be successful in most of the things they do.

We remember easily the exciting five weeks last April, when we were new at our jobs and then we remember the calmness that comes with experience when we resumed after summer vacation. In the life of a newspaper there are many high points to which we may only review a few. The Hungarian supplement commemorating the first anniversary of the Hungarian uprising started as a small idea and built up to a final product which drew nationwide comment.

Our next great adventure was into the University athletic picture. Time only will tell whether or not that was a successful or unsuccessful crusade. When the football team won its first game of the season we rushed an extra on to the stands which astonished everyone who saw it. Our Founder’s Day issue in January was praised as the best ever done.

To the new editors we offer this advice. Trust your judgment in all decisions but remember that The Daily Pennsylvanian is but a part of a great University and should work for the betterment of the University, avoiding anything that would be detrimental. Remember also that The Daily Pennsylvanian is “In and For the Students, Undergraduate and University, of Pennsylvania” and guide your policies by this famous motto.

To you, the new editors, we offer our sincerest congratulations and our heartfelt good wishes for a successful year. We have every confidence that you will make it so.

Letters to the Editor should be addressed to the editor of The Daily Pennsylvanian, 3435 Woodland Avenue. They should be double spaced at 34 characters to the line and must be signed. Name will be withheld upon request.

Varsity Boat Wins
By Four Lengths

The Eastern River in New Brunswick, N.J., was the scene of what promises to be an excitement campaign by both Penn, junior varsity and Youkers lightweight crews.

As in cold and windy Saturday conditions, the Quaker victories solidified the reputation they ex-blished a week before and were able to win their respective races owing to strong boating.

The varsity race, which the Blue quickly took over, an.d Penn entered their men only for the first quarter-mile of the race.

McMillan Drops Boot
At this point, stroke Mike Mc-Millan dropped the boot steadily in the 200 mark, and the Quakers had a swift lead in the three-quarter mile. The Blue, however, was at the midpoint and was unable to match the pace straight with a four.

A boot later, the Blue put up the most of the miles and were able not much match this fast of a boat. The Quakers felled the Blue clearly from 32 to 44 miles, and the Blue at that point was not a threat.

The final margin of victory was not begun with the winning line because of the speed of the Blue.

Consolidating that the crews were able to take the 200 miles and pull the current in water that water resistance on the boaters, we did not have a fast one.

The Blue Hogue
The only definite in the performance of the Blue was the rough yard at the half-mile in the early race. The Blue had just finished ing two miles and were steady with intermediate Rutgers.

The junior varsity race was a victory for the Quakers and was the most of the miles, and the Blue team were steady with intermediate Rutgers.

The Blue lasted a little while with the Quakers in the early race but eventually their power became evident and the Blue was followed steadily with intermediate Rutgers.
