Modern Music

Festival

Knowing very little about music and absolutely nothing about contemporary composers, we were astonished when told to interview Miles Davis and write an article on the "Modern Music Festival" at Irvine last Fri-day. For more than half an hour, we were treated to the visual and aural wonders that are our ears, our vision, our whole being, and we were left with a sense of what music is and what it can be if it is composed of a series of such compositions and if it can be made up of such compositions as the world has ever seen. The unique and the different are not only possible, but becoming more and more acceptable with the audience.

The concert was repeated last November, by popular demand, and with those behind it we could do "Music for Brass" that had been in the air for a year ago. We were moved by it but could not get it and heard nothing more about it, but this last November we were able to hear the album from a fellow on campus. Then my friend gave me an album, and I was not moved by it. But I called a friend of a friend of mine, and he called his friend, and his friend called his friend, and we arranged in New York for January.

Shallower gave him the score by his trans-criber, Miss. E. T. Johnson, "Punger's Tune," and our friend Windt played for parts of it that he had been performing there. We got hold of the remainder of the symphony's collection through Miss. E. T. Johnson, who loaned the score to Miss. E. T. Johnson. From both of these received parts of J. Johnson's work, but there was still wanted the score in January "Three Little Feelings.

Unfortunately, it was English writing in the background music for a motion picture. It was created by S. H. Santos as a part of the work of Columbia held here. By the first of the year the Columbia composers and part of Johnson's collection arrived from Boston, and Shallower was satisfied.

To play the program he formed the Con-temporary Branch of the Faculty and got a better one, which was a better one, and was better one. Shallower knew it was a better one, and was better one. Georgelo, who has been for years, and has already given a better one, has given a better one, and was better one. Shallower knew it was a better one, and was better one.

The program was a first, and she's now writing the text of a new program. That is why the Columbia album is a first and will be, in the near future, one of the most important ones in the last twenty years or so that matter. It is the best album of the year.

"Frances" was the first of this type of program. But we are going one step further by getting good and exciting pieces of music together while retaining the freshness of the two albums. It is hoped that it will be an annual occurrence. All of those who are interested in music and contemporary composition are encouraged to attend the series, which will be held at the times of the service of the Institute of the Arts and Sciences.

The Muted

Miles Davis is a short, lanky, extremely serious man who plays the trumpet extremely well about as well as anyone living today. He is a sensitive and intelligent man who has earned the admiration of his colleagues in an astonishingly short period of time.

We spent an interview with Davis at a place of his choosing at the Red Hill Inn where his regret is everywhere expressed and where the world's music is heard. There is a rhythm of sound that can be heard in Davis's playing, which is a rhythm of music.

"The funny thing about those trumpets, it's two things, a radical sound and something, it's to build up my sound.""Just when you think he's getting off, he isn't."

when that great ship went down and the last thing to leave the sinking ship was a bottle of Coca-Cola. That's because all hands stuck to Coke to the end. Now there's popularity! That's the kind of loyalty the sparkling lift, the good taste of Coke explains. Man the lifelines, have a Coke!

PSD Downs
Zobe To Cop
1-F Softball

Phi Sigma Delta staged a late last night, thus preserving the title of Division Champions in the annual fraternity softball championship, proudly winning at Penn State Field. Trailing 3-2 going into the sixth inning, PSD broke free for three runs on the strength of Pete Etheredge'scenter field homer. The score then boosted Phi Big's hurler, John Smith, for a solid and a single in the seventh, and here Smith held firm to retire the side.

Smith suffered a rough opening inning, being nailed for three runs, including a two-run homer by Dave Calkins. However, here Smith settled down and did not give up another hit until Etheredge's blast in the sixth.

The victory went to the offensive department, Mike Yager, Joel Ritter and "Ted" Winter, all of whose collective two hit singles. Ritter had a perfect day, garnering two hits, in addition to two solid singles to left in four trips to the plate. Rutter led all BCP and scored three runs.

Mike Brennan was the losing pitcher for Beta Beta Tau.

It is not likely that Penn's track coach "Doc" Mariner likes better than beating Princeton. He'll get his chance Saturday when the Quakers venture for Area 6 title on the Tigers and Navy in a triangular meet.

Mariner, who avowed good news of the sort because won the season was to both Princeton in the Polar Bears, was discouraged this winter when, the Tigers rolled up a 5-2-1 outright to assure a third straight crown.

On the next Saturday a contingent of Pennmen will travel cross-town to Villanova to compete in the annual IC4A's championships. Carl Shime and John Gray, who both are the top Penn hopes for this event, will be flanked the arch rival Joe Mason of Manhattan in the Penn Relay's wide lane, who will be waiting for the last time this year, will be battling Marguerite's Ed Hyde for the lash back.

Quakers Challenged

Shine and Glory will also be counted upon to add points to the Penn total in its quest for the triangular title. The Quakers annual domination of coal events will be challenged in the javelin by the veteran Middle day of Wayne Horton and Don Ewalt and in the hurries, which will be shared.

Coach Bob Cobleth will have his full marks on the boards where he called upon to rest Tiger captain Rob Brown in the hurdles.

Cindermen Face Navy, Princeton; Shine, Gray Compete In IC4A's

Another interesting contest should be between Andy Wehge of the Quakers and Princeton's Stuart Wise in the high jump.

Gene Shahan will run the mile and two-mile for the Tigers, giving them their best threat for a double victory. Penn's sprinting contingent also shows promise.

DP Nine Faces All-Stars

A highly rated Daily Pennsylvanian softball team opposed the nine men representing the Weightman Hall All-Stars this afternoon on the Princeton Field.

Jack McCleary, varsity basketball and baseball whiz, is slated to pitch for the Weightman Hall side. He hopes to get some support from Joe Paul and Jimmy Jarvis, DP's captain, Robert Johnson, has not yet announced his starters. However, it is expected that Bob Fishak on first base will grab for the favored DP pattern.

It is hoped that the nine men can start a formidable team in order to stop this Tournament from running away with the game.
