Campus Chest Drive Held Today Thru Sat.

Carnival On Friday To Highlight Week's Events; Fraternity Solicitations Begun, Dorms Start Today

The annual Campus Chest Drive opens today and will continue through Saturday, with the Campus Chest Carnival climaxed by fraternity events on Friday evening in the Memorial Stadium.

Solicitations are well under way in fraternity houses and many have already accumulated 100 per cent donations from their brothers. Fraternity presidents have received pledges from all of their students. Those who have not yet donated to their university's depository.

The names of all these fraternity and sorority members, both male and female, who have given 100 per cent will be printed in The Daily Pennsylvanian after this weekend.

Dear Campus Chest Drive

The seniors' letter will commence this evening, Wednesday, and Saturday evening with Campus Chest solicitation representatives, who may either give direct donations or ask if anyone desires to have their donations subtracted from their tuition

Undergraduates who do not live on campus and cannot attend the rally have been approached through the mail at the urging of their own dormitory leaders. Those who have been approached are urged to make their entries as early as possible.

The Campus itself will feature 44 different booths operated by faculty and students, which is expected to be the largest in Campus Chest's history.

Women Nearly Dateless

Solicitations in both the women's dormitories and fraternity houses have nearly been completed and the results will probably be available sometime this week.

Students in all of the graduate schools and off-campus organizations will be asked for contributions by members of their representative organizations.

SAIL ON, SAIL ON!

I suppose October 12 is just another day to you. Yet it is the beginning of the very day. Our city, as a whole, is becoming a festival town. We may not have the homes designed by the Architectural Review, and the Nature's Way and spontaneous feel of things is missing. But the town is alive, and the people are enjoying themselves.

The Campus Chest, like an ancient institution, is back from Europe, bringing with it a million dollars and a new look at life. The people are happy, and the town is alive.

The Campus Chest has been a great success. It has raised a million dollars, and the people are enjoying themselves.

Penn's cross-country team (6-1) will be looking for its first win of the season when it takes on rugged Lafayette tomorrow in a cross-meet at the Quaker's Colin Creek Course. The Quakers will also take on strong countenants from Harvard and Columbia Friday at Van Cortland Park in New York City.

In preparation for these two important contests, Coach "Buzz" Macleen has laid the hardiers course in years, looking to snare six a day. Macleen is hoping that the additional running will help the Quaker runners achieve stamina which they lacked in their opening loss to Rutgers.

In the meet against Rutgers, Penn got off to a fast start, led by Hugh Krois, but was unable to hold it for the full five-mile course. The reason for this was that the Quaker runners were only running four miles in practice and rested in the fifth mile of theScarlet course.

In the triangular meet Friday, Harvard, which won its first two meets of the year, will be the probable favorite in the meet. However, the top runners in both teams-with Bob Abrahamsen and Joe Halsig leading figures-are very fast and may be hard to beat in a 12-mile run.

With Coach Wallace Johnson wanting to get a close look at the freshmen, the All-University tennis tournament was restricted to first-year men only. Thirty-five freshmen signed up for this semester, which is being conducted as the Law School tennis courts.

The contest, though being played on six poorly conditioned courts, has thus far produced playing results for Johnson due to the good play of many of the freshmen.

The favorite in the bottom, according to Johnson, is Bill Reynolds, whose all-around game has led him to an easy 6-4, 6-2 victory over Abbe Carter in the semifinals and a 6-2, 6-4 triumph at the expense of Jack Siegel in the finals. Reynolds, who was played on Friday, put Reynolds, the "Round of Four" along with Roger Schwartz, John Kent, and Henry Somershead.

Reynolds gained the semi-finals by using past Jack Wissman, 6-4, 6-4, while John Kent took the semi-finals of Olive Chandler, 6-4, 6-1. Henry Somershead won his battle by default.

Early round scalps of those who look promising are John Adams, Bradley Jaffe, and Jack Wissman. Because the tournament was not seeded, these men fell early by the wayside, the quarter final.

Roger Schwartz will meet Bill Reynolds and John Kent will face Henry Somershead in the semi-finals.
