Shelley Berman To Perform In H.H. Spectacular Series

by Nicholas R. Seidlin

Comedian Shelley Berman will present a full evening of monologues and sketches in Irvine Auditorium, April 21 at 8:30 as the fourth in a series of "spectaculars" sponsored by the student council. Student Board of Directors.

Berman, who will be asked to be out of the pandemic hub of humor by the Gateway Singers, is currently gaining national time as a comedian. Tickets for the performance are currently on sale at the Houston Hall Information Desk.

Recently two years ago, the name of Shelley Berman was known only to a few people who had been struggling for some ten years to be a comedian, while he earned a living, at the same time, at such diverse activities as a cab-driver, a teacher in an acting school, a professional entertainer and an assistant manager of a drug company.

Recently he decided to try his luck at comedy. With only a dollar and a new shirt, he accepted an engagement at Mister Kelly's, the night club of downtown Chicago. He was an immediate success, and sketches and monologues on appearance on the Jack P进来 show have been recorded and released on the Verden album "Shelly Berman" and "Outside Shelley Berman.

The cast includes, among others, Edith Thomas, contralto; Jerry Walter, baritone; Robert Adam, tenor; Max MacGregor, bass-baritone; and Marc Richards, guitar, who are handling most of their own acting and songwriting. In six weeks, they will leave for New York, the last stop of their tour.

The fifth in the series of "spectaculars" will be a benefit for the national council of college women.

Debaters Will Vie For National Title At Army Academy

The debate council's senior honor team of president Barbara Balcomb and Kenneth Jacobson has qualified for the national championship, the West Point Invitational Tournament known to debaters as the "Rose Bowl of Debate." The team is the only one from the area to win the tournament for the national title for the last five consecutive years.

The debate team consists of Ian K. Bove, junior, and Frank E. Ford, senior. The council has been awarded a new set of trophies by the national council of college women.

Hazing Violator Put On Social Probation

Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity member who was involved in a hazing incident was put on social probation for one month last spring by the Interfraternity Council. The incident was investigated by the Council as a result of a minor violation of the social probation office, the student council.

The hazing incident also resulted in another fraternity for which the violating fraternity was "indefinitely suspended." A third house was closed for a period of two weeks in this incident.

Dorm Council Refuses To Convene Meeting

Council Vice-Chairman Buttuff Asks Ineligible' Chrmn. Vorderberg Resign

The Dormitory Council sparked a scorching flame of corruption and inadequacy in undergraduate student activities, last night, when the nine-man Dormitory Council, led by Chairman John L. Vorderberg, illegally refused to hold a meeting in order to deny The Daily Pennsylvanian admittance to the proceedings.

Alumnae To Hold 'Adam's Rib' Conf.

Women-in-the-know will not want to miss the second annual "Adam's Rib" conference to be sponsored by The Alumnae Club of Philadelphia this Saturday at the University Museum from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Past and present RWCs will be particularly interested in knowing that the theme of the conference will be centered on examining various aspects of the contemporary woman.

Dr. B. Jean Brownlow, associate dean of The College for Women and an alum, will preside as chairman for the day.

The morning session will feature Dr. Helen C. Bailey, associate professor of the Philadelphia public schools and a graduate of the University, who will compare the conformity and individualism of American women with women of other societies.

During luncheon Dr. Wal- laces R. Davis, associate professor of history, will appropriately present his lecture on "Women in American History" in the Egyptian Gallery of the museum. Dr. Davis, citing the obvious distinction between the female segment of the population and the male population, will state the special status of the day, Dr. Laura A. Berend, dean of women.

The afternoon session will open with an attempt to prove the female mind in a discussion of "Changing Psychology of Women" by Dr. Robert L. Lepold, instructor of psychology in the School of Medicine.

Waiting for the meeting to begin, two Daily Pennsylvania reporters were told by Vorderberg, a sophomore in the College, that they "would have to leave." Afteruni Lyn was told that the press could not attend the conference, the Alumnae Club screened the meeting from the public.

Vorderberg and nearly half the remaining members are reported to be ineligible. In fact, the supposed purpose of the meeting was to investigate the averages of some of those members.

It's been reported that A. Brockman, assistant dean of men and also advisor to the Council, arrived. When asked if the Dormitory Council would allow to hold a closed meeting, since the constitution of the Council makes no provision for it, Brockman said, "I don't think that the council should deny it being that a quorum is not present," Brockman called for a "discussion meeting" and asked the remaining members in the room.

When the Council permit was shelved, Brockman said that the "average student council members are in question regarding their eligibility to the Council, and this topic will be included in the agenda. Participation is not clear on whether the average must (Continued on page six)

Direct Elections, Adjustments in Representation Favorable

by James P. Kartell

Student government at the University faces a number of problems, one of which is the influence of various activities within the student body of the college. Such activities often cause concern among the administration, particularly when they are not directed towards the goals of the college. For example, the administration has been concerned with the high degree of student involvement in extracurricular activities, which may distract students from their studies. Consequently, the administration has been trying to find a way to balance the need for student involvement with the need for academic success.

WHO YOUR FRIENDS ARE

Would You Rather Give Up A Friend Or A Principle?

This is the manner of the freshmen English course. You're asked to write a paper on a subject of your own choosing, and if you choose it wisely, you will find that your essay is both interesting and informative. However, if you choose it poorly, you may find that your essay is both uninteresting and superficial, and that you will receive a low grade.

There are many subjects that you could choose for your essay, such as the history of literature, the philosophy of science, or the psychology of music. However, if you choose one of these subjects, you will find that you have limited your essay to a narrow topic, and that you will not be able to explore it in depth.

Instead, I would like you to choose a subject that is broad and inclusive, such as the history of the United States, the philosophy of history, or the psychology of society. These subjects will allow you to explore a wide range of topics, and to draw on a wealth of knowledge.

The history of the United States, for example, is a subject that is broad and inclusive. It allows you to explore the political, social, and economic history of the country, and to draw on a wealth of knowledge. You can explore the causes and effects of the Civil War, the role of women in American society, and the impact of immigration on the country. You can also explore the role of the United States in world affairs, and the impact of technology on society.

The philosophy of history is another subject that is broad and inclusive. It allows you to explore the different ways in which historians have approached the past, and the different methods that they have used to interpret historical events. You can explore the different schools of thought, such as the positivist school, and the Marxist school. You can also explore the different methods that historians have used to collect and analyze data.

The psychology of society is another subject that is broad and inclusive. It allows you to explore the different ways in which people think and behave, and the different factors that influence their behavior. You can explore the different theories of personality, such as the psychoanalytic theory, and the behaviorist theory. You can also explore the different ways in which people interact with each other, and the different factors that influence their interactions.

I hope that you will choose a subject that is broad and inclusive, and that you will use your essay to explore a wide range of topics. You will find that you have limited your essay to a narrow topic, and that you will not be able to explore it in depth.

Coaches Boy's Pass In Class As Well As On Football Field

by Stephen J. Weiss

"I try to find high school football players whose academic qualifications are at least equal to that of the average student at the university," said coach John Stigman in an interview last Tuesday.

"You know as well as I do that courses are marked on a curve, and that it will be a player's grade that will not be able to stay above the passing level of that curve.

"The Office of Admissions pays as much attention to the boys' achievement tests, interviews, and sports as the football player as it does to those of a non-athlete."

Before long, this year's high school was the topic of conversation. Most of the talk centered around the colleges and marks of various athletes whom we both knew. It became quite evident that Stigman had as much information as any coach about the possibility of a prospective college athlete as he did on the possibility of an athlete.

The discussion then drifted to the situation at Rutgers where he had coached. Stigman mentioned the fact that a good percentage of his squad was composed of athletes and agriculture students. The familiar problem of how to find a coach who had in class 23 hours a week was aired. He stated that football was one of the courses that couldn't be taught adequately. He also said that the interview was the notion that Penn's would form a practice team, practicing at a school of high academic standards.

Certainly, he has held jobs at Princeton and Rutgers, two schools which are well respected toward producing national potentials.

Moreover, from the time he first went to the high school to the time he graduated from Penn, he had always been an outstanding scholar.

Yearlings Hold Tryouts

by Stephen A. Hurwitz

Anxiously awaiting the first cry of "Play ball," and hoping to quell the cruel weather, Coach Robert "Bockey" Graham held tryouts for this year's freshman baseball team beginning next Monday.

Coach Graham indicated that practice would start next week, because of the inclement weather we have been having, heavy workouts probably would not begin until the spring rain.

Graham will select a squad of 18 who will attempt to repeat the unbeaten record of last year's freshman team. The competition will be greater as the team will play six games, only one of which will be at home grounds.

Stockey, a Penn graduate, played football in college and catcher in baseball during his undergraduate days. He stated that "I made the baseball team because I was the only one out for the position," but his professional ball-playing experience attests that he was being overly modest. Graham played in the Philadelphia Phillips organizaton, a Class B league.

Coach Graham received his now-renowned nickname "Stockey" during his high-school football days. He played halfback and was so devoted to the game that his roving notions and has remained since then. Since his graduation, Coach Graham has gained only 20 pounds and bulk in his hands.

The coach has no particular physical demands for baseball, such as each game it comes, inning by inning, but rather he believes in the art of timing and plays the boy with the most skill.

"I am not sure about the quality of the team but I hope that they will be able to start out showing as last year's team did," Graham stated. He added that he

Captains Picked By Princeton, Columbus

Donald H. Swan was named captain of the Princeton basketball team for the 1960-61 season. Swan led Coach Cappy Capponi's Tigers in rebounds this year and was second in the league under the boards.

He also captains a Tiger squad for next year in Steve Velphlage of the squad team. Velphlage was the big name in Princeton squash season as he defeated every opponent that was thrown his way. But at Harvard School he was the National Junior Scholastic Championship three times in a row and last year he reached the finals of the Intercollegiate Invitation Squash Tournament.

Brian Millen and Allan Schwartz have been named captains of the Columbia wrestling and fencing teams respectively. Millen, in the 135-pound division, was 8-1 this season while helping the Lions to their best season in nine years. Fencing in the number two position on the Columbia sabre, Schwartz won 22 of 39 bouts. In league competition he defeated his foes of I and 1 while leading the Lions to a tie for the championship. He was also instrumental in Columbia's successful campaign for the Eastern Intertoligiate Fencing Association sabre championship, winning six of nine bouts.

Springtime On The Schuylkill River

The varsity crew enters an inter-quad race during one of their spring practice sessions on the Schuylkill river. The crew starts its practice schedule early in the fall and continues throughout the winter, culminating in a series of spring meets. During the winter months, the crews struggle to coordinate their efforts in order to send the 61-foot shell over the water at top speed.

by Michael S. Brown

It was the first day of Spring and the balmy southern breeze made the forty degree temperature seem like eighty, so the warm-blooded reporter at last felt safe in journeying to the icy Schuylkill to visit the crew.

At four o'clock Joe Burck was on the dock readying the varsity for its daily practice session. "Care to go for a ride?" the coach offered as his launch began to pull away from the dock.

The coach climbed aboard the 20-foot bimboard launch eased out onto the river, the crew muscling their way and handling the reporter's two heavy oars and poles. "It's too cold out there," the stern fellow, launching himself in theswift current with an experienced rower, turned to him and said in a way that meant he was not to offer a word of objection.

Seven oars, deftly maneuvered in the swift current with an experienced rower, turned to him and said in a way that meant he was not to offer a word of objection. A few minutes later, the coxswain was jiving a mining row of the oars that had their feet in sinuous sculling inches above the icy water. In the stern rode the coxswain with his steering handle connected to the rudder and a small megaphone hanging around his neck.

Burck Seeks Improvement

"All plans are made," Joe Burck, "but if you've locked the problem we're working on. Be ten stradys at 24, Frank." Burck ordered, "and have those red headwinds at the top.

"One, two, three ..." the coxswain was singing to the crew. "And dive down the line while leading the Lions to a tie for the championship. He was also instrumental in Columbia's successful campaign for the Eastern Intertoligiate Fencing Association sabre championship, winning six of nine bouts."

"AN EMBARRASSMENT OF RICHES"

Twinkly, inviolate old Dr. Wassell Sigfusso, head of chemistry at the Upper Rhode Island College of Science and Palometry, coves naught for glory and wealth. All he cares about is to work in his laboratory, to play Mozart quartets with a few creases, to make a good Marsicle, and to throw sticks for his faithful dog Trey to fetch.

When, after years of patient research, Dr. Sigfusso discovered Reverso, a shaving cream which causes whiskers to grow inward instead of outward, thus enabling a man to bite off his beard instead of shaving it, it never even crossed his mind that he had come upon a key to fame and riches; he simply assigned all his royalties from Reverso to the college and went on with his quiet life of working in the laboratory, playing Mozart quartets, smoking good Marlicle and throwing sticks for his faithful dog Trey. (Trey, incidentally, had died some years earlier but habit is a strong thing and Dr. Sigfusso did this day continue to throw sticks)

As everyone knows, Reverso turned out to be a madly successful shaving cream. Royalties in the first month amounted to $26,000, which came in nightly h-learning, believe you me, because the college had long been postpone some urgently needed repairs—a lighting rod for the cow’s and an auxiliary, new hoops for the basketball court, leather patches for the cheese team’s elbows and a pessiwe for the Director of Admissions.

In the second month royalties amounted to an even million dollars and the college bought Marlboro cigarettes for all students and faculty members. It is interesting that the college chose Marlboro cigarettes though they could well have afforded more expensive brands. The reason is simply this: you can pay more for a cigarette but you can’t get a better flavor, a better smoke. If you think flavor went out when filters came in, try a Marlboro. The filter cigarette with the unfiltered taste. You, too, can smoke like a millionaire at a cost which does no violence to the strictest of budgets. Marlboro come in soft packs or flip-top boxes and can be found at any tobacco counter. Millionaries can be found on yachts.

But I digress. We were speaking of the royalties from Reverso which continue to accrue at an astonishing rate—now in excess of one million dollars per week. The college is doing all it can to spend the money; the student-teacher ratio which used to be thirty students to one teacher is now thirty teachers to one student! The Gulf Stream has been purchased for the Department of Marine Biology; the Dawn of Women has been gold-plated.

But money does not buy happiness, especially in the college world. Poverty and irony—that is the academic life—not power and self. The Upper Rhode Island College of Science and Palometry is frankly embarrassed by all this wealth, but we are pleased to report that the trustees are not taking their calamity lying down. Last week they earmarked all royalties for a crash research program headed by Dr. Wassell Sigfusso to develop a whisker which is resistant to Reverso. Let us all join in wishing the old gentleman success.

The sponsors of this column can’t offer you money but they can offer you fine entailing favors—with or without filter. If you leave filters try a Marlboro. If non-filters are your pleas-sure pick a Philip Morris.
