The ceremony began with the presentation of other awards along with a talk by Russell C. Ford, ‘61, who was the keynote speaker on “How to Write a Play.” The Penn Players also presented a montage of Cronin’s past shows which in- cluded “The Glass Menagerie,” “Sweet Charity,” “With Father,” a show which remains one of the most popular productions on BROADWAY, “State of the Union.”

This year’s awards were the ninth, the other awards were the “Outstanding Actor Award,” presented to Edward B. Fineiner ‘60; the “Outstanding Actress Award,” presented to Jeanne E. Scott ‘60; the “Outstanding Playwright Award” to Joseph A. Strauss ‘60; the “Outstanding Producer Award” to James E. Geoghegan ‘60; and the “Outstanding Year Award” to Patrick J. Lynch.

Responses Indicate Success For President’s Senior Dinner

Responses received to date indicate that the President’s Dinner for members of the senior class will be well attended at the President’s House Saturday night.

As of yesterday afternoon, more than 700 seniors had accepted the invitation of President Harvard to gather next Monday for a benefit entertainment on the East Plaza of the University Museum.

Departures from previous custom apparently are a growing trend with the general approval. This will be the first year that the President’s “commencement party” for the members will be held outdoors, and the first time that senior men and women will attend the event.

There will be no reservation at the affair unless something of an internal, nearest approach to a formal program will be made by the President’s Committee on Finance and the President’s Committee on Finance.

A radical new motion was passed at the annual meeting in the fall semester, more than one leader may be taken from each class’s fraternity, providing that there is at least two years’ distance.

Travel Notes: No. 2

by Richard Cuthbert

Strange things can happen even if you keep a careful watch on your comfort zones. Last week, while attending a conference in London, I found myself in the midst of a storm of rain.

The conference was held at the University of London, and I was soaked to the skin within minutes. However, I managed to find a dry shelter and later managed to make my way back to the hotel.

Skimmer Day, Saturday
Track Teams Tackle Tigers

Seeking to gain its fourth dual and triangle meet win, a feat not accomplished by any Quaker track team since 1975, Penn (2-0) entertained Princeton on Franklin Field this afternoon in a dual meet starting at 4:00 pm.

As expected, Penn's undefeated freshmen (4-0) will face the stiffest challenge to their bid for an unblemished record in the Tigers.

Both teams will make their second appearance of the year.

Penn favored

The field events on this afternoon's program will probably be dominated by Penn Brian Bouldin, who won both the shot put and discus championships in Saturday's Ivy, will be seeking for Penn Princeton records in both events.

In addition to the existing Ivy Penn record, the meet will also be the 1982 Pennsylvania NCAA meet on the 8000-meter field.

Broad Jump

The broad jump will pit the one-on-one between the Princeton's Alvin Withers and each other. Penn's coach will attempt to better the 247-inch mark set by M. Morgan Taylor of Yale.

Roy Reisinger, who turned in the past meet, will have the opportunity to gain the first and second places in the mile and two-mile events.

OPPOSITE MEN'S DORMS
Lacrossemen Seek Penn-Del Title

The scoring leaders for the Lehigh University the past two years have been (from left to right): Dick Nowak, midfielder; Dave Ballman, attack, and Andy Jones, midfielder, who was the Engineer leading scorer last season and who is the team's top goal producer this year. These three stickmen raise hopes against opposing goalies and will have to play at their best for the Brown and White to win the title.

Last year the Quakers were edged out in a 4-3 thriller as Ballman chalked up two goals. This afternoon the Pennsmen will be out to avenge this defeat and to end Lehigh's two-year league win streak at 13. Coach Avery Biddle's charges have been led in this campaign in scoring by soph Robert Freidman with 12 goals and junior Frank Mann with 11 goals and 14 assists in regular season play.

Sen Schuyteman and Bee Parks are close behind in the scoring race with eight goals each. Schuyteman has passed off to aid in eight goals. Quaker title hopes rest also on the defense and goalie Dave Bolen as they must contain the potent Lehigh attack. Defenders Phil McChery, John Dochtman and John Vander Wal will be counted on heavily if the Quakers are going to record their first Penn-Del championship.

by Stephen A. Harwitz

With both teams considering this contest the championship game of the Penn-Del League, Penn's lacrosse team will travel to Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, this afternoon to face Lehigh in a game of loop winners.

The Engineers are currently atop the Penn-Del League with a 7-1 record. The visiting Quakers are a team beset with a 3-4 league mark.

Leading the home squad are midfielder Dick Nowak, attackman Dave Ballman and midfielder Andy Jones with 15, 15 and 23 goals respectively. Jones is currently the national scoring leader and has placed second in the nation in scoring with 36 goals.

Nowak, Ballman and Jones have been the scoring leaders of the Lehigh team for the past two years and have scored 65 of the team's 95 goals in the first eight games. Also ranking high statistically are attackman Pete Fiolde with 24 goals and 14 goals. Dobbins, a free leader and stickman, set a Lehigh seasonal assist record last year and is the top man on attack.

Coach Bob Wohlin's defense is helped by standard defenders Joe DeRicco. Tom Naylor, after an early season injury, has been outstanding in guarding the Lehigh coast. All Engineer players mentioned are juniors with the exception of Naylor, a senior.
