Parents Day Activities Set For Today

Parents of students in the University of Pennsylvania's Class of 1967 will visit the campus today during Pennsylvania's annual Parents Day. A variety of events showing the University in operation has been planned for them. More than 650 parents are expected to register at Houston Hall, 3417 Spruce St., where their arrival today. They have been invited to attend classes with their children throughout the morning. The University's motion picture, "Campus Camera," will be shown at 10 and 11 a.m. and at noon in Houston Hall auditorium.

In line with the idea of showing parents a typical student day, their fathers and mothers will be welcomed to fraternity and sorority houses as luncheon guests in the Willows whenever their children normally go.

A highlight of Parents Day will be a symposium on "Pennsylvania's Perspective on Excellence," moderated by Dr. Gilbert Chitteland, president of the University. It will be held 11:45 a.m. in the auditorium of the University Museum, 33rd and Spruce Sts.

Faculty participants will include: John H. Abraham, professor of political science; Dr. Philip George, professor of chemistry; Miss Mary C. Gabriele, president of the Women's Student Government; John R. Reese, captain of the Class of 1967, and chairman of the psychology department; and Dr. Henry Glatman, professor and chairman of the psychology department, and Dr. Henry Glatman, professor of political science.

Robert Wolfe, Vice-President of the Men's Student Government, made an appeal to the male undergraduate students of the university yesterday to vote in favor of the new electoral procedure recommended by the Government next week.

Wolfe explained that the amendment, passed by the Men's Student Government earlier in the week, provides for a "Weighted Preference System." Under this system the eligible voters of the university community are divided into five districts, with each district allocating a delegate per 235-335 possible voters.

MOVES PLANNED TO RESTORE UNITY AMONG ALLIES

WASHINGTON - The nation's top foreign policy strategists are planning quick post-election exploratory moves to find out what can be done to restore fading unity among the European allies.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk has arranged for separate meetings during the coming weekend with two foreign ministers from Europe. And Undersecretary George W. Ball will meet with a third foreign minister in Berlin next week.

Rusk will confer with Joseph M.A. Illi of the Netherlands on Saturday and Belgium's Paul-Henri Spaak on Monday. Both European foreign policy chiefs are highly respected veterans of the international scene and their importance, Washington specialists believe, far exceeds the dimensions of their countries.

Ball, a diplomatic trouble-shooter since 1961, will meet with Gerhard Schroeder, West German foreign minister, at the annual German-American conference on Atlantic problems, which is being held in Berlin this year - Nov. 12-15.

VIETNAMESE CHAIRMAN RESIGNS

SAIGON, South Viet Nam - The chairman of the High National Council, Nguyen Xuan Chu, resigned Thursday in a protest about the makeup and method of appointment of South Viet Nam's civilian Cabinet. Repercussions could be serious.

Chu voiced his complaints to the chief of state, Phan Khac Suu, an old political ally from the days when both were opposing the administration of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem.

He was reported to have made two points about the 15-man government Premier Tran Van Huong chose to take over rule from Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh's military regime:

- The High National Council should have been consulted in selection of the ministers, even though the new provisional constitution does not require such consultation.
- Two or three political elements are represented in the Cabinet, which is therefore "will not have the confidence of the people."

LIBERALS PLAN PURGE OF GOLDWATER DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON - Strengthened House liberals planned full scale on a projected party purge of Southern Democratic congressmen who supported Republican Barry Goldwater.

"We say the main point is that they walked out of the party," said Rep. John Blatnik, (D) Minn., leader of the liberal group that wants to run them out of the party.

"We do not feel that they have the right to return to our fold with all the prerogatives and privileges and committee assignments of party membership," Blatnik said Thursday in a telephone interview from Duluth, Minn.

Heading the liberals' purge list are Reps. John Bell Williams, (D) Miss., and Albert W. Watson, (D), S.C., who openly supported Goldwater's presidential candidacy.

Watson is just entering on his second term, but the veteran Williams is second-ranking Democrat on the House Commerce Committee, and is high on the District of Columbia Committee.

Rep. Richard Bolling, (D), Mo., another leader of the liberal group, said, "I think the really important thing is for the majority - the overwhelming liberal Democratic majority in the House - to exercise its power in about the same way as the Republicans do."

"They are very conservative, and conservative Republicans go on the important committees."
A Struggle Begins

It has not taken long for the facade of party unity to collapse amidst Republicans brazenly disregarding the overwhelming repudiation of their president by not only the polls but by the people. And sure enough, the man to collapse the unwieldy and ugly structure is the champion party unity himself, Richard M. Nixon.

Nixon, one of the so-called "moderate" leadership of the Republican Party distinguishes by his complete reliance on expediency in any matter concerning his party. In fact, he has so thoroughly cut out the "dollardolls" legend, a story that the Republicans do it poorly at the polls because liberal policies within the party sabotaged the campaign effort.

Considering the numerous Republican candidates at the local and state level who went down to defeat because of voter exertion to the candidacy of Senator Goldwater, Nixon's statement accusing New York's Governor Rockefeller in particular as not only churlish but cynical, Rockefeller, almost alone, attempted to prevent the Goldwater nomination first with his own candidacy and then by supporting that of Pennsylvania's Governor William Scranton. Nixon, by his playing of one candidate off against another, cleared the field for Goldwater's nomination, although he was working for his own as a candidate of compromise and "recronciliation." The bitter experience of New York's Senator Kenneth Keating is enough to justify Rockefeller's lack of support of the national ticket. Other promising Republicans cut out by the Johnnies were Illinois' Charles Percy in his campaign for the governorship and Ohio's Robert Taft, Jr. in his Senate race. The failure of candidates to dissociate themselves from the national ticket contributed to their defeat. The only one to emerge strengthened was the defeat of many Goldwaterites in the West and Midwest.

Stirrings from other Republican leaders, including Vice President Dwight Eisenhower, indicate that a struggle for control of party leadership is under way. Hopefully it will result in the party finally being out of the hands of those who can only bring it to ruin as a national party.

University of Pennsylvania community by its editors and staff.

Pennsylvania will have to go to the polls and accept the responsibility offered them. The first step in removing government from the realm of Mickey Mouse is the passage of the new N,S,G. election law, M,S,G,2-099 allows each elector to state his preference of candidates by numbering the individuals listed upon the ballot. For the first time, the individuals vote total will count.

The present system allows 2 or 3 political leaders to determine who will represent the student body in such vital committees as the SGA, University Student PENN’s President, C.S.I.A, and Student Council. These are the individuals who will "represent" student opinion. The present system allows for another football coach for a losing football coach for a losing football coach for a replacement.

If the student body is ever to have a voice in university affairs, to escape the group of OLD FATHER PENN, the M,S,G,2-099 must become truly responsible to its constituents. The passing of the new constitutional amendment is the first step in bringing government to the students.

enough so need be said about the need for a change.

The time has come for the University to stop asking, "Should we fire him or hire him?" It has noticed in watching the election returns that there will shortly be unemployed football coaches in Oklahoma, Texas, and other places. In a man like Bud Wilkinson, we should be little ashamed. Who knows, he might be able to lead Penn to a touchdown or two next year.

"what can my job be at IBM?"

In IBM Data Processing, your job can be full of variety. Especially when you consider all the ways computers are used. As an IBM Data Processing Systems Engineer, you would be helping customers get the most from their computers. They could be customers in science, government, education, defense, industry, or business. You might even specialize in one field.

Or, as an IBM Data Processing Representative, you would present to customer executives your ideas for doing their work better with computers. Your own imagination and initiative are the limits of what you can accomplish in marketing IBM products.

If you are working toward a degree—in Liberal Arts, Engineering, the Sciences, or Business Administration—find out what IBM can offer you in the way of achievement. Thorough training at special IBM schools will prepare you for work in either Systems Engineering or Marketing.

Pride's The Thing

By ALAN RICHMOND

Everybody specializes in something. That's why there are line coaches, formation coaches, and special team coaches. John Cervino has a specialty, too: he's a winning coach.

Freshman under John Cervino is wild and wonderful. It's wild because Cervino, according to one of his ex-students Don Schubert, "is a screaming madman, but he's really great!" It's wonderful because the freshman "A" team is 4-0, the "B" team is 1-1-1, and neither shows any signs of slowing up.

In the pre-Cervino days, freshman football at Penn matched only the variety in all-around incompetence. These days the variety remains something short of bowl material, but the frosh rank with the best in the East.

"In my 13 years of coaching," says Cervino, "I've only had one season of .500 football." That season was 1956, when the mighty Cervino Military Academy, a one-year prep school. That season we averaged in points per game, most games were a big scholarship school then with a working agreement with West Point and Annapolis. Since then, I've had only the worst of football players, but they were the dumbest darn kids I ever saw.

My quartermaster on that team was Walt Schubert, who couldn't throw a line drive and he was a tight pass. "He was a goober," I'll have to go next year to match that crew."

Cervino's team is so good because, Schubert says, "He's got such a high-powered passing attack. He's very impressive as a recruiter, too. When you first meet him, you think 'Wow! He's gonna make me the best quarterback I ever had.'"

Cervino's recruiting record is easily the most impressive Penn's had in quite a few years. The two stars of the team, quarterback Bill Creeden and halfback Rick Owens, were both recruited by Cervino. Creeden, an outstanding athlete at Bishop Egan High in Philadelphia, is considered "potentially one of the best T halfbacks of all time." Owens is "potentially one of the best T  quarterbacEs" by Navy all-American Tom Forrestall.

But even Ivy League professors have been known to take pity on members of an undefeated team, and Rutgers and Lehigh are faster than most play because Cervino has given them tremendous pride in the game.

"If you have a real tough schedule or you can't make a practice, he'll give you the day of rest. If you want to take your kids off the team, you can't do it; he'll make them stay. He's very impressive as a recruiter, too. When you first meet him, you think 'Wow! He's gonna make me the best quarterback I ever had.'"

"I imagine the yearling Engineers, opponents of the Quakers on Saturday, will meet Princeton in what will probably be the Ivy League championship playoff.

There are several factors which make the Bulldogs as strong this year, one is head coach John Powers, veteran "Miami" tradition. A second is the forward line, ready to attack a feeble Philadelphia defense; they have yet to meet Princeton and Harvard. Yale shared first place with Harvard, 14-7. Yale's seventh place position is extremely precarious, they do not have enough depth to challenge for the Ivy League title. The EIIs are currently 3-0-1 in league play, with the sole blemish a 9-1-1 defeat against Columbia. Barring upsets, next weekend, the EIIs will take on the unbeaten Bucknell on the road in a crucial contest.
