Fine Arts Building To Become Reality, SOS Pledges Fight

The controversial Fine Arts Building, which prompted a series of mass student demonstrations last November, is scheduled to become a reality in the very near future, according to Dean John C. Hetherington, stated yesterday.

The All-University SOS Committee, when called for comment, immediately pledged to continue the fight against the structure, indicating that further legal action will be taken if the day meets the approval of the Urban Planning Board.

The press conference was called yesterday by Hetherington, who is well advanced by this time. He indicated no likelihood of further postponements, however.

The announcement of the project and the construction of a new building at the corner of 36th and Locust Streets, presented by the SOS Committee, formed in response to broad-based dissatisfaction with the projected building, has caused a mass rally of SOS members, who have shown their solidarity through a mass demonstration.

Sen. Clark To Lecture At Annenberg Today

Pennsylvania's Democratic Senator Joseph S. Clark will discuss "Legislative Reform" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the auditorium of the Annenberg School of Communications under the aegis of Connaught.

Clark has been one of the leading Congressional proponents for reforming and streamlining the legislative branch of the government. "Congress, The Supreme Branch" is his recently published book on this topic.

In a December 28 speech, Clark stated that while the executive and judicial branches of government have kept pace with the times, "it is in the third branch of government, the legislative where things have gone awry. Whether we look at city councils, the state legislature, or the Congress of the United States, we react to what we see with scarcely concealed contempt. This is the area where democracy thrives, if you will reform the public government is breaking down. This is where the vested interest lobbies tend to run free, where the special interests are unilaterally concealed from the public, where demagogues, sophisticates or primitives, know few bounds, and where political maneuvering needed action a generation behind the times, where ignorance is often at a premium, and where the influence of arrogant and corrupt political politicians at the local and state level ignites most successfully the public welfare, where certain forces do the greatest damage for the public interest."

Clark's introductory address, "The Sapless Branch" is his recently published book on this topic.

Blast and Fire Raze Mosque in Harlem

NEW YORK — Fire swept through the Black Muslim mosque in Harlem early today, an apparent street revenge for Malcolm X, the ousted and assassinated former minister of the temple.

Several witnesses said they heard explosions before flames shot into the sky. And on the roof of a building next door, investigators found an empty five-gallon tin which had contained kerosene or gasoline.

Police said it was possible to throw homemade firebombs from the roof through the barred fourth-floor windows of the mosque meeting hall, where the spectacular blaze was centered.

A kerosene-soaked bag also was in the next door building.

Fire in San Francisco

Fear that the slaying would touch off terrorism grew stronger after another fire today, at the Black Muslim meeting place in San Francisco. Kerosene was thrown on the sidewalk and the front door was ignited. Two patrolling policemen spotted the fire and damage was slight.

Police poured reinforcements into Harlem in an effort to block any further bloodshed or violence. They supplemented an extra force patrolling the almost all-Negro community since the assassination of Malcolm X two days ago.

Two Syrians Are Executed As U.S. Spies

DAMASCUS — A naturalized American of Syrian origin and a Syrian army colonel were executed before dawn today in charges of spying for the United States.

The government announced that Col. Abdul Moen Hakimi, 43, died before a firing squad. Farhan Atassi, 37, who acquired U.S. citizenship after marrying an American girl, was hung in al-Maria square in downtown Damascus.

They were convicted of being members of a spy ring headed by Walter Snowdon, second secretary of the U.S. Embassy. The U.S. denied the espionage charge, but Snowdon and a clerk at the embassy, Martha Scherrer, were expelled from Syria.

A military court sentenced Hakimi and Atassi to death Saturday night.

Duties Not Paid

The seizure took place at the University of Cincinnati on the grounds that custom duties on the film had not been paid. The film had been smuggled into this country over a year ago.

According to Carol Snyderman, president of the Student Peace Union, the film probably would never have been allowed into the country because of the point of view from which it is produced, and for that reason was smuggled into the United States.

Officials of the Student Peace Union claim that the seizure is a definite violation of the students' civil liberties and constitutional rights.

Members of the Peace Union would like to know why the government is afraid to let students see this film. Miss Snyderman said that though the atmosphere of the film is that of opposition to the United States Government's intervention into Viet Nam, the film is very honest about the war.

There is another copy of this film in the country. The officials of the Peace Union have stated that they intend to obtain this copy to show to the University as soon as the dispute with the customs officials has been settled.

CUSTOMS SEIZE FILM: Peace Union Protests

United States customs officials seized a Viet Cong documentary film February 19 which the University's Student Peace Union intended to show last night.

Entitled "Heroic Viet Nam — 1963," the film is a documentary produced by the National Liberation Front, the official name of the Viet Cong. The film is made up of actual film shots and is presented from the Viet Cong point of view.

We Forget

Revelations that the Fine Arts Building will shortly be transformed from an unpleasant prospect to an unassuming building reserved to serve only that problem do not just disappear.

Last November, the University Committee to Save Open Space, popularly known as "SOS," concluded two years of demonstration by submitting a petition to the administration to secure a site for Fine Arts building and to create a Fine Arts building. The committee, which had been in existence for three years, held a meeting in the Board of Trustees' room on February 6, 1965, to discuss the problem of Fine Arts building. The chairman, William J. Hufnagel, said that the committee would continue to work on the problem of Fine Arts building and that the committee would continue to work on the problem of Fine Arts building.

Dr. E. Digby Baltzell, scholar and author (The Proletarian Establishment), professor, and most important, a man who is not afraid to speak out on that which concerns the University's welfare, is a mainstay of the University's liberal attitude of the administration in areas of student affairs. But the issue which sparked the controversy this week, an issue of academic freedom, has been joined with the issue of academic freedom. The vice president for administration and finance, Dr. Baltzell, is a champion of the liberal attitude. He is a supporter of the administration's policy, a policy that has been widely acclaimed.

The question raised by the issue of academic freedom is whether or not the growing number of students at the University are being denied the right to express their opinions. The issue of academic freedom has been raised in the past by the University's administration. The administration has been accused of being too censorious with regard to student expression. The issue of academic freedom has been raised in the past by the University's administration.

The issue of academic freedom is an important one. It is a question of whether or not the University is fulfilling its role as a center of learning.

Noted Choral Director Will Receive Award

Robert Shaw, noted choral director, has been selected as the recipient of the second University of Pennsylvania Glee Club Award of Merit.

The award and the accompanying citation will be presented to Shaw at the Annual Award of Merit Banquet on Friday evening, February 26, at the Annenberg School of Communications.

"Through his annual Award of Merit, the University of Pennsylvania Glee Club expresses its deep appreciation to those who have enriched the literature of contemporary male choral music," according to the invitation sent out by the group.

Robert Shaw was selected as the recipient of this year's award because of his "distinguished contribution to cultural life in America, his enrichment of choral literature and his enhancement of its place in contemporary music," said Bruce Montgomery, the Director of the Glee Club.

Other reasons for Shaw's selection were his conspicuous diplomatic achievements— he has done "outstanding" work for the State Department and was the first person to conduct sacred music behind the Iron Curtain, for which he received a standing ovation from his audience. He is also an excellent teacher and "master of his craft."

"Through concerts and recorded performances, the Robert Shaw Chorale has elevated choral music to a height and popularity unparalleled in modern music history."

In addition to directing his chorale, Shaw is a composer, an arranger and associate conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra.

Shaw will fly in Friday to receive the award and will return to Cleveland on Saturday. Last year's recipient of the award was Randall Thompson.

Penn's squash team recovered from a mid-season slump in time to win a powerful Navy squad, 1-7, last Friday. A win for the Quakers this Saturday at Dartmouth could give them the number-three spot in the national rankings.

The Penn quakers, 7-2, needed almost a week to regain their spirit after they dropped a close 3-4 decision to undefeated Princeton. The team traveled in the absence of its coach, Maestro John Sanders. After their open- ing 27-8 victory over Harvard, the Quakers were practically unbeatable, with several players set to break out of their shells before the end of the season.
