Philippine's night life is confined past about to Locust and 15th Sts., where everything from jazz to rock 'n roll is featured.

Tonight is the last night that "Dralt the Cat!" will be in town. From reliable sources, the box office at the Shubert will give you two tickets for the price of one.

Phyllis Diller and Jerry Vale will be at the Latin Casino, Route 70, Cherry Hill, N.J., good show, but expensive.

Curtis Potter will swing out on the Showbeat, Broad and Lombard St. (33 head cover charge), while Bill Basla is featured at Pep's, 24th and South St.

Next bets in the movies are "Darling" at the Arcadia, 10th and Chestnut St., and "The Pinkie" at the Lone, North Broad and 67th Ave.

The Philadelphia Orchestra is presented in concert tonight at the Academy of Music. Broad and Locust St. This evening's program includes Weber's Overture to "Rienzi," and Diamond's Elegies for Flute, English Horn and Strings. Murray Paulus is the featured flutist and Lewis Bernstein is solo English Horn in Dutilleux's "Ballet Suite from "Le Loup"" by Brahms. Symphony Number 1 in C Minor, Op. 68.

"Symposium of the Living Art," sponsored by the Houston Hill Board, presents "Cavatina to the General," tonight at 8:30 at Irvine Auditorium. The production stars Richard Grey and Mary Lovelace.

The Royal Marines Tattoo, a huge British military spectacle featuring two Royal Marine Drum corps, with pipes, drums, and drummers of the Scots Guards and Royal Scots Greys, will be held at Convention Hall tonight and tomorrow night.

Music of India will be the theme of a recital to be given Monday at 8:30 p.m., at Irvine Auditorium. Ali Akbar Khan, master musician of India, will present music for the Sarod, accompanied by tabla and Tam-tams. He is known in India as the State Musician of Jodhpur.

The Berlin Art Show, a huge three-part exhibition of both professional and student works, is being presented at the Commercial Museum, Broad and Chestnut Square and the Second Fret, 1506 Sansom St.

So whatever your taste, there's an eating house somewhere in Philadelphia to fill the bill.

Quakers Test New Pass Attack

In Today's Contest With Lehigh

By STEVE SARSHIK

PENN's crew of talented sophomores and the Quakers' new wing T passing attack will receive their first major test this afternoon when Pennsylvania meets Lehigh in the Franklin Field opener.

Coach Bob Odell is expected to use two sophomores in his starting line-up, and newcomer Bill McGill may see considerable action if tailback Bruce Molloy is hampered by his recent shoulder injury. Sophomore Pete Wisniewski, who has been a big surprise in the pre-season scrimmages will be the starting Quaker signal caller, and classmate Rick Owens, the speedster from Audubon, New Jersey, will be at the wingback position.

New Attack

Besides the vast array of new faces, the Quakers will unveil a new, wide-open passing attack. The old single wing, which has been Penn's basic offensive alignment for the past five years, will be replaced by the Wing T.

The Quakers will operate with a quarterback directly behind the center, and the tailback and fullback will line up two yards deep in the backfield. The wingback will be flanked to both sides and will be used as both a running back and a pass receiver. Pete Wisniewski is expected to see the ball in the air 20 to 30 times a game, "Quarterback Pete Wisniewski will do most of the passing on the roll out or 'sprint out' plays," Wisniewski's primary receivers will be wideouts Steve West and Bill Workman and wingback Rick Owens.

The Quakers will balance the offense with a strong running attack led by seniors Whit Smith and Bruce Molloy. Smith, one of the best all-around players on the squad, will be the only Penn starter to play both offense and defense. Bruce Molloy was first team All Ivy in his junior year and the league's top passer with a 26.1 average. The star tailback has been slowed in recent weeks by a shoulder injury, but he should be sufficiently recovered to play a major part in the Quaker offense.

Although the offensive line lacks size and speed, the coaching staff has molded the front wall into a well-conditioned, determined unit. Tom White, Jerry Brady, Henry Smith, and Pete Herwick will have the job of protecting the passer and opening holes in the line for the Quaker runners.

Pen's Defense

Penn's defensive unit will use a 5-4 or Oklahoma alignment with two men in the safety positions. The linebackers will be led by team captains Jackie Hemans, the Quaker leader who has been assisted by Jerry Petrasko, John Martinozzi, and Bill Seitz. The defensive secondary has been welded into a tight, efficient unit and the Quaker defense has been a big part in the Penn crew of talented sophomores and the Quakers' new wing T passing attack will receive their first major test this afternoon when Pennsylvania meets Lehigh in the Franklin Field opener.

Well Conditioned Tec.

Odell came to Penn after a successful career at Bucknell, and is now attempting to build the same type of powerful teams there. Odell-trained teams go into each season as the University community just naturally could extend that far.

But no matter how you slice it, all the answers to all the questions are not going to be forthcoming unless people once again feel a growing confidence in Penn football, and they are going to want to be as many games as possible. As a result, the D.P. is reviving the weekend edition of the paper that not only told them what to look for during the game, but also what to do around town after the game ended.

These editions served several purposes, not the least of which was to demonstrate to the normally lethargic ranks of Pennsylvania gridmen.

As far as the game today, here are a few things to look for out Well Conditioned Tec.
