CampusGroups Unite History Prof. ICR Director Clash Over Classified Research

Report Projects and Reports Secret?

Two University faculty members gave conflicting viewpoints yesterday concerning the nature of the research at the Institute for Cooperative Research (ICR).

Dr. Gabriel Kolko, associate professor of history, told the Daily Pennsylvania yesterday that ICR is definitely carrying on classified research. He said he learned this during conversations with Dr. Carl C. Chambers, director of ICR, and Dr. Kurt Krueger, project director of ICR projects Spicerack and Summit.

Dr. Chambers denied that ICR research is itself classified. He said that several of the projects draw upon classified background material, but, "If you talk about what is actually deduced, then the scholarly work can be reviewed."

Dr. Kolko claimed that he spoke with Dr. Krueger on Sept. 29, and with Dr. Chambers on Sept. 30, and Oct. 4. During those conversations he said, "I was repeatedly told that there was no classified material involved."

Dr. Kolko said he learned there "are activities which cannot be reported" because of their classified nature.

Dr. Chambers confirmed that he had spoken with Dr. Kolko, but said he told him that the term "classified" was ambiguous. Some ICR reports may contain classified material, he said.

Several students and faculty members, including Dr. Julius Winkel, chairman of the Faculty Research, said they do not know exactly what ICR does and whether or not it is classified.

The Pennsylvania Universities Council on Problems of War and Peace will sponsor a public symposium at Princeton to be held Saturday, at the Bellevue Hotel.

According to Dr. Robert Rutman, Associate professor of chemistry, who is in Council and coordinator of the event, the symposium will be the equivalent of a community teaching day in on campus.

The activities will kick off at 1:00 p.m. Sunday at Phi Kappa Sigma house, 3329 Locust Street. He added that he and Dupont are looking for volunteers from undergraduate organizations, faculty and graduate students.

The cards will go on sale at two cents each in fraternity houses late Friday afternoon and in

Mock Funeral to be Held, Regroup At Lawrenceville Motorcade to Tigertown Set for Tomorrow

A tentative schedule of events for tomorrow's "March on Princeton" has been released by Jerry Riffkin, planning coordinator for the unprecedented event.

Plans call for a pre-try-out pep rally in Franklin Field and a automobile procession and march to be held in Franklin Field. The "body" of the "dead Tiger" will arrive in a flower hearse and be carried in by six potent bearers, each dressed in the traditional formal style.

The funeral should last 20-30 minutes and will include short eulogies by such campus personalities as Bob Rittenberg, Sports Editor of the Daily Pennsylvania.

Final directions for the rest of the day's activities will be announced at that time.

After the "funeral" is over, the rally will disband and, with a sound truck, the bearing and a limousine in the lead, start north to a rendezvous point in Lawrenceville.

Riffkin explained the change from the earlier announced plan to travel directly to the Princeton campus itself.

"We felt that there wasn't enough to ask students to travel to Princeton, " he said. "We hope to make this part of the trip as enjoyable as possible."
University will Extend Summer Job Placement

Arthur J. Letcher, director of the University placement office, stated yesterday that despite the extension of the summer months, the University will extend the office’s summer job service. Letcher added that there was no conflict between his office and the Placement Department, which is responsible for students’ summer employment services. These recommendations were incorporated in the Daily Pennsylvania yesterday.

Letcher recommended that the University have a full-time employee to handle the summer employment services. He added that when jobs like these are available, the number is small.

In conclusion, Letcher said that it is necessary to give more publicity to the service, which is restricted for security reasons.

Vietnam Rally Planned

On Saturday, October 26th, the Vietnamese Rally for Peace, the Young Socialist Alliance, and the Young Americans for Freedom, will meet with the other groups at Independence Hall from 9 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. Voting will be done on paper ballots which occurred in yesterday’s edition.

Such information is available in abbreviated form in the University’s annual report, copies of which are in Van Pelt Library (call number QRB 745 PC 15).

Test Of Classification

Dr. Kolko noted that the test of classification is whether the results of research are freely available for study and review. He asked where members of the University community may obtain ICR reports on such topics as air-to-air missiles, interference and jamming systems, problems of air turbulence for low flying aircraft, and reports on chemical and biological weapons systems.

Summit Described

Project Summit is described in the 1959-60 report as having the over-all objective of studying the "feasibility and desirability of using non-lethal biological and chemical agents in specified warfare situations." A sub-project of Summit, Project Waap, has, according to the 1960-61 report, a twofold purpose: 1) to obtain guidance from the U.S. Continental Army Command (CONARC) to the operational utility of certain concepts of biological and chemical defense systems; and 2) to provide CONARC, which might become involved with such systems, with detailed information which could be made available to them by the Chemical Corps.

ARCADIA - "Darling" is a darling of a motion picture about a young girl who becomes a star. She is the delight of the jet-set world she has conquered. - Back to the future.

FOX - "A Rage to Live!" is a boring movie about a high society girl who gets the urge to merge. - The film's pacing and character development are weak.

GOLDMAN - "Ship of Fools" zeroes in on the fate of a ship's passengers and the fate of a German passenger ship. - A fascinating historical drama.

LANCE L. "The Panshow" is a masterpiece of visual storytelling, mainly due to the performance of American author's brother. - The film is a must-see for anyone interested in visual storytelling.

MIDTOWN - "The Sound of Music." Movie version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein Broadway show stars academically gifted schoolchildren and Christopher Plummer. - A musical delight for all ages.

GREEN BILL - "Bottle to the Core!" is one of those wacky English comedies that has been imported into the States. - The film is a silly and delightful romp.

RANDOLPH - "Bunny Lake Is Missing," Ohm Preminger melodrama that lacks in almost every department except acting. - The film is a disappointment.

STANTON - "Marriage on the Rocks." The typically slick Hollywood comedy asks the question: "What is Frank Sinatra or Dean Martin?" - A classic of Hollywood comedy.

When a beautiful girl sings the blues, how do you lower the temperature?

There's no insulating yourself against a girl singing soulfully about love gone astray. You're going to be seared. All you can do is try to lower the heat.

In New York's Negro communities, where you'll hear some of the hottest blues anywhere, people usually cool things off with a Rheingold.

And the same thing happens among New York City's Greeks and Italians and French. After they hear their own brand of searing love song, they usually cool off with a Rheingold.

The fact is that in New York City, where there are more kinds of people than in any other city in the world, more people drink Rheingold Extra Dry Beer than any other beer.

Why do so many different people pick one beer, Rheingold? We don't know. But we must be doing something right. Rheingold

Last weekend, October 16 and 17, the University of Pennsylvania sailing team scored a first in the annals of college sailing.

At the University of Michigan Memorial Regatta, held at the University of Michigan, the Penn team scored 146 points, enough to win the highly coveted Robert Cary - Allen Price Memorial Bowl.

What makes this victory so notable is that this Penn team is the first Eastern team in history to win the trophy, besides the University of Michigan. In fact, Michigan was the only team close to Penn at the Regatta, scoring 139 points to Penn's 146.

The team's victory will produce various repercussions. First, Penn must attend the Sugar Bowl Regatta in New Orleans this December, which is considered to be the second most important regatta of the Mid-west fall season. Of course, all this good fortune does not prevent problems from cropping up. Penn must return to Ann Arbor next year to defend its trophy. This takes Money, which the team does not have an excess of at present.

The justifiably proud men who sailed Penn into the history books are: Raymond Munech, John Hamilton, Leonard Hendrickson, and Gerald Miller. Munech, who took 6th place in 9 starts, won a trophy for being high- point man for the entire regatta. Hendrickson was high-point man for his division, scoring 68 points one less than Munech.

In another important and prestigious sailing meet held last weekend, the University of Pennsylvania team placed third in the Pennsylvania and Southern Area Championships, held at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland. Ten teams vied for the Rudolf F. Vogeler Trophy, and Navy came out on top with a score of 166, compared to Drexel's 143 and Penn's 137. The team consisted of Patrick Crowley, Jerry Doberty, Franklin Oyeran, Michael Shafman, and Patrick Hendricksen. They took five first places out of twelve races to take part in, and never finished below fourth. The third place finish of the team has qualified it for the Ic War Memorial Regatta, which will be held at the Naval Academic in late November.

Coming up shortly is the Mc Millan Cup, which Penn has never won. This year's sailing crew looks like it will give the other teams a run for the trophy.
The Quakers travel to Princeton this weekend to meet the Ivy League in what must be considered the "grudge match" of the year. One short year ago, the Orange and Black, on their way to the Ivy championship, humiliated the Red and Blue to the tune of 56-5 in Franklin Field. But times have changed. The team that lost 56-5 a short season before the Tiger contest while this year's contours boasts a 5-2 slate.

Gogolak and Landeck Challenge Penn Defense As Orange and Black Host Quakers Saturday

DAVE SACHS

The Quakers are hungry for victory. Last year's team knew they would lose to Princeton. This year, the Quakers are hungry for a win. Bob Odell fondly remembers his 1943 47-9 victory over the Orange in Franklin Field. Walter Smedley, was hurt by a tackle against two of the finest linemen in the nation, Tiger captain Paul Savidge and All-American Ike Maliszewski. Can Savidge and Maliszewski be stopped? The biggest question mark at Palmer Stadium will be the Quaker defense offensively strong from a running game to a wide open attack. Princeton's cornet is as low as Princeton's 36-27 victory over Cornell as the senior tailback rushed and passed for a total of 238 yards. The Red and Blue "batch" defense will face its toughest test against the Tigers. Thus far this season, the defense has pulled victory from defeat through a series of goal line stands. A goal line stand will be the test against Gogolak's fantastic foot.

Tiger Territory

The defense will have to keep the Tigers in their own territory if the Quakers are to pull the biggest of all upsets. Once again, a chance will be left to the defensive backfield whose task it will be to stop Landeck's passing attack. Red and Blue defensive backs, Tom Oeken, Bill Laurence, and Paul Woody, have done it before and hopefully will be able to do it again. They have scored on their own territory with a four yard run as interceptions per game and were responsible for a number of Quaker touchdowns. The Penn line holds against the biggest line in the Ivy, the 238 pounds of Tom Owen, Tom Laurence, and Bill McGill. Even with "at the line" and "the five hole" and "the back door," we could have scored more.

Last year's team knew they would lose to Princeton. This year, the Quakers are hungry for victory. But Princeton is hungry too. Hungry to win on Homecoming and seven veterans to Princeton tomorrow, and as in the football rivalry, the game means much to the Quakers. Princeton is 3-1, but by the looks of their record, they have a good chance. The Quakers are 2-2-1 overall mark in the 11:30 contest. The Quakers were coached by John Steinman, who never before Princeton, while Bob Odell fondly remembers his 1943 47-9 victory over the Orange and Blue.

The Tigers were disgraced in the Ivy opener, losing to cellar-dweller Columbia. Since then the Quakers have tied Cornell, but are still winless in league competition.

The strongest point for the yearlings thus far has been their defense, a combination of rugged players and tough tackling. Particularly effective have been Bandi and Steve Johnson. Red and Blue defensive ends, Coach Ken Willsey expects a sagging attack from Princeton, and thus "the boys have been working on keeping the plays to a minimum.

Offensively, the Quakers will start Harry Wright and Jim McPhail at the halfback slot, George Burell and Bill McGill at wing end with his driving plunges and Albert Adams at fullback. The Quakers have to hold the fullback position. In addition, Wright will continue to handle the kicking chores, a task he handles with varsity-like precision.

The game strategy calls for a mixture of passing and running. "To keep them honest," in Miller's words. "We found last game that we moved consistently on the ground, but nevertheless we were throwing many passes," he continued.

Harry injured

The Quackers will be without the services of middle guard Tom Hamlin, who sustained a finger dislocation, will be at almost peak condition for today's game but will not play this season. The Quaker touchdowns. Coach Ken Miller says, "We made a number of mistakes; we could have scored at least two touchdowns more."

To beef up his line, coach Ken Miller has been alternating quarterbacks Bob Newton and George Burrell, both of whom have handled the fullback positions against the Leopards, Roger Lipikis, who saw limited action, may also be tried at the helm spot. Defense Strong
