PSG Passes Court Proviso of Constitution

The Provisional Student Government last night passed part of the judicial section of the proposed new constitution dealing with the appointment and impeachment of judges. Student members of the original jurisdiction because this proposal did not maintain a quorum.

One Year Terms

After debate the assembly formally approved a provision to appoint judges during the term of the University for one year beginning the following January.

Judges will be appointed by the President with a two-thirds majority of the legislature occurring. Originally, the constitution called for a simple-majority concurrence. However, five members of the assembly favored a one year term, but this was defeated.

Impeachment Proceedings

The PSG agreed that a two-thirds vote by the judiciary would be required to impeach a judge, and a simple-majority vote by the legislature would be required to impeach a judge. Both changes were accepted.

Admissions Reach Record High; Applications Up 6% Over 1965

By SAMUEL BETTSIAK

Pennsylvania will admit next September an all-time high of 7,176 students, an increase from last year's 7,046 enrollments, Dean of Admissions William G. Owens announced. A record number of 75 Negroes were accepted of which 40 are expected to enter in September, he added. A significant increase in Negro admissions was also noted in most of the other Ivy schools.

The class of 1970 will number 1,225 from an increasing number of college applicants. The other four schools have made it a public policy, Owens reported, and to increase their freshman class for fear of jeopardizing their academic standards, he said.

He affirmed that Pennsylvania continued to be the school which is steadily increasing its student body to meet the rising number of college applicants. Area, University Peace Groups Protest Vietnam War

The University and Philadelphia Area Committees to End the War in Vietnam joined the Women Strike for Peace and the Young Socialist Alliance in a protest march in Philadelphia's 14th Street Shopping District. The demonstration was one of the many in the nation to protest the Vietnam War.

Dr. W. Alix Rickett, one of several speakers participating in weekend Conferences on the Peace of University Museum, said that China's purported fear of U.S. aggression was a device for leaders "for their own purposes" of improved relations with China.

"Our concern, he stated, is how they pursue this status," he said. Dr. Murphy criticized American policy as "too often a response to Chinese initiative." He suggested a "creative" policy with the U.S. using its economic and political, as well as its military influence to manipulate China's "external" environment.

Over Red China in Vietnam

Whether the Communist Chinese would eagerly plunge into or fearfully stay out of the Vietnam war was a large bone of contention between Liu Chih, Nationalist Chinese Ambassador to the U.N., and Fidel Castro, and author familiar with Red China, at the Saturday evening. In Greene's view, the Chinese Communists are convinced they could beat the U.S. in an Asian land war. In talks with Chinese leaders, Greene says he finds them willing to join the Vietnam fray if any of three conditions arise:

First, if China's cities or nuclear installations were bombarded.

Second, if the U.S. forces went north of the 17th parallel into North Vietnam.

Third, if the Vietcong appeared to be losing the war. With a huge army and a 100-million man military, Greene says, the Chinese are supremely confident of any Asian war with the U.S.

Rickett Scores China Hawks

By WILLIAM BURCHILL

Communist China's nationalistic stance on anti-American influences and present internal problems than from an immediate desire to control Asia, Dr. W. Alix Rickett, Penn- sylvania associate professor of Chinese studies said Friday.

The Symposium took place before approximately 400 people in the University Museum Auditorium. It was sponsored by the International Students Association and the College Council for the United Nations, Mylas Keffer and William F. Meldred were co-chairmen of the Conference.

Stating that the intense military action urged by many Americans in the 1960's and '70's against the Soviet Union predicted that the same will prove true of present demands that the United States take drastic measures against Red China.

"A policy such as the world population crisis would be a better focus for American energies than is the isolation and containment of Communist China," he concluded.

Another conference speaker, Dr. Donald Westerheide, of the University of Michigan, International Studies at the University of South Carolina, disagreed with Dr. Rickett's opinion of America's Asian role. He denied that Soviet Asia should naturally be included in the Chinese sphere of influence.

Dr. Westerheide also asserted that American anti-Communist Chinese leaders, Greene says he finds them willing to join the Vietnam fray if any of the three conditions arise:

First, if China's cities or nuclear installations were bombarded.

Second, if the U.S. forces went north of the 17th parallel into North Vietnam.

Third, if the Vietcong appeared to be losing the war. With a huge army and a 100-million man military, Greene says, the Chinese are supremely confident of any Asian war with the U.S.

Candidate Shapp to Discuss Free Higher Education

Milton Shapp, candidate for the Pennsylvania Democratic gubernatorial nomination, will speak today at 4 p.m. in West Loew's of Roosevelt Hall.

Shapp, a Philadelphia businessman, is expected to discuss his program to provide free higher education to all high school graduates within the state who desire additional schooling, whether in the two-year community college, four-year college, or vocational level.

The lecture may also include his views on the proposed Pennsylvania-New York Central Railroad road merger, which he has threatened to oppose in court, as a threat to Pennsylvania's economy, and a violation of the rights of the State's workers.

Glen Jacobs, co-chairman of the Shapp Corps, a student organization which is sponsoring the lecture, noted that Shapp's purpose in running for Governor is to force an open Democratic primary. He wants to prevent the representatives of the State Democratic Organization from personally dictating the selection of a candidate, he said.

A resident of Montgomery County, Shapp served until January of this year as president of the Jerold Corporation, an electronics firm which he founded in 1940. He is a 1942 graduate of Case Institute of Technology with a degree in electrical engineering.

Shapp, who is credited with being the leader of the Shapp Corps to the late President Kennedy in 1960, is, in the opinion of the Corps consultant to the Shapp Corporation. He is a former president of the Greater Philadelphia Chapter of the American Jewish Congress, and has been chairman of the City's ManpowerUtilization Commission. He has also served as the Governor's Committee of 100 for Education.

In 1963 Shapp became the first businessman to be recognized by the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO, when he received their annual Good Citizenship Award.

Asian nations, all of which face the problems of war, poverty, and such American intervention, he said, would be met by the Chinese efforts to isolate the U.S. and to force their influence on neighboring countries through the encouragement of underground "national liberation movements".

Communist China, according to Ambassador Rickett of the United States government, will believe in peaceful coexistence, but considers such a policy only with nations free from imperialism and neo-colonialism.

Dr. Edmund Clubb, Columbia University Professor of Far Eastern Studies, called the Chinese Communists "more Chinese than Communist," and said they are guided by the same desires for power and suspicion of the West that have always influenced the Chinese.

Ambassador Liu disagreed in his afternoon address. Noting that "when the experts agree, they're wrong", Liu maintained that the Chinese Reds are paper tigers and wouldn't conquer the U.S.

Chinese foreign policy, continued Liu, has been a miserable failure. All over the world they are being expelled and their influence waned away. For this reason, Liu foresaw a greater margin of defeat for the upcoming attempt to get the Reds into the U.N., than the 47-47 tie vote of 1965.

Admissions Reach Record

"We've had a population of students in the last four years of about 75,000," said the academic criteria for consideration for admission to the Pennsylvania State University. "It is estimated that the number of applicants will be at least 50,000 this year." The admissions office of the University has been working overtime to get the applications processed before the start of the fall semester.

"Because of the large number of applicants," Dr. Edward Olson, dean of admissions, said "competition for admission is increasing dramatically."
Constitution Round: 3

A funny thing happened to half the members of the Provisional Student Government on their way to last night's meeting. They never made it.

Because of complete indifference and the elected representatives' lack of interest, nobody bothered to show up at the informal session to evaluate and discuss the report of the government constitution. About one-half of those who did attend left in the middle of the meeting before the government began its discussion of the provisions of the new districting system, to be completely unsatis- factory. Fortunately, most of the representatives in the government are able to maintain a more mature and responsible attitude.

Now the only danger appears to be apathy. Perhaps if the new districting system does go into effect, it will remove some of the party consideration of the student government. The members of the student government are not bothered to appear at the student government's meetings, and they don't bother to show up at the student government's meetings to defend the interests of those students they represent.

There is another constitutional meeting scheduled this week in order to consider all things happen to the PFG representatives on their way to last night's meeting. They never made it.

Paddle Your Own Canoe

"This guy's a real wimp with you, and he has an overpowering urge to drill a hole in the bottom. Are you going to let him, or are you going to chew him overboard? It's the same with obeying the law. You've got to be a man, and help us with the problem, just as they are doing."

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey presented this analogy to Dartmouth men last week. He was urging them to follow the example of a good student leader's failure to perform his elected duties.

The mystery and glamour that has surrounded Oscar for the past forty years can not be denied by even its most severe critics.

The question asked by many is, does Oscar serve a purpose in human history? Is it merely a means to an end or is it only a lubricant for keeping the publicity mills working at fever pitch? This question seemingly has no answer for Oscar is notorious in passing up the most famous and most successful.

We only have to look at the people that have never won an Oscar to marvel that the award carries any prestige worth mentioning.

Names like Garbo, Chaplin and Griffith have never received the accolades on Oscar winners.

Oscar is meaningless yet held in awe, disregarded yet respected, in predictable yet erratic.

One thing certainly does not do it give the whole motion picture industry a boost in status, for it demonstrates that prestige one night of the year Hollywood pretends to be concerned with the public.

Having looked at the Best Picture, Best Director and Best Actress awards let us move on to the Best Performance by an Actor as a supporting role.

Marvin Rollet Out

Lee Marvin must be ruled out, even though he gave more than a commendable performance, because, as we said before, the Academy generally ignores on comedy roles. Burton and Werner were good, but not the best. Olivier shouldn't even be nominated at all. That leaves Rod Steiger in his unforgettable portrayal of "The Pawnbroker." I wouldn't be surprised if the Academy got around to giving him an Oscar.

In the "best performance by an actor in a supporting role category, our choice is Tom Courtenay in "Doctor Zhivago."

As for the "originality" that Hershey decries with his individual responsibility each student feels for his own education is a problem that draft officials are just beginning to realize.

They have sent Wetzler and Graham to try and help us with the problem, just as they are doing.

Drift officers have been long eyeing college students suspiciously because of the predominant deferment system. Wetzler and Graham would only be a part of this, just as a hint of a hint of something about a student leader's failure to perform his elected duties.

"Callow Day" was created in the spring of 1947, in honor of the coaching debut of the finest football coach, Rusty Callow. In 1947, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job. In 1948, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job. In 1949, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job. In 1950, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job. In 1951, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job. In 1952, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job. In 1953, Callow left Penn for a more lucrative coaching job.

"Callow Day" was quickly understood as 'Skimmer'.

The tradition of a spring crew weekend, hon- orized by university tradition before "Callow Day" was formally established.

In the spring of the late twenties, Penn was the crew coach of the world champion crew. Quakember before it does any of the other Ivy ligates, the ends of the ancient night in the City of Brotherly Love.

Prohibition Reinstated

Prohibition was the law of the land, and Phila- delphia under the rule of police chief Anthony T. McTavish, was one of the dreary cities in the country.

Police chief McTavish set at his personal goal, what he called "the cleaning up of that center of sin" the Penn campus. Throughout Prohibition, Penn had remained "wet," with whiskies being smuggled in from as far as New York, as far as Paris, France.

McTavish raided the fraternity houses so frequently, one winter, that the Greeks were forced to move to the more legal ground of the Ivy league campus. However, they never came back. McTavish had vowed that nothing was going to make him drink a drink in a bar. The same situation existed in the spring of the Ivy league campus headquarters was held in New York weeks before the spring crew weekend was to be held. At this meeting the Committee Against Maileast Prohibition (CAM) was formed with the purpose of bringing liquid joy to Penners' spring weekend.

CAM had little difficulty smuggling the boozes into Philadelphia. It went unreported, just as drunk truck in New York, Hilke, Lambros 88, and driven to Philadelphia, 88, and drove straight to Philadelphia with out a hitch.

The problem now was how to get the beer to the crew members. That leaves Rod Marvin for "Cat Ballou," Abby Mann for "Ship of Fools," Stanley Mann and John Kohn for "For Doctor Zhivago." The members of CAM were students.

They spent many nights in delivery, seeking beer for the crew. They would deliver the beer to the crew in the middle of the street.

Initially, Gilbert (Lance Log Loyalty in Cornell) was quite interested in the beer, he accidently broke the head off his case and discovered it was a gift.

"We can put a boozie in cans," he said, a gift he received before he passed out from an overdose of "inspiration."

And so it was done. Five thousand hollow cases, with twist off tops, were purchased, filled from the truck, and sold to the University community.

Skimmer Hats

The members of CAM and their assistants decided to wear Skimmer hats with red and blue ballhats, in order to quickly identify the crew. By the day of the crew race itself, everybody had obtained Skimmer hats in order to demonstrate support for Camp, McTavish died, ten years latter, that he had been tricked until many years later. At the crew race itself, what had been unofficially called "Skimmers," McCravish had been presented a Penn crew card with no show of no feeling. When this case finally broke, McTavish discovered a note inside, which made him an honor- ary number "by good standing" of CAM, and explained how he had been tricked in many years. Most of all, it was a gift to his heart.

And so Case and Skimmer hat are with us to this very day although the reason for their inception had been long since forgotten. CAM had dis- solved itself, and the beer is now in a can, having been preserved for many years in the Pennsylvania State Police's Special Events organization. It is interesting to note that in 1952, the crew "skimmer" was proposed by one Gilbert Purty III.

ROOMMATES REVISITED

This morning’s mail brought a letter from a student at a prominent Western university (Princeton). “Dear Sir,” he writes, “in a recent column you said it was possible to get along with your roommate if you try hard enough. Well, I’d like to see anyone get along with my roommate! Mervis Trunz (for that is his name) practices the art of evading light in ways unknown to man, and collects airplane tires. I have tried everything I can with Mervis, but nothing works. Now I am desperate.” (Signed) Desperate

Have you, dear Desperate, really tried everything? Have you, for example, tried a measure so simple, so obvious, that it is easy to overlook? For instance, have you offered to share your Personna® Super Stainless Steel Blades with Mervis Trunz?

To have a friend, dear Desperate, you must be a friend.

And what could be more friendly than sharing the bounty of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades? Who, upon entering your Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades? Who, upon entering your room, would not feel honored to know that your room is home to the person who owns Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades? And what could be more friendly than sharing the bounty of Personna Super Stainless Steel Blades with Mervis Trunz?

No, dear Desperate, your problem with Mervis Trunz is far from insoluble. In fact, as roommate problems go, it is pretty small potatoes. Compare it, for example, to the classic case of Basil Metabolism and E. Pluribus Ewbank.

Basil and E. Pluribus, roommates at a prominent Eastern University (Oregon) were at an impassable impasse. Basil could study only late at night, and E. Pluribus could not stay awake past nine p.m. If Basil kept the lights on, E. Pluribus was able to catch up with his classmates, waiting to shake the Dean’s hand. At last his turn came, and E. Pluribus, full of strength and vigor, showed up at the Dean’s tea. He was so vibrant and alive that all five of the Dean’s knuckles were permanently fused.

It must be admitted, however, that this ingenious solution had some unexpected sequelae. Basil got so enchanted with his miner’s cap that he switched his major from 18th Century poetry to mining and metallurgy. Shortly after graduation he had what appeared to be a great stroke of luck: while out prospecting, he discovered what is without question the world’s largest feldspar mine. This might have made Basil very rich except that nobody, alas, has yet discovered a use for feldspar.

Today E. Pluribus, a broken man, is paying off his debt by collecting airplane tires. I have tried everything I can with Mervis Trunz, but nothing works. I am desperate, (signed) Desperate

To have a friend, dear Desperate, you must be a friend.

Baseball Team Splits Two first and second with two out. But John Kelchner fanned against the EB3L. In Friday's mannan of Eastern Baptists, Penn coach Bob Murray used three pitchers while Bench Murray and Chuck Shields led Quaker batters to an 11 run outburst. Senior Ward Basing hurled the first five frames and fought against the score picked up the win, while sophis Marc Shenfield (2 innings) and Ed Higgin (1 inning) wrapped up Penn's first subsitute.

Tennis Team Falls to Dartmouth; Golf Splits

In a series of close matches, Dartmouth defeated Penn's varsity tennis team 5-4 Saturday at the Palestra courts.

The big match of the day, for both the Penn team and the more than 100 fans at the Palestra courts was the first singles match between Charlie Broecker and Penn's Clay Hamlin.

Hamlin, playing on a bad ankle that continually hampered his movements, lost in two sets, 11-3 and 1-4.

It was a heartbreakers loss for Hamlin. The Quaker captain had been undefeated in previous Penn competition, and despite the pain that he showed in his face, he had gone all out to defeat Hoevler. After the match, Hamlin shuffled away excusively, "It wasn't so much my ankle, I just wasn't playing well enough. And Hoevler is a real good player." No doubt Hoevler would have provided even a healthy Hamlin with a good match. But that loss was one that Hamlin could only play on what coach Al Molloy describes as "Clay's fierce competitive spirit."

The rest of the afternoon was just as disappointing for the Quakers. Ed Sweers, playing number two, Fred Lewis, number three, and Maurice Heckscher at number four, defeated their opponents, but Penn's five and six men, Fred George and Howard Cooley were edged out. That left the match score at 3-3 and everything up to the doubles. Hamlin and Sweers lost at first doubles, George and Lewis was at number three doubles. In the rubber match of the day, Heckscher and Cooley, playing number two doubles, fell 4-6, 5-7 and Penn walked away with its first loss of the year.

Penn's varsity linksters suffered their first defeat of the season Saturday when they fell to Army 5-2 at West Point. The Quakers did win their other two matches of the quadrangular match, edging Syracuse 4-3 and brushing Manhattan 7-0.

Fourth man Brent Areuni and fifth man Pete Humphrey were the only Quakers to get wins against Army. Areuni downed Dave Wilson 3 and 2 while co-captain Humphrey ousted Jim Kovart 2-up.

The match was much closer than the score indicated, as all the matches went at least six-seven holes before being decided. Number one man and co-captain in Arthur Kern turned in the best medal score of the Quakers with a 34-39-73 round.

One Under Par

His 34 going into the turn was one under par and at the time he was still one down to Army's Andy Nussbaum. That one hole also turned out to be Nussbaum's margin of victory.

Second man Jerry King was edged 3 and 2 by Army's Ron Johnson while third man Dave London lost to Fred McFarren 1-up in twenty holes. This match was finished in complete darkness.

In the sixth and seventh positions, Ted Lingenheld and Bruce Schlechter lost respectively to Bob Curtis 1-up and Jim Crowley 2-up. The losses brought the Quakers' season record to 7-1.

The Syracuse and Manhattan matches were not nearly as close, although Penn's homes against Syracuse were narrow defeats. In that match, Kern lost to Ted Till 1-up in 18 holes, London lost 1-up in 19 holes, and Lingenheld lost 2 and 1.

Conflicts due to Religious Holidays

Students who for religious reasons find it undesirable to take examinations scheduled on a religious holiday, or on a day of traditional religious observance, should as early as possible:

a. Inform the Instructor of the course involved and arrange for the examination at another time.

b. If the Instructor plans to use the Special Examination Period, the student must notify the Office of the Registrar, May 2, 1966, and indicate the course involved and the name of the Instructor.

All students who have been approved for the Special Examination Period must report to the Office of the Registrar by May 2, 1966. Each student will be notified of the time and location of the examinations.

All special examinations should be sent to the Office of the Registrar, 200 Logistics Hall, no later than Thursday, May 5, 1966. If examination books are required, please send a supply with the examinations.

The Special Examination Period has been established only for the two (2) conflicts listed above. Students with other reasons for conflicts must receive the same with the Departments involved and the School Office.

Penn Stickmen Bag First Ivy Win, Bomb Visiting Cantabs by 3-3 Score

By JIM RESTIVO

The Pennsylvania lacrosse team bagged their first victory in a grand style Saturday by bombarding Harvard 13-3.

Leading the Quakers to their win was high scoring Jim Patton, who tallied three times. Double scorers for Coach Avery Blake's stickmen were co-captain Dave Rabbitty, sophomore Irwin Klein, and attackman John Nutter.

Everyday clicking perfectly for Penn as its scoring machine was complemented nicely by the fine defensive play of Dick Drury, Richard Poflik, and Mike San Phillips who put constant pressure on Canaan star Ted Leon and his cohorts.

Rahilly opened Penn's offensive threat with a goal at 148 of the game and the Red and Blue went on to pour four more shots in the net in the opening quarter. By halftime, after scores by the Crimson's Steve Neubert and Larry Bellinger, the score was 5-2.

The Quakers continued to intimidate Harvard, which had come into Stewart Field with an impressive 4-2 log, in the second half. Scoring on fast breaks, screen shots, and unassisted tallies, the stickmen closed the game at 13-3.

Also on Saturday, the yearling lacrosse team was downed by Princeton, 15-6.

Penn Nine Splits Weekend Pair, Meets Lehigh Today at Home

By LARRY KRON

Penn's baseball team had no trouble in defeating a west-Eastern Baptist squad 11-0 on Friday, but the Quakers fell down Saturday against league opponent and former champion Brown, losing 3-2 on a pair of unearned runs. Penn returns to America's first home for a non-league clash with Lehigh.

In the second game, Penn fell behind early as the Bostonian pitcher had two hit three in the first inning and the Red and Blue scored three more runs in the seventh when Bruce Molloy scored on Shawn Smith's single and two walks to load the bases with two out in the fifth. Keeping the ball low, he got Don Jurer to hit a groundout to second, but when Pete Winnewel bobbled the bouncer and then threw wild to first, Brown scored twice and took the lead it never relinquished.

Penn led off the scoring with a run in the bottom of the third. For one out, Ralph Heffernan doubled to left, went to third on Klein's single to center and scored on Chief Murray's grounder to short. Brown, after taking the run lead in the fifth, added an insur- ing tally one inning later when Steve Kadison singled to center, advanced to third on Tim Skenderian's centerfield double and scored on Shawn Smith's single to left.

The Quakers came back in the seventh when Bruce Molloy cracked a left field double and Tom Harlowe drove him home with a clutch single to center.

The Indians received seven first place votes, while Prince- ton and Yale split the other bal- lot. No one was allowed to vote a team lower than third, although most of the trouble occurred. When they had the inside they would gain a length edge and then they would gain a length edge. But when we had the inside we would gain a length edge and stay with the course.

The JV shell lost by an 11-run margin and will be out of action at the end of the week.

The Big Red, the defending Eastern Champion and perennial lightweight power, once again combined speed and stamina and the course in a show of dominating the victors.

Cornell Beats Lightweights; Freshmen Lose by Inches

By BARRY JORDAN

Cornell University swept five lightweight crew races Saturday in a mile and 5/16 Cayuga regatta.

The Big Red, the defending Eastern Champion and perennial lightweight power, once again combined speed and stamina and the course in a show of dominating the victors.

The freshman shell came the closest to victory when they lost in a controversial decision by about 2/10 second. As the crews approached the last half mile they were even but the Red and Blue crossed the finish line 1/10 second apart and were just a definite winner and second freshman shell lost by about four seconds.

The varsity rowed one of their best races in several years but succumbed to a team that was "just too big and too strong" according to Captain Larry Walsh. They led the pair of way but went in at the end of the week.

The JV shell lost by eleven seconds and it also led during the early going. JV coxswain Sdul Berman explained the trouble the course had with the course. "It was on the inlet and it was narrow and tricky. There were two sharp bends that it was in where most of the trouble occurred. When they had the inside they would gain a length edge and then they would gain a length edge. But when we had the inside we would gain a length edge and stay with the course.

In total the crews rowed well but realized their goal was the bigger Illinois. Their next race is against Columbia and Yale and they will be out to avenge the Cornell loss.
