Henry Steele Commager to Speak About Limits of American Power

Historian Henry Steele Commager will speak on "The Limits of Power" in American foreign policy tonight at 8:15 in Irvine Auditorium.

Commager, professor of history at Amherst College, is expected to say "where this country's foreign policy has been unwise, with Vietnam being the most obvious example," according to James Rothschild, chairman of Commager's lecture committee.

Rothschild said Commager has called the current Vietnam war protest "too cheap" because of their "therapeutic effect," but has expressed doubt that the student protest activity will affect the present national leadership.

"I think there is a legitimate concern about our foreign policy, especially in the Middle East," Commager once said, adding that Commager "has no intention of re-entering the political sphere."

He said he would be "far too afraid to say what he thinks in his old age.

"I am not just concerned with being in the middle of the crowd," Commager, who recently testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has written over 20 volumes of scholarly comment on American life and thought, including a 50-volume series, "The Rise of the American Nation" which is now in progress.

A 1923 graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Commager took his advanced degrees there, and also studied at the University of Chicago, the University of New York, Columbia, Cambridge, and Oxford Universities, and served on the War Department Planning Board.

GUGGENHEIM WINNER
A recipient of the Guggenheim Award, Commager, has also received honorary doctorates from eleven colleges and universities in the past six years. His other books include "The Blue and the Gray," "The English Speaking Peoples" and "Chester Bowles' Conscience of a Generation.

Hartz to Leave Pennsylvania
For University of Virginia

Hartz was one of two art experts sent to Florence, Italy, by the U.S. Government after November's floods destroyed thousands of books and works of art.

He was a founder of the Committee to Rescue Italian Art, and was among a group of art experts in the lecture tour in support of the Committee's efforts to raise funds to recover the damaged art works.

PRAISE DP
The CRRA's efforts on behalf of the University was "grateful beyond words to the Daily Pennsylvanian," Hartz said in an interview with the Daily Pennsylvania.

"It is a damn good paper," he said. "It's a political party — to be defeated by the House."

Hartz added that a second bill calling for a tax credit for persons supporting children in elementary and secondary school will be introduced in the House this week by Brock.

The tax refund measure is opposed by Johnson Administration officials, who charge that a revenue loss of $600 million will be felt within the year, with a $1.3 billion loss by 1970. Commager is also leveled at the bill as "class legislation" favoring the higher income tax.

The Administration reportedly favors federal scholarships and loans. A bill passed earlier this year would provide another amendment — a one-dollar tax deduction for supporting a political party — to be defeated by the House.

"I think our involvement in Vietnam is very much in the national interest," Commager has said, adding that Commager "has no intention of re-entering the political sphere."

In the Heat of Summer

Mantua is a seamy, dirty, black ghetto several blocks north of Market St. and west of Philadelphia's Negroes, Mantua is known as The Bottom. Dilinquency rates, school drop-outs, crime, and welfare payments are all among the highest in the city.

And yet Mantua has in the past two years begun to experience a remarkable renewal. Rejuvenation is breaking the vicious circle of poverty.

The people of Mantua have raised a question to the substance of the proposed city planning program. This program, by prohibiting kids to make way for a science center, would be responsible for the destruction of Mantua.

The people of Mantua feel that the Science Center could yield nothing but tragedy during a long hot summer.

Letter to the Editor

Editor, The Daily Pennsylvanian:

The people of Mantua are right. The proposed programs are very harmful to the summer programs. Two proposals for community programs have been made, but a distinction must be made between the two. One, made by the Community Involvement Council, would establish a tutorial program at the University of Pennsylvania to help students from the University of Pennsylvania and only one other unidentified corporation, and the other proposal, presented by Human Resources Program Director Howard Mitchell, would create a program which would give students from Morgan State University in Baltimore a chance to work with children from deprived areas during the summer at or near the Science Center. Both will have to be decided upon by the people of Mantua, who are interested in community involvement. And both programs are being proposed by the University.

The people of Mantua therefore want a community meeting now in April, at the end of May, to discuss the City Planning program. There is a meeting of the Mantua residents, consult with them before proceeding any such projects, in which Mantua would face a wall of firm resistance, if not violence.

The people of Mantua were not for certain center for a science programs and a high school. The people there want places to live, a science center and moving all students.

THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN

At Rumbling Irvine

Musical Closes Season

By JUDSON BROWN

Irvine Auditorium had an up-set stomach Friday night. From deep in her bowels, there came at uneven intervals, sounds of grinding, distress. S o s o h , Mother Ugly was just not up for an evening of Musical Activities Night. But the groups participating in Musical Activities Night managed to get along, with the Glee Club and the Pennsyngers performing Randall Thompson's exquisite "Frostiana" (Robert Frost's poems set to music), and the University Dance Band being better medicine for grinding Irvine. Their sound was fantastic, but not good enough sound of the brand-new Penn-dings, a combination of ambition, Glee Clubbers and pretty Pennsylvanians. They sounded like the Mamas and the Papas singing inside a balloon.

NEATLY

The Pennsyngers, complete with new uniforms, sounded as they looked — neatly. They even took the Glee Club's "ever-popular" "Fun, Fun, Fun," back in the swing, the Penn Pipers sang their brand new "Lullaby of Broadway" and their very own imitation of the Beach Boy's screeching "Fun, Fun, Fun."

Now the bodies began to melt, the stage became, thanks to the efforts of the concert band, a chaotic chunk of energized humanity. They were as good as they were many, as they captured the essence of "Man of La Mancha." The audience was pleased.

Chile on Capeola was acquired last year. The Dodgers will still have Juan Marichal, who cannot be challenged by any other active ball player. With Marichal, there is no other ace who can come close. Marichal's big arm is not strong enough to miss strikes, and his fast ball is not strong enough to get batters out. Despite the traditional evenness of the National League, there is no other league that has the pitching ability of the Dodgers. The National League is not as strong as the American League, but it is still a good pitcher's league. The Dodgers will have a good chance to win the National League this year, and for the last umpteen years.

The hitting is already here. The home team has its weaknesses, but it has its strengths. They have a fine hitting lineup, with three new faces—on the left side of the infield, and two other guys. The outfield will be Willie Mays and the Cardinal's best hitter. In right is 1964 National League MVP John Cinnamon. Cinnamon fell to eleven four-baggers after leaving more than 20 out of the bassinet in both 1964 and 1965. A man with a golden arm, Cinnamon has done glasses and will be back to swatting for the fences.

The pitching is superb. Wally Wilt, and Dennis Ribant, two good veterans of the past, are now back in action. The bullpen, led by over-.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, according to the experts, will be the team to beat in the National League this year. The experts are not in agreement on whether the Giants will be a better team than the Dodgers. The guess is that the Dodgers will be the better team, mainly because of Davis. The Giants were not a joke anymore. This year, they're even more seriture as early season wins over the contending Highway Phillies.
