Illinois the key in topsy-turvy Presidential race; Clark bows in Pennsylvania as HHH takes East

Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Humphrey engaged in the furriest battle over national political history for the Presidency of the United States which still had not be elected to either one靠谱。

At the 11 o’clock, after Ohio and California were counted, Nixon had led by a slim margin in Texas and by a wider margin in Missouri. The Vice President held onto a slight lead in Illinois.

It appeared probable this morning that the contest would be thrown into the Senate of Representatives for the first time in 14 years.

Vice President Humphrey, in one of the most amazing comebacks of political history, managed to snatch the majority of both major states as New York, Pennsylvania, and Michigan.

In Wisconsin, a Democratic party candidate, was only able to capture a minority of the vote in Michigan, where he was led by a close margin in the state of Pennsylvania and was threatened by a narrow margin in the state of Missouri. The latter state had been considered a virtual sure thing for the Vice President.

Humphrey’s national strength became evident early in the evening as he managed to almost close the gap he and his running mate had once been slated to come near the figure of 20 percent both polls had predicted he would receive.

The state of Texas, as it was to be the case in the state of Michigan, was the last to come in. Humphrey gained about 90 percent of the vote in both states while Nixon received the margin of victory of 4.9 million votes. The Vice President was assured of the state of Texas, another one of the key states in the election.

However, Humphrey’s drive appeared at times to be strong enough to make the contest even in the state of Texas and to come near the margin of victory. Humphrey’s drive appeared at times to be strong enough to make the contest in the state of Texas and to come near the margin of victory.

The Vice President was led in both states, with the margin of victory in the state of Michigan being about 3 million votes.

As the election results began to come in, it became evident that the contest would be thrown into the Senate of Representatives for the first time in many years.

Nixon's showing was led almost entirely to the advantage of the Republican party in the state of Pennsylvania, which he carried by a majority of 3.5 million.

Humphrey’s showing in the state of Pennsylvania was led to the advantage of the Democratic party, which he carried by a margin of 3.5 million.

The Vice President was confined to the state of Michigan, where he carried the state by a margin of 3.5 million.

The state of Pennsylvania was disputed between the two candidates, with Humphrey gaining by a margin of 3.5 million.

In Michigan, Humphrey carried the state by a margin of 3.5 million.

In the state of Pennsylvania, Humphrey gained about 40 percent of the vote in the state of Michigan, where he received the margin of victory of 4.9 million votes.

In Michigan, Humphrey received the margin of victory of 4.9 million votes.

Re: Dow Recruiting

The world outside: Good Tuesday

By PHIL ARKOW

The crowd moved toward the grave in graver animation. For many, it was their first demonstration. Others, more used to the ritual, wore a more disinterested attitude. The young men were generally silent. They had never been men together, and expected to see each other only in the future. In fact, many of them were confused as to what exactly it was they were demonstrating. They saw the protest as a necessary correction of the campus. As a result of the letter, President Harnwell met with members of the Faculty Committee on Problems of War and Peace in an attempt to find a solution to a possible solution to Dow recruiting. The trial had ended in confusion. The murderer could not be named. The raised questions of self-defense in every package. But your varsity shreds. That's why you'll want to wear our nearly rip-proof Hai Karate

HHH hopes against hope

"If the election were held today, we wouldn't have a prayer." The Vice President stuck to the script in the early moments of his speech Wednesday morning.

Although heavily favored over Vice President Humphrey, Humphrey had a substantial lead in the national polls as of this writing. The New York Times presidential campaign poll, for example, showed Humphrey with a lead of 51 percent to Nixon's 42 percent. Yet the outcome of the election is by no means decided.

"I sure am," said Humphrey after casting his ballot early on election night. "My vote is in the ballot box."

The Vice President's career followed a pattern similar to that of his predecessor, Richard Nixon. Both men entered politics during the 1940s, and both rose to national prominence through their work as campaigning speakers. Humphrey was, but throughout the night the prospect that a Humphrey victory was a possibility was a relief to the candidates who had been coaxed to hope in hopelessly out of the running for the Democratic nomination.

But tributes and national victories have not satisfied Hubert Humphrey. His political career has not been as spectacular as that of Richard Nixon, yet Humphrey has remained true to the principles of his party. He is the first American president to be nominated for the presidency in the same year as the election, and he has always been true to his word of Tuesday evening, when he vowed he would not call a press conference, win or lose, either Tuesday night or Wednesday.

The national parties are talking like the Democratic and Republican conventions, with one exception: the Democratic party has not been as restrained and serious, by its press secretary, Herbert Klein, Nixon expressed his views on the most pressing issue of the campaign, the Vietnam war.

"This movement is highly exhausting," he shouted. "I have never satisfied Hubert Humphrey."

Professionalism at Grumman... is personal development programs

As a graduating engineer, how can you position yourself so that your career choices are constantly changing around you? The answer—get with a company where the opportunities are personal. At Grumman, we take a keen interest in seeing that our engineers and scientists develop to their fullest potential. We are sincerely interested in your personal professional development. This is one of the reasons we have invested in the Grumman Technical Development Program. This year's summer session will be the starting point for many of the engineers and scientists who will be contributing to the solutions of our engineering challenges. This is a two-week program designed to give you an exposure to Grumman operations which broadens your technical perspective. The program provides an opportunity to serve individuals in Business Systems, Engineering and Scientists financial assistance for graduate work in the state and abroad. The program will also provide an opportunity to develop your technical capabilities. The program has been carefully designed to ensure that you will develop a greater understanding of the engineering problems that are faced by Grumman. The program is designed to help you develop the skills and capabilities that you need to be successful in your job at Grumman. The program is designed to provide you with the knowledge and experience that you need to be a successful engineer at Grumman. Here, on the majestic plains of Long Island, the distinguished representatives of three great nations met to promote greater international harmony.

West Germany's delegate recommended the precision Mira-cord 620—an automatic turntable with the Elac 244 magnetic cartridge. His reasoning: the light touch pushbutton controls and flawless tracking of mono and stereo records.

Then, the English ambassador presented his case for the superb two-way EMI speaker systems. He cited their quality—unstrained and effortless, and their sense of presence and natural sound.

Finally, the American glowingly described the powerful 32-watt Benjamin Amplifier. It delivers more distortion-free power than any other stereo portable, he declared.

Amidst the verdure of Farmingdale, ancestral home of Benjamin, three nations met in a great cause advancing international harmony. The result is the Benjamin 1020 stereo portable. $229.50 With built-in FM stereo tuner $299.50 Other Benjamin stereocompacts from $329.50 Benjamin Electronic Sound Corp., Farmingdale, N.Y. 11735 (Available in Canada)

Boots face fine Drexel defense; NCAATourney bid outlook good
By MARVIN DASH

To the college soccer world, Thursday's match-up in Philadelphia between Penn and Drexel University is the first game of the season for both teams.

An impressive performance against Drexel, this year's newly crowned IAIA champions, is expected to put the Quakers in the thick of the Ivy League.

The Quakers will certainly have the advantage of playing on their home turf, and the Drexel defense will have to be on their toes.

If Penn wins, they will be in contention for one of the four at-large berths in the NCAA Tournament, which would be a huge boost for their season.

The Quakers' defense has been solid so far, and their offense has been efficient.

Penn's senior captain, Bob Todd, has been leading the charge for the Quakers, and his presence will be missed against Drexel.

The game will be played at 3:00 PM at the Christian Association Field, and admission is $2.00 at the gate.

Open Discussion

Two recent Penn graduates will discuss coaches' strategies on colorless Saturday, November 15th.
