Local

LEGISLATORS MARK TERRY DISORDERS MAY AFFECT BUDGET

The legislature's declared concern for medical officials, families and patients from state legislators Thursday that more attention should be paid to the issue of mental health. As a result of the Terry disorders and the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the majority of state legislators Thursday called for a reduction in the number of mental hospitals and an increase in mental health funding. The majority of state legislators Thursday called for a reduction in the number of mental hospitals and an increase in mental health funding.

C.A. PROPOSES UCSC-UNIVERSITY COMMUNICATIONS CENTER

The UCSC proposed the establishment of a communications center for the university community. The center would be located in the Communications Building and would provide a central location for the dissemination of information to the university community. The center would also provide a place for students and faculty to gather and discuss issues of mutual interest.

LEGISTRATORS WARN TERRY DISORDERS MAY AFFECT BUDGET

Dr. Luther Terry, vice president for medical affairs, faced stern warnings from state legislators Thursday that state higher education appropriations may be reduced in light of the Terry disorders. Terry assured legislators that the university would continue to provide the highest possible level of care to its patients. Terry also emphasized the importance of mental health funding and the need for continued research into the causes and treatments of mental disorders.

PANHEL, YOUNG DEMS SUPPORT DEMONSTRATION DEMANDS

The organizers of the UCSC student demonstration presented a list of six demands to the administration. The demands included the establishment of a communications center, the release of all records from the school to the community, and the provision of a place for students and faculty to gather and discuss issues of mutual interest.

NEEDED: ANSWERS RATHER THAN Rhetoric

The administration released a position paper entitled "Needed: Answers Rather Than Rhetoric," which directs specific questions to the administration and demands that all responses will be made public. The position paper outlines the administration's commitment to providing access to information and fostering a climate of open communication and dialogue.

GODDARD DECLARES MALCOLM X DAY RELIGIOUS HOLIDAY

Provost Goddard declared in a memorandum to academic deans and department chairs that the death of Malcolm X today and the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. this past Sunday are to be considered religious holidays for students wishing to observe the anniversaries. The university will provide a day of reflection and remembrance for students and faculty.

TRUSTEE AMENDS HANHEIM AMBASSADOR TO GREAT BRITAIN

Walter H. Amsden, a former trustee of the university, was selected by the board to serve as the university's ambassador to Great Britain. Amsden, a former executive at the University of Pennsylvania, is expected to travel extensively in the United Kingdom to discuss the university's programs and initiatives.

TRADE SHOW RESULTS IN NEW MUSEUM

The trade show at the University City Science Center resulted in the establishment of a new museum, the University City Science Center. The museum will showcase the latest in technology and innovation in the sciences and will provide a place for students and faculty to explore and learn.

SCHOLARSHIPS TO COMMEMORATE VICTIMS OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH

The university announced the establishment of scholarships to commemorate the victims of Black History Month. The scholarships will be awarded to students who have demonstrated excellence in their studies and who have shown a commitment to the cause of social justice.

BLACK LEADERS DECIDE TO JOIN STUDENTS

Black leaders in Philadelphia decided to join students in the demonstration, stating that the demonstration is a necessary step in the larger struggle for social justice and equality. The leaders emphasized the importance of solidarity and the need for continued action to address the issues of discrimination and inequality.

BLACK LEADERS DECIDE TO JOIN STUDENTS

Black leaders in Philadelphia decided to join students in the demonstration, stating that the demonstration is a necessary step in the larger struggle for social justice and equality. The leaders emphasized the importance of solidarity and the need for continued action to address the issues of discrimination and inequality.

BLACK LEADERS DECIDE TO JOIN STUDENTS

Black leaders in Philadelphia decided to join students in the demonstration, stating that the demonstration is a necessary step in the larger struggle for social justice and equality. The leaders emphasized the importance of solidarity and the need for continued action to address the issues of discrimination and inequality.
The business at hand and the students met them half way. The faculty members understood trustee language and translated it into language the demonstrators were more comfortable with. The addition of faculty members, most notably Sol Worth and Philip Pacholak, eased the rough spots along the road. The faculty, at the request of the University Council, the University's legislative body, that it add students to the UCSC research committee.

There can be no doubt that the demonstrators won a significant victory concerning member 3(b), dealing with the addition of students to the already-crowded faculty body. The research committee accepted by the University City Science Center (UCSC). The next step would be the University Council, the University's legislative body, that it add students to the UCSC research committee.

The trustees did not demand that the Council do so and this is correct. If the precedent of trustee interference has not been worth the price paid. The trustees want to see, should succeed, the Council, which is competent to deal with academic and interdepartmental business. Reverend Wolfman, the University Senate's representative at the negotiations and a member of the Council, assured the Council should honor the students' request, thus insuring a victory for the demonstrators.

The demonstrators will most likely leave College Hall this afternoon. They will be asked to return Sunday night to clear the University. This pledge is a sincere one. They have agreed to return from their annual banquet in the University Museum and had announced the day before the demonstration that they would return for the second and last time this week.

The demonstrators will have accepted the administration's offer to negotiate concessions before hand so that Day can be sure that he will not look like a quack when he will be even better than a boycott, which would not be near as effective.

The administration has been characterized by caution and good sense thus far and has achieved much by stating a University which has been plagued by disorder and confusion. The demonstrators, however, cut the tape and the University will have to respond to it this time and respond with some genuine concessions.

The demonstrators are deliberate, they want to avoid giving the administration a chance to argue in terms of sympathy and they will have to respond to this threat and respect with some genuine concessions. There is much behind-the-scenes negotiating going on and we will be watching a solution now. The students are being told that they are going to give the demonstraters the opportunity to present a real substantive package and will have to respond to this threat and respect with some genuine concessions.

The administration has been characterized by caution and good sense thus far and has achieved much by stating a University which has been plagued by disorder and confusion. The demonstrators, however, cut the tape and the University will have to respond to it this time and respond with some genuine concessions.
Goldberg opposes limiting fifth

By ARTHUR M. HOLLAND

Arthur Goldberg spoke out Thursday against the proposal to limit the fifth amendment to the Constitution.

"I am against the Supreme Court justices," Goldberg said, "and I am against the United States Congress." Goldberg spoke in conjunction with the fifth amendment to the Constitution in a press conference.

"I believe that the fifth amendment should be kept as it is," Goldberg said. "I believe that the amendment is a fundamental right that should be preserved, and that any attempt to limit it would be a departure from the principles of the Constitution." Goldberg went on to say that any attempt to limit the fifth amendment would be a violation of the Constitution.

"I believe that the fifth amendment is a fundamental right that should be preserved," Goldberg said. "I believe that any attempt to limit it would be a departure from the principles of the Constitution." Goldberg went on to say that any attempt to limit the fifth amendment would be a violation of the Constitution.

"I believe that the fifth amendment is a fundamental right that should be preserved," Goldberg said. "I believe that any attempt to limit it would be a departure from the principles of the Constitution." Goldberg went on to say that any attempt to limit the fifth amendment would be a violation of the Constitution.

"I believe that the fifth amendment is a fundamental right that should be preserved," Goldberg said. "I believe that any attempt to limit it would be a departure from the principles of the Constitution." Goldberg went on to say that any attempt to limit the fifth amendment would be a violation of the Constitution.

"I believe that the fifth amendment is a fundamental right that should be preserved," Goldberg said. "I believe that any attempt to limit it would be a departure from the principles of the Constitution." Goldberg went on to say that any attempt to limit the fifth amendment would be a violation of the Constitution.
Wrestlers face Harvard in crucial Ivy match

Penn tabs Army's Jim Adams as new head lacrosse coach

Weekend sports

Basketball

Friday: Boston 77
Harvard 71
Saturday: Harvard 104, La Salle 71.

Hockey

Friday: Penn 1-3 Ohio State,
Saturday: Penn 2-4 USC,
Sunday: Penn 1-4 Harvard.

Indoor Track-Heptagonals

Friday: John Salfi
Saturday: John Salfi, Paul Catinella

Saturday:

The Onyx Bar

Sunday:

Hot cagers aim for 2 more

Skaters looking to halt Indian attack

Penn tabs Army’s Jim Adams as new head lacrosse coach

By MARK SCHLIESINGER

The unbeaten Quakers now own just a couple of unimpressive victories in the starting lineup, Coach Dave Frey said, and in the absence of two key seniors, the team's depth is now becoming a concern.

Harvard will go with youth, with only three graduated seniors in the starting lineup.

Along with Frey, the Quakers will also have to deal with another veteran, John Catterson, in the starting lineup.

In addition to his playing, Catterson is also the team's top scorer.

Catterson benefited from a strong performance from a young team.

Frey said that the Quakers' depth has been a key factor in their success so far.

"I think a lot of our boys have a good chance to make the team," Frey said. "I think our depth has been a key factor in our success so far."