Institute denies SDS secrecy allegations

ROBERT STRAUS-HEPPE
Director of Foreign Policy Research Institute

Rizzo says SDS distributed manual

by J. BOAN RIEDEL

Official of the University Foreign Policy Research Institute declared Friday that charges by the institute'systickering" SDS leaders were unfounded. "I have never even heard of SDS," he said.

"This research has been, is, and will be conducted without..." the man who has been fighting this battle for years.

In a statement to WCAU, the University's study said it was "unusual," especially considering the fact that it was dealing with people who had nothing to hide. The study, published by the National Commission on POWs, was released to the public Friday.

"This study is an attempt to bring some light to the situation," the University's study said. "We are not here to support the idea of a committee to investigate the situation, but rather to come to a conclusion that it is a serious matter that must be dealt with."
A chance to change

At their meeting tomorrow, the College faculty will have the opportunity to officially authorize and approve the educational experiences of undergraduates at this University. The faculty will be asked to give their approval to the committee on Instruction’s proposals for reduction of the course load and distributional requirements necessary for graduation.

In our editorial of March 20 we outlined our reasons for supporting this attempt to create more flexibility in the College curriculum. However, we feel these proposals represent only a step toward the cooperative intellectual environment we would like to see develop at the University.

Education involves much more than assimilating facts and figures, or even concepts. The key to the learning process lies in the development of an ability to make decisions. Education cannot be a passive process. Intellectual stimulation is brought about only by active participation in the learning experience.

A student has very little self-determination during his academic career at the University. He is permitted to choose a major and some of his courses, but is denied the very choice which would personally involve him in his own education. He is denied the right to set his own intellectual priorities. The rigid prescriptive curriculum that the University offers its students is directly contradictory to the concept of a relevant, personal education.

Students must be given the responsibility for determining their own course priorities. Education cannot be a personal and individual experience when students are forced into a predetermined structure of requirements. If a student’s academic career at the University is to be worthwhile it must be structured by him to suit his own educational goals.

The traditional concept of a liberal arts education is no longer applicable to the student body at this University. There is no one standard curriculum that can suit the needs of the individual. The freedom of body and mind demands the creation of a flexible educational system in which students are treated as individuals, not as part of a homogeneous mass of minds to be molded in a predetermined pattern. The curriculum must be responsive to the needs of the individual. Each student to an individual.

The proposals of the Committee on Instruction represent the first steps toward the creation of an educational policy that is responsive to the needs of the student body. Over 50 per cent of the students in the College have signed petitions supporting these proposals. SCU wholeheartedly endorses them, and is holding an open meeting tonight in Room 1, Houston Hall at 7:30 to discuss them with all interested students and faculty.

Faculty members believe that they are interested in student opinion. It is now incumbent upon all faculty members in the College to respect the overwhelming student support for reform by attending the meeting Tuesday and voting in favor of the Committee on Instruction’s proposals.

"ABM? Hell, I Thought We Were Putting In IBM."

ROBERT A. SAVETT
Sports editor

STANLEY H. BERKE
Copy editor

ROBERT A. SAVETT
Sports editor

STANLEY H. BERKE
Copy editor

WINNING the College’s eleven conference games, the football team now comes up against Rowan on Saturday

To: British Travel, Rte. 921, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Sir (madam),

I am enclosing our 1969 Guide for students visiting Britain (plus 52-page color booklet: “Vacations in Britain.”)

Name: __________________________

College: _______________________

Address: _______________________

City: ________________________

State: _______________________

Zip: _______________________

We provide opportunity for small groups of students with similar interests to travel together. Our trips are planned on the following basis:

1. Professional travel director;
2. Resident guide;
3. Bus transportation;
4. Local accommodations;
5. Entrance fees;
6. Sightseeing;
7. Lunches and dinners;
8. All services for small groups.

The cost of these trips is based on a small group and varies according to the specific program, the length of the trip, and the size of the group. For our current program list and prices, please write to us.

Visa for travel is the traveler’s responsibility.

Sincerely,

To: British Travel, Rte. 921, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Dear Sir (madam),

I am enclosing our 1969 Guide for students visiting Britain (plus 52-page color booklet: “Vacations in Britain.”)

Name: __________________________

College: _______________________

Address: _______________________

City: ________________________

State: _______________________

Zip: _______________________

We provide opportunity for small groups of students with similar interests to travel together. Our trips are planned on the following basis:

1. Professional travel director;
2. Resident guide;
3. Bus transportation;
4. Local accommodations;
5. Entrance fees;
6. Sightseeing;
7. Lunches and dinners;
8. All services for small groups.

The cost of these trips is based on a small group and varies according to the specific program, the length of the trip, and the size of the group. For our current program list and prices, please write to us.

Visa for travel is the traveler’s responsibility.

Sincerely,
Report from student members of the quadrupartite commission

Since the end of the College Hill sit-in, the quadrupartite commission has met twice. In these meetings it has been working toward implementing the settlement reached at the sit-in. Adequate housing will be built on the present site, and concerns are legitimate ones for students who have been occupying the site for two years. The student commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.

The following actions have been taken by the commission (1) having surveyed the site, (2) received proposals of recommendations from an independent professional of city planning, (3) proposed to give the commission control over all files in the University; the remainder of the community, the community members, and trustees on the commission. (4) The Commission is setting up a non-profit corporation to receive and dispose of funds. This is a necessary step in order to implement the proposals.

The commission is investigating the possibility of settling the land of the University in a way that would not interfere with the functions of the community. The commission will take a position in the planning office.

The Commission will not begin to feel satisfied until the following two proposals have been given: (1) land for the students displaced from Area III, and (2) adequate housing that the students have been working toward implementing the sit-in. The Commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.

Adequate housing will be built on the present site, and concerns are legitimate ones for students who have been occupying the site for two years. The student commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.

The following actions have been taken by the commission (1) having surveyed the site, (2) received proposals of recommendations from an independent professional of city planning, (3) proposed to give the commission control over all files in the University; the remainder of the community, the community members, and trustees on the commission.

The Commission is setting up a non-profit corporation to receive and dispose of funds. This is a necessary step in order to implement the proposals.

The commission is investigating the possibility of settling the land of the University in a way that would not interfere with the functions of the community. The commission will take a position in the planning office.

The Commission will not begin to feel satisfied until the following two proposals have been given: (1) land for the students displaced from Area III, and (2) adequate housing that the students have been working toward implementing the sit-in. The Commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.

Adequate housing will be built on the present site, and concerns are legitimate ones for students who have been occupying the site for two years. The student commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.

The following actions have been taken by the commission (1) having surveyed the site, (2) received proposals of recommendations from an independent professional of city planning, (3) proposed to give the commission control over all files in the University; the remainder of the community, the community members, and trustees on the commission.

The Commission is setting up a non-profit corporation to receive and dispose of funds. This is a necessary step in order to implement the proposals.

The commission is investigating the possibility of settling the land of the University in a way that would not interfere with the functions of the community. The commission will take a position in the planning office.

The Commission will not begin to feel satisfied until the following two proposals have been given: (1) land for the students displaced from Area III, and (2) adequate housing that the students have been working toward implementing the sit-in. The Commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.

Adequate housing will be built on the present site, and concerns are legitimate ones for students who have been occupying the site for two years. The student commission members take this opportunity to make their first report to their constituents.
The Ballad Of A Soldier

TUES. MARCH 25 8 PM
IRVINE AUD.
How can you change a world you've never seen.

There's a view from Montmartre that can give you an insight into the Romans, the Renaissance, the Revolution, the Resistance. And that's just the beginning.

In Europe, a hillside where they say democracy began. A wall where both sides say it ends.

In the Middle East, people have shared a desert, a heritage, a struggle for survival.

In South America, cities laugh in the sun and mountains cry for help. In Africa, tribes disappear and nations emerge.

In the Orient, people live in an order and a chaos as old as history itself.

Now's the time to see it all.

You're young. You're free. You care. And you're ready to take on the world. Take it in pieces or all at once.

Boggle your mind? Where do you start? How do you plan? What's it cost? How do you pay for it?

The man with the answers is our campus rep, Aftab Hassan (569-1300) or any Pan Am* Travel Agent. He knows about fares, flights, tours, details, bargains and the world's most experienced airline. Give him a call. And get into this world.
from a psychological and a physiological point of view.

"Of course, it's the same attitude I'd jump for a guy to go to Penn, and he'll need something to

Jones, Billy Joe, George Leftwich never graduated. I'd return to Philadelphia with

He would have placed in the Easterns with a time like in athletics.

He would be better off at Dartmouth, and I told him so.

He's a good, articulate, soft-spoken manner. "In light of this, how undone in the Easterns with a time like

Atkinson clipped over 12 seconds off the Quaker frosh

The Penn swimming coach George Breen got a dunking in on paperbacks

HUMAN RESOURCES

by bob savett

At an Ivy League university, athletics are intimately associated with life and work, and so it is here that the scoreboards tell the story of the intercollegiate competition. The University of the Pennsylvania's most distinguished faculty.

Howard Mitchell has been around sports a long time. His athletic career started long before he attended Creighton University-western for basketball one

To which he is committed. Dr. Mitchell believes that the student, you see, is uppermost in Dr. Mitchell's

In the 1961-1962 school year.

The Red and Blue keglers came

Our enthusiasm, young coaching staff is that I have three

He is the 400-yard breaststroke race winner in the

A beautiful young woman, with a

The student, you see, is uppermost in Dr. Mitchell's

It was all uphill after that.

Atkinson made the finals in the 200 medley but

The Penn bowling team travelled

In Wednesday's 1650-yd freestyle, Penn's Joe Mann

The student, you see, is uppermost in Dr. Mitchell's

In Sunday's 400 freestyle relay, the varsity team of

"There's a feeling of excitement around the

In Sunday's 1650-yd freestyle, Penn's Joe Mann

The Swimmer who tallied a 216-571 as the first of pin-boys.

The Penn swimming team travelled

"Frankly, I'm amazed at the number of athletes who play

Of course, it was to consequence to watch the

HUMAN RESOURCES

by bob savett

...more than the scoreboard lights...