Kite and Key OK's open membership

By Jonathan B. Tarnadage

Last week a week ago, Kite and Key's spokesman was quoted as saying that the organization was not planning to endorse a draft protest. However, yesterday, the organization announced that it will endorse a draft protest referendum. The announcement was made at a meeting of the organization's executive committee.

The article goes on to discuss the political climate and the role of student organizations in it.

HOUSTON HALL, the oldest student union building in the United States, has become the center of a modern debate over open membership. The Houston Association of Students, a group that advocates open membership, held a meeting yesterday to discuss the issue.

The article concludes with a quote from a representative of the Houston Association of Students: "We believe in open membership because it is the only way to ensure that all students, regardless of their backgrounds, have an equal voice in the decision-making process of the university."

Draft referendum schedule for next Tuesday

By Phyllis Kaniss

A draft referendum is scheduled for next Tuesday to determine whether the university will continue to have an open membership policy. The referendum, which was proposed by Kite and Key, a student organization that advocates open membership, will be held on Tuesday at 4:00 p.m.

The referendum will be held in the Union Ballroom and will be open to all members of the university community. Voting will be by secret ballot and the results will be announced immediately.

The article goes on to discuss the history of open membership at the university and the arguments for and against it.

National Guard called into Chicago

By United Press International

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 11—The president today ordered 8,000 Illinois National Guardsmen to assume duty on the city's South Side in order to control the situation.

The announcement came in the face of mounting political pressure and as the Stop the Draft movement continues to grow in strength.

The Guardsmen were activated to deal with the growing disorder in the city, which has been the target of protests against the draft and the war in Vietnam.

The announcement was made by President Johnson, who said the situation in Chicago had become intolerable and that the Guardsmen would be used to maintain order and ensure the safety of the public.

The deployment of the Guardsmen was the largest in the city's history and was met with widespread condemnation by civil rights leaders.

The National Guard was activated to control the situation on the South Side, where demonstrations and violence had been reported.

The Guardsmen were ordered to maintain order and protect public safety, and to prevent the spread of violence.

The announcement came as the city was preparing to host the annual parade, which was expected to attract thousands of people.

The deployment of the Guardsmen was met with widespread condemnation by civil rights leaders, who said it was a violation of the constitutional rights of the people.

Testaire plans for the University-wide meeting on October 15 have been announced by the organizing committee. The University assembly, meeting Wednesday morning at 8 in the Secret Library, will hold the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam and, as well, the war as a system or major U.S. foreign policy objective.

Although these are the only two proposals currently on the agenda, the organizing committee has indicated that it is not adverse to adding more resolutions, should it receive any from members of the University.

The results of the Wednesday assembly will be transmitted to President Nixon; the students, faculty and employees of this university will be on record concerning Vietnam.

If any group or individual would like to expand the number or content of the resolutions to be brought before the special assembly, we urge them to submit their proposals to Dr. Charles Price, chairman of the organizing committee.

October 15 must be a day when the views of the University community are fully articulated.

True brotherhood

Pi Lambda Phi fraternity Monday abolished pledging and adopted what is practically as automatic admissions system. "We reject," the brothers state, "the fraudulent admissions system which has resulted in the falsification of rank and the inherent inequities of selectivity."

I endorse the entire statement in all respects, as do many of those who are involved in the organizational hassles and problems that have been presented for the first time in such a forum. But let me just state my reason why it would be a grave threat to the values upon which we stand.

This is one circumstance in which the University is free, in its nature, to formulate it in this fashion, it seems to me, a grave threat to the values upon which we stand. The University of Pennsylvania is, in effect, a self-governing body. It is a voluntary association of individuals and institutions which have been presented persuasively by Mr. Wolfman so eloquently appeals to the public conscience to see the Vietnam war as a system or major U.S. foreign policy objective.

I think that there would be little argument concerning the patriotism and eloquence of American and German students, and of the U.S. Army. This is the passage of the Fugitive Slave Act) to provide runaway slaves with sanctuary. Too many people, both in the South and in the North, have become more intimately involved in the organizational hassles and problems that have been presented for the first time in such a forum. But let me just state my reason why it would be a grave threat to the values upon which we stand.

Future teachers study selves on TV in Gibboney ed class

By ANN BELLER

Like a microcosm of the real world, students in a small seminar room appear on a television screen watched vacantly by their peers in the room. The atmosphere and the students' expressions are reflected in a larger room where the seminar is taking place.

The seminar, taught by Dr. Richard Gibboney, is one of the courses in his Graduate Course in Urban Education. In the seminar, students are being trained to be secondary teachers. They are being asked to perform as if they were teaching. The seminar is an opportunity for students to observe their own teaching ability. It is also an opportunity for them to learn from each other and to improve their teaching skills.

The seminar is designed to help students develop their communication skills and to help them understand the importance of interpersonal relationships in the classroom. The seminar focuses on the development of interpersonal relationships and the role of the teacher in the classroom. The seminar also covers the development of the classroom environment and the role of the teacher in creating a positive learning environment.

The seminar is held twice a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 3:30 to 5:30 PM, in the Social Science Building, Room 11. The seminar is open to all students who are interested in teaching and who want to develop their communication skills.

RICHARD GIBBONEY

Director of the Graduate Program in Urban Education at Cornell University, Gibboney is one of the leading figures in the field of urban education. He is known for his innovative teaching methods and his ability to engage students in the classroom.

He is also a prolific writer and has published several books on urban education. His most recent book, "The Urban Classroom," has been praised for its fresh perspective on teaching and learning.

GIBBONEY'S STUDENTS

The students in the seminar are a diverse group of individuals from different backgrounds. They include both graduate and undergraduate students, as well as teachers and education professionals.

The seminar is open to all students who are interested in teaching and who want to develop their communication skills.

You and the Establishment

So you dig Dylan. To you, he means something.

But you don't dig the Establishment. To you, the Establishment means a lot of things you question.

That's what is meant by the generation gap.

And it's one of the biggest beefs in history.

An II-part Special Report, starting Monday in The Philadelphia Inquirer, gives the story from both sides of the gap.

Your side. And their side.

It's called "Today's Society: The Rebels and Their Critics."

And in each of these enlightening full-page articles, the rebels and their critics debate a lot of fiery and controversial subjects.

You'll read both sides of the story in this informative Inquirer Special Report. It's about you.

Red and Blue squads travel to Dartmouth

Soccermen look to stay unbeaten

BY JEFF ROTHARD

Eighteen Quaker honors, accompanied by Coach Bob Seddon, fly to Hanover to meet an opposite that has won its first three contests this fall.

A year ago, Dartmouth pinned second place in the Ivy race by defeating a weak Indian squad (4-2, 1970), in a disputed game and captured the Indian Cup.

However, Seddon feels that Penn, despite last season's collapse, can and will improve. Said Seddon, "We have more depth in this year's team, and a much better understanding of how to play."

Their coach is a good one, for Dartmouth's Batchelor has made a name for himself in the Ivy League. Misir, a bustling fullback, McCrory, a center, and the Blue Quaterback, a fullback, are all nationally acclaimed. Seddon feels that his boys can match them.

But the Indians aren't favored.

"They're a very tough team," Seddon feels, "and they could throw any team off."

As Seddon speaks, a slight breeze rustles the leaves and reminds Seddon of the Indian Cup.

"We'll have to face the wind," Seddon said. "It's their strong point, and they've got the weather on their side."

They'll also have to face the memory of last year's Indian Cup.

"It's a new team," Seddon said. "But we've got to face the Indian Cup."

And face it they will.

Quakers host Hawks today

Piazza sets lofty goals

by RICK PURLONG

Much of this year's character and strategy will come from the return of two key players: Gary Zbrzeznj and Pete Blumenthal.

Zbrzeznj, who missed the season last year after an injury, will be a key player for the Quakers. His return will provide a boost to the offense and will help stabilize the team.

Blumenthal, on the other hand, will be crucial to the defense. He has been a consistent player for the past few years and will be counted on to help lead the team to victory.

The Quakers are expected to win this game, as they have the advantage in experience and talent.

The Hawks, on the other hand, will be looking to make a statement and will be playing with a lot of confidence.

This game is sure to be a good one, and it will be interesting to see how both teams perform.

I'll be thinking about this for a long time

Ever been told that you can't do something because you're not good enough? Ever felt like you were just barely good enough to do something? Ever felt like you were living in a world of limitations? Well, you're not alone. There are millions of people who feel this way every single day.

But I'm here to tell you, you are capable of so much more than you think. You have the strength, the determination, and the willpower to achieve greatness. You just need to believe.

Believe in yourself, and you can accomplish anything. You can break through the limits that society and others have placed upon you. You can rise above your circumstances and reach new heights.

So don't let anyone tell you that you can't do something. You can do it. You just need to believe.
