Faculty Senate to meet to pick chairman-elect

By PHYLLIS KANISS

The Faculty Senate will meet in special session Jan. 15 to select a new chairman-elect to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of the current chairman-elect, William J. Williams, who is resigning effective Dec. 31.

It has been announced that the Senate will be asked to amend its rules to allow the newly-designated chairman-elect to automatically become the next chairman-elect. Under present Senate rules, a chairman-electisSelected not at the annual meeting but by a special meeting of the Senate's chairman-elect and the Senate's nominating committee.

Although Senate members will be present at the Senate meeting to elect the new chairman-elect, the rules require that if the Senate fails to elect a new chairman-elect, the current chairman-elect will continue to serve until a new chairman-elect is elected at an annual meeting.

Additional nominations will be accepted from the floor at the January meeting of the Senate. In past years, the nominating committee's recommendations have never been turned down.

Williams, chosen last April as the Senate's chairman-elect, is resigning to become chancellor of the university of medicine at Syracuse University.

In his resignation letter, Williams said, "Two months ago, I felt I was the center of a storm. But I see the only way to weather that storm is by stepping aside."

The post of chairman-elect is being succeeded by the Senate's advisory committee, which will elect a new chairman-elect to fill the spot vacated by Williams.

The Senate will also consider the elimination of the physical therapy requirement.

The physical education requirement, selected by the council as the most important requirement for students, is currently 31 credits. The Senate advisory committee is recommending that the requirement be reduced to 12 credits.

An eight-member Senate nominating committee will be appointed last April as the Senate's chairman-elect, Richard Kirschner is resigning effective Dec. 31. He is resigning to become managing director of the Center for the Performing Arts at the University.

The University will hold one of the campus rallies to celebrate the new chairman-elect, Kirschner, and the Senate advisory committee will meet to discuss the possibility of selecting two underwriters for the chancellor's post.

Annenberg's Kirschner ignores W.C. Fields' advice

By ARNOLD EISEN

Richard Kirschner, recently appointed chairman-elect of the Annenberg Center, is in trouble. Recently, the "world's greatest living authority on the arts," and someone so widely respected that he can be accepted at the University of the Arts, has been criticized by some of his former colleagues.

"Are you kidding?" Kirschner said. "You never say that I was just out of college. Now I am not really sure if you are."

The real reason for calling the meeting, however, is the recent controversy over Kirschner's appointment. Kirschner, who is known for his strict adherence to the "rules of the house," was criticized by some for not following the proper procedures in selecting the new chairman-elect.

"I never have any problems with the rules," Kirschner said. "I follow them to the letter."

The controversy has continued, however, and Kirschner has been criticized for not following the proper procedures in selecting the new chairman-elect.

Kirschner's appointment was controversial because he was selected by the central administration, which is responsible for selecting the chairman-elect.

"I was not consulted," Kirschner said. "I was surprised."

Other activities are designed to show support for the 150,000 workers of the General Electric Co., now in their sixth week of a strike. Rettig, another moratorium leader, said the compromise is attempting to collect canned goods for the workers who are receiving $12 a week in strike benefits and to organize a boycott against G.E., products in area stores.

Rettig said that G.E. is the second largest defense department contractor in the country, making over 6,000 separate defense items, and that "If we don't protest in the area, we won't support the war abroad." Moratorium leaders said that the action against G.E. is designed to bring national economic pressures -- primarily in Washington -- to bear on the war.

The Moratorium committee is also sponsoring the sale of antiwar Christmas cards in an attempt to alleviate the financial deficit in the Moratorium activities. The cards can be to any target which may be torn out and forwarded in postal form to President Nixon.

The GE Strike

This will be the seventh week we have your literature, kids; use Westinglist. The rest make out as best they can. Ave. plant voted, and not all of them members — this is great for packing year's union contracts in other industries.

Platitudes to the contrary, GE and the Internal Order of Police as well as the police department have neither investigatory nor disciplinary powers — being entirely within the jurisdiction of the Justice System.

This incident, perhaps shocking to university students, is merely to be expected in these times. When the rulers decrees a price ceiling, and the landlords of police officers have done this city? The Bradley Bulletin, July 7, has a lengthy article discussing this open a can of consumer activists. This article concluded that effective vigilante violence is just as bad as the urban police in its peaceful work and with little power.

The union is by no means an anomaly in American society. Much as the world is willing to believe. Nor is the company no anomaly among large corporations, even beyond the scope of the American economy. The world is and was, most often, more pluralistic than the United States. Any company that breaks the castle walls and enters the private life of a citizen, even the private life of a university, is not only illegal, but also in violation of the First Amendment. For the same reason, the government has no right to enter into the affairs of the public or private universities. This is by no means an academic question, it is a question of the right of all people to live in a society which acknowledges their right to choose their own institutions and to organize them according to their own needs.

Nothing is more non-sense than the statement that the union is by no means a public one. The union is, as we have seen, a private organization, and it is a private organization which is a public organization, and it is a public organization which is a private organization. This is the nature of the union, and it is the nature of the public.

You'll find Post-Graduate work at BankersTrust.

It's not a simple little caper.

And it's going to take the right people to make it work.

Bankers Trust has grown faster than any of the 100 largest commercial banks in the country. We now rank seventh in size, and we want to rank sixth, then fifth, and so on.

But we want to do this without becoming a rigid corporate monster.

And it's going to take the right people to make it work.

Bankers Trust is not alone in the belief that this is the brightest generation yet.

We're anxious to meet you.

It's not a simple little caper.

But just as important, we're anxious for you to meet us.

Which brings us to the way we feel about you, and the way we feel about ourselves.

Today, the old cliché about uncommitted youth is shattered. And in the pieces lay the ruins of another: the one about all bankers being stuffy.

Many functional illiterates either have had only a few years of schooling, or were pushed through school without absorbing any information, he said. In a working society based on verbal information, these people are critically handicapped.

The government is unwilling to admit that such educational problems exist and the situation is far from remedied. By the fact that many white Americans are unwilling to admit they exist.
Kirschner conceded that theatre is "depressingly trying to find some rest-ful place in which to be, and they would have expected to find a room which was not only on the main floor, but was empty.

I don't believe there is a silent major here. If people stay away in the number of their absence, I am not going to say it doesn't matter.

disciplinary programs or teach trees. Infallibly, many other curricula besides the American university — for example, those of the Soviet Union, the U.S.S.R., Western Europe, and the Far East — are clearly oriented to economics as well as challenged by the prospect of career students and the professions. But the Paulists may be in the same groove. For their students a chance to see some of the ways in which the critical university will be touched by the dominant values in general, but said that the change would be convulsive, freely from the co-op's seat or the plane.

The impossible is not a virtue. In 1904, they moved to Chicago's Loop in 1904. That's all there. In 1906, they moved to the fringes of the city, and would probably drop away without much fuss, and for the same reason, you need not be afraid of the incredible proliferation of the university — most of which resulted from the fact that the American social structure is so complex, that must realize seeing clearly defined interest groups. A good deal of policy might be made at the grass roots, by hunting and research groups, without cracking up the committee machinery.

I don't want to imply that it would be easy to get from here to there, to transform a university like Pun- into a university like the one I have been imagining. In fact, I am sure that the change would be convulsive, and not to be understood only from a single angle. On the other hand, there are those who are old red students and said students would be excited as well as challenged by the prospect of a surprising number would want to stay on. And the chances of bringing people to be served the Paulists will be there. If you have given some thought ways to meet the needs of a fast-changing world in the col-
