Penn’s first choice likely to come here as president

By ALBAN SALMAN

Nearly one-half of the faculty favoring the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam voted yesterday to send a petition to the Senate to that effect.

A knowledgeable source revealed yesterday that the first person on the list is seriously interested in accepting the post, provided he can work effectively with officials of the American embassy in Saigon.

The source added that the second names on the list also are interested and that the third and fourth names are people with reservations.

The petition was signed by 606 members of the faculty, or 40 percent of the total faculty members.

The petition, which was sent to approximately 1400 faculty, calls for new, voluntary foreign policy considerations by the United States.

The petition is addressed to the Senate and the University Council and calls for the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from Vietnam and for disengagement of American interests in Vietnam.

The selection of a new chairman of the faculty committee on the Goals of Education, which was sent to approximately 1400 faculty, was proposed by the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

The committee is expected to be the first person on the list.

The president is expected to be the first person on the list.

The search for a new president began Jan. 17, 1969 when President Harnwell announced to the trustees of the University that he would resign next September, 1970.

The search committee stipulated that the final list should be made public by the trustees at their next meeting on Thursday.

Approximately 165 names were screened by the search committee for the position of president.

The search committee said it would recommend two names to the trustees for consideration.

Chairman Rona Devia, who spoke with members of the search committee via telephone last night, however, said that he could not disclose the names of the two persons to whom he recommended the final list.

Chairman Devia said that he would be asked to testify at a committee meeting.

The search committee is expected to begin interviewing the first person on the list this week.

A high official of the executive committee said that the final list would be made public today.

The executive committee met last week and will meet again tomorrow to discuss the status of the search.

The executive committee decided to hold elections for new student representatives to the search committee.

The search committee decided that the final list of five men presented by the executive committee would be made public.

Lagos—Thousands of Nigerian officers and men are marching on the capital for national unity, said Niritim, the head of the 2-1/2 year civil war.

The last sign referred to Gowen's plans to abolish Biafra's six federal states as opposed to Gophen's plan for an independent Biafra.

He also called for national unity and a massive relief program being planned for rebel troops who surrendered.

The Soviet Union, hailing the federation, said it was "every reason to be encouraged." He said this would be enough to feed the former Biafran enclave.

The Yorubas, while Nigerian civilians celebrated the fall of Biafra, danced in the streets yesterday to commemorate celebrations. Some of the signs read "Long live Nigeria," "Shame on the conquerors".

A tax in time saves nine

In the looking glass

The following are comments on a recent article in the student newspaper, The Pennsylvania Daily

The article in question was written by a student named Bob Shriver, who was a member of the University's student government. Shriver was writing to express his concern about the high taxes being imposed on the student population by the state government.

Shriver began by pointing out that the state government had imposed a number of new taxes on the student population, including a sales tax increase from 6% to 7%, a property tax increase from 1.5% to 2%, and an income tax increase from 3% to 4%. Shriver noted that these taxes were being used to fund the state's budget, which had been increased by $2 billion in the past year.

Shriver then went on to discuss the impact of these taxes on the student population. He noted that the increased taxes were forcing students to cut back on their spending, which was having a negative impact on the local economy. Shriver also noted that the increased taxes were making it more difficult for students to afford tuition, room and board, and other living expenses.

Shriver ended his article by calling on the state government to reconsider its tax policies and to find ways to reduce the burden of taxation on the student population. He noted that the student population was already paying a disproportionate share of the state's taxes, and that the government should be doing more to support the needs of students.

In conclusion, Shriver's article was a clear and effective call for the state government to reconsider its tax policies and to find ways to reduce the burden of taxation on the student population.

Mermen gain national acclaim

Sports at Penn can no longer be called merely extra-curricular activities as various teams and individuals are called merely extra-curricular activities.

The "ratings game" is the Quaker's Ivy League victories over Princeton, Dartmouth, and Harvard. "We're not as sharp as we should be," said Reider. "But the boys have two or three victories to their name and can get. Actually it was a tremendous game against Princeton's All-Ivy star Matty Bozek and Dale Dover, who combined for 53 in a 92-78 win. Reider scored 15, far below his season high of 44. Other Lions who didn't play well were playmaker Elliot Wolfe, and 6-5 Larry Gordon, a high scorer on the team; DAVE GRAHAM, BILL SUDLICK, and Bob Morse who played in all four games in the last tournament. The last tournament was the first time. They've worked very hard, but now they're almost finished, and I think that's why they're playing Penn and Dartmouth."

"I am hoping to be able to make the most of the 200 yd. breaststroke (2:16.5), the 100 yd. freestyle, and the 100 yd. backstroke."

Corky Calhoun was named to the weekly all-East team.

Reider's victory in the 200 yd. breaststroke (2:16.5) last Friday will give him the necessary confidence to compete well in the other events.
