U. budget committee considers reduction in aid to freshmen

By JOAN RIEGER

University officials, who have been fighting a continuous fiscal battle all year, will meet early this morning to discuss lowering financial aid to next year’s incoming freshmen. The budget committee will consider comments to continue proposals from a subcommittee, which was appointed to recommend financial improvements in the admissions procedure. The subcommittee is chaired by Mr. Robert Maddin, director of admissions. Although the committee has not yet decided how it will accommodate their findings at the meeting, neither do they suggest one definite figure. He said that the cut would not be substantial.

"The decrease in the number of student members would be representing $750,000 worth of aid for the University," said one member of the subcommittee.

The meeting was concluded with the opinion that the reduction of the number of student members would be a proper policy for the University. The subcommittee agreed to continue their efforts in this matter.

New organization in Mantua is seeking aid from students

By CONNIE REPLOGLE

Two blocks down 36th Street from the Douglass Manor — a community of 2,700 people, none of whose homes were hit back in the 1969 riots — was housing for employees of a factory that make baby food.

Today there are 3,000 Mantua homes in need of repair, but also to "repair lives," Thomas explained. "We're not just about "repairing houses," we're about improving the quality of life for the residents of Mantua."

The girl walked to Mantua two and three times a week while she was a plumber, she was a friend who cares, Thomas explained. "We need people who are working successfully, Thomas reported. He gave as an example of such people that could be members of our group."

The police are still investigating the death of the girl that occurred on Sunday at 36th and Master Street. She was a 13-year-old girl who was killed by a bullet to the head. The police are still trying to determine the circumstances of the death.

The police have questioned people in the area and are trying to gather as much information as possible. They are also looking at surveillance footage from the area to see if they can find any clues that may help them solve the case.

The police are still making calls and trying to follow up on leads. They are also working with other agencies to try and get as much information as possible.

The police hope to have more information to share with the public soon. They ask anyone who may have seen or heard anything about this case to call the police immediately.

The Vietnamese dream

Michael, by honghau chau

In the morning, the sun rises. The children come out to play. They sing and dance, happy and free. The birds chirp, the leaves rustle, and the world is alive with energy. The children are carefree, living in the present moment, without a care in the world.

In the afternoon, the sun heat. The children run to the schools, eager to learn. They study hard, knowing that their education is the key to their future. The teachers are patient and caring, always ready to help.

In the evening, the sun sets. The children return home, tired but happy. They eat dinner with their families, sharing stories of their day. They know that they are lucky to have a home and a family.

This is the Vietnamese dream. A world where children can be children, where education is valued, and where family is everything.

The ideal Vietnamese dream is not just about the present moment, but also about the future. It is about creating a better world for all children, so that they can live without fear and hunger, and have access to education for all.

This is the Vietnamese dream. A world where everyone is valued and respected, where everyone has the opportunity to live a happy and prosperous life.
