Activities Council revises its by-laws

By ANITA SAKAI

Activities Council, a newly established student organization of students, last week issued its by-laws in order to outline its responsibilities more clearly.

At a special meeting, the members discussed the by-laws which were written in four sections: powers, action, meetings, and duties of the member organizations.

The powers of the organization are specified as follows: organizing and overseeing council activities, establishing and overseeing council programs, and commenting on council activities.

The action of the council is limited to issuing directives and recommendations to member organizations, and may include organizing and overseeing council activities.

The meetings of the council are to be held on a quarterly basis, and the council will meet at least once per semester.

The duties of the council are to organize and oversee council activities, to establish and oversee council programs, and to comment on council activities.

Activities Council will now be comprised of one representative from each member organization, and each representative will be elected by the member organization.

The representation will consist of one representative for each member organization, and each representative will be elected by the member organization.

Ivy League may change heart towards NIT

By MARVY DASH

The 21-2 Quaker cagers, sporting the second best mark in the nation, lost their home advantage for the first time this season last night at the Palestra when they dropped their first game to the Elis. The Red and Blue were victorious 82-70, to make their Ivy League record 9-1 and cut the Quaker's lead to 1-1. The full story is in tomorrow's issue.

The previous all-night scheduled Stanford-Harvard game was not held last night because the proposal the new one-game rule would allow teams to compete in the NIT even if they had failed to make the NCAA tournament.

The win brought the Yale men into a tie for first place in the Ancient Eight.
