Four dump garbage on Tate's doorstep

By MAURICE OISTFELD

The property reality of Phila.'s richest philanthropists was brought home to Mayor James H. Tate, Jr., Tate Tribune notes as he University students dumped a bag full of garbage on the honor's lawn.

"No one had to point out that we've gotten too small to meet our bills," Miss Ball explained.

"Anders and I thought we'd have to cut back on the expenses, like taking a parcel of garbage and putting it in a garbage dump," Miss Ball continued. "Kato had seen advertised our campus by several newspapers publishing Tate's financial data.

The students were estimated at 4,800, the highest figure in the University's 25 years.

Little book support on Vietnam

By United Press International

The trial of the Panthers was recessed pending the legal arguments to be made by William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, the defense lawyers for the defendants.

The Panthers are a political party that was formed in the United States in the 1960s. They were a radical organization that advocated for social and economic justice for African Americans.

The trial of the Panthers was a significant event in the history of the United States. It was one of the first major trials of the civil rights movement, and it brought attention to the issues of police brutality and racial discrimination.

The trial of the Panthers was a turning point in the history of the civil rights movement. It marked the beginning of a new era of activism, and it helped to bring about important changes in U.S. society.

The trial of the Panthers was a complex and controversial event. It generated a great deal of media attention, and it was the subject of many books and articles. It remains an important topic for discussion and analysis today.

Kite and Key sets up new committee or recruiters

BY DAVID COHEN

A high school recruiting commit- tee at the University of Pennsylva- nia this week met with the Kite and Key Society to solicit the student community’s help in speaking to prospec- tive freshmen.

“Any enthusiastic student is eligi- ble to be a recruiter,” explained committee co-chairman Charles Shapiro. “We wish the support of each and every member of the student body, as this is an effective way by which we are working with this program,” said Shapiro. “These interviews should apply this week at booths (meant to be held at the Kite and Key In House, Center Hall and the Van Pelt Li- brary).

We will reestablish our high school in later weeks in this effort, Shapiro explained, and then noted that high school students have expressed their willingness to help the university students who have extended an offer of assistance to the Kite and Key Society.

Students steering committee, com- mission, Rona Zevin, a student member of the Council Steering Committee summer (and talk to high school students about the University. Shapiro explained that the “Council would like to recruit more members, along with members of the Kite and Key Society to speak to high school students.”

State budget

The original request of $17 mil- lion had been cut by the Governor to $14 million, and then by the General Assembly to $12 million. The state is facing a $15 million budget deficit, and is considering further cuts.

The $12 million finally agreed upon by the legislature was a reduction of $12 million from the Governor’s request. The legislature included $12 million in new funds for the university, and $12 million in additional funds for the university’s departments.

Governor Mark Shields has recommended a budget of $12 million, which would cover the cost of the university’s various departments.

In a letter to the university’s president, Governor Mark Shields explained that the university is facing a budget deficit of $15 million, and that the legislature has agreed to cut $12 million from the university’s budget.

Although the university has received $12 million in new funds, Governor Mark Shields recommended that the university continue to reduce its budget in order to avoid further cuts.

As the Daily Pennsylvanian, the student newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania, is the best way to disseminate the achievements of the students, the faculty, and the administration of the university.

I am convinced that the entire question of budget cuts must be addressed by the students, the faculty, and the administration of the university.

The problem of the bureaucracy is exacerbated by the widespread presence of individuals who are not aware of the fact that they are working for the university.

Keiter is bad luck as wrestlers fall to Owls

By BY JAY RABINOWITZ

The first step to a wrestling season comes in January at the annual January meet. During this meet, the Quakers face off against some of their toughest opponents of the season. This year, the meet was held at the University of Pennsylvania and was highlighted with what will go down as one of the greatest meets in Quaker history.

The meet was split into two parts: the morning session and the afternoon session. The morning session began with the lightweights, and the afternoon session continued with the heavier weights.

The Quakers were victorious in both sessions, with a combined score of 18-17. The meet was held in the Palestra, and the Quakers were able to use their home court advantage to their advantage.

The meet was a great success for the Quakers, and it was a great start to the wrestling season. The Quakers are looking forward to the rest of the season and hope to continue their success.

First winning season in 16 years

Varsity takes the cake

By BY SARA KLEPPINGER

The last decision for the winter season was made on Thursday afternoon, when the university announced that the Quakers would be returning to the NCAA for the first time since 1956.

The decision was made after a five-year drought, during which time the Quakers were unable to make the NCAA tournament. The decision was made after a long and careful deliberation by the university's athletic department.

The decision was met with great enthusiasm by the Quakers' fans, who had been waiting for this moment for a long time. The Quakers' fans were excited to see their team take on the best teams in the country and compete for a national title.

The Quakers' coach, Dick Harter, was also pleased with the decision. He said that the Quakers had been working hard all season to get to this point, and that he was confident that they could succeed.

The Quakers' season is just getting started, and they are looking forward to the future. The Quakers are hoping to make a strong showing in the NCAA tournament and to bring home a national title.

Squash finishes home finale today

By MARK PEARLMAN

Squash is a popular sport that is enjoyed by both men and women. The sport is played on a court with two players, and the objective is to hit a small ball with a racquet and score points by hitting the ball into the opponent's side of the court.

The Quakers' squash team is playing their home finale today, and they are looking forward to the match. The team is made up of both men and women, and they are all working hard to win.

The Quakers' coach, Steve Makar, is confident that his team can win. He said that the Quakers have been working hard all season, and that he is confident that they can succeed.
