Faulty Election Picks Only U. Council Seats

By JEFF SVERKIN

PHILIP ZIVIN

With just over 1,000 persons voting 13 undergraduates were elected to the University Council after a precedent-breaking procedure and the election of the College of General Studies. The students were then on the other three residential units -- the form of student government, the creation of a student body, and the University's policy regarding the College's internal politics. -- before a final decision can be reached.

The winning candidates were the College of General Studies, the form of student government, the creation of a student body, and the University's policy regarding the College's internal politics. -- before a final decision can be reached.

The winning candidates were the College of General Studies, the form of student government, the creation of a student body, and the University's policy regarding the College's internal politics. -- before a final decision can be reached.

The winning candidates were the College of General Studies, the form of student government, the creation of a student body, and the University's policy regarding the College's internal politics. -- before a final decision can be reached.

The winning candidates were the College of General Studies, the form of student government, the creation of a student body, and the University's policy regarding the College's internal politics. -- before a final decision can be reached.
Tiberius

(Continued from page 1)

He claimed that the decision to hire Mrs. Gross was made because her teaching ability and the fact that she was an outstanding person were the most important factors involved in making the decision. Cohen also stated that Mrs. Gross was hired in order to advance the research prestige of the university and that her research was superior to that of Tiberius. Cohen and Tiberius went on to explain that their research capabilities and interests in all applicants were considered.

Tiberius, a Thursday night television program, portrayed the faculty members with atmosphere and opened eyes from 6:00 to midnight at Hill Auditorium.

International students have placed no deadline on the negotiations, he said, that he had been thinking of possible action in case the negotiations prove fruitless, but refused to detail that action. The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.

Tiberius said he was asked faculty members to express their feelings on the selection. Following this procedure, one name was referred to the department, that of Miss Zivin. The university, he said, would probably decline such an offer.

Tiberius commented that "having tenure complies your teaching seems to be the key of the door to the academic world. People seem to think that good teaching excludes the good scholar," he said.

The head of the department, Walpole, and his chief assistant, Mrs. Gross, were apparently opposed to principle, having students in the department who were candidates for the position, that the two were allegedly opposed to their exclusion. Tiberius explained, according to Miss Zivin, that the faculty was divided in order to avoid building their own research empire.
null
The Intransigence of the administration

The administration argues that, because...
IF YOU ARE INTERESTED IN SKIMMER
(APRIL 17)

READ ABOUT THE HASSLE:

SLY AND THE FAMILY STONE HAVE CANCELLED ALL THEIR ENGAGEMENTS BECAUSE SLY HAS A BLEEDING ULCER. SORRY - WE'RE CRYING TOO.

WE ARE DESPERATELY TRYING TO GET A SUBSTITUTE ACT - BUT ONLY A GOOD ONE. IF WE CAN'T GET A SUITABLE REPLACEMENT, WE'LL HAVE TO HAVE PAUL BUTTERFIELD ALONE ON HILL FIELD FOR $3 A TICKET. CHECK THE D.P. ON MONDAY FOR AN ANNOUNCEMENT. SORRY ABOUT THE HASSLE.
purposes: and our understanding was without prior notice, but the entire only were our materials edited packet had assumed a character not In light of this disagreement as to our of the organization and attempted to ed since the summer.
commitments which had been promis-
— the use of facilities necessary for our relationship between the Black Law progress.
— the use of facilities necessary for our
Law School and the community.
initial response to what we feel is principle" he could not grant our re-other, we received a response from the unreasonably lengthy delay pre-workers if they can agree on reor-
Congress Friday asking for the 6 organizational mail service.
Ehrlichman, will cost the government
$1.2 billion for the current fiscal

By United Press International
WASHINGTON—Government and service would be unnecessary if the 6 percent raise for all federal Ehrlich said the 6 percent pay raise would cover all military workers if they can agree on reor-

We do nice things for students.
And their pocketbooks.

We know student travel is important. But expenses. So we’re helping to bring down costs. You can have a $23 room at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago for just $9. And rooms at similar reduced rates at 60 other Hilton Hotels and Inns from Oregon to Florida.

Name.
Home address.
College address.
Class of

Come Visit the Hiltons

Pennsylvanians + Villanova Glee Club Concert

Annenburg Auditorium 8:00 PM

FREE
EARTH WEEK TECHNICAL SYMPOSIA

APRIL 6 - 10

The Earth Week Committee is not just staging the public events of Earth Week that are described below. An integral part of the program involves a five day technical symposia of professors, students, scientists, and businessmen discussing and analyzing, among other things, raw pollution data gathered by EWC from many Philadelphia area industrial polluters.

This phase of Earth Week is to provide a technical foundation for dialogue regarding the regional environment and to produce the following:

1) A HANDBOOK stating the environmental problems of the Greater Philadelphia Region;

2) A CONTINUING DIALOGUE between technical experts from academia, industry, government and citizen groups.

Next week's public events are:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>MONDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>APRIL 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>KEYNOTE MEETING</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>AN INVENTORY OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROBLEMS IN THE PHILADELPHIA AREA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temple U.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>9:30 A.M.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>FRIDAY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>APRIL 10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SUMMARY PRESENTATION &amp; TINICUM MARSH: A CASE STUDY</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temple U.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>11:30 A.M.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

EARTH WEEK PUBLIC EVENTS

APRIL 16-22

MONDAY, APRIL 16

- Radiation
  - Dr. Ralph Lapp (formally with the Atomic Energy Comm.)

- Air Pollution
  - Dr. Helmut Landa, Prof. of Climatology, Univ. of Maryland

- Water Pollution

Tuesday, April 17

- Health & Pathology
  - Dr. Rene Dubos, Biologist, Pulitzer Prize winner, "No Human is Normal"

Wednesday, April 18

- Population
  - Dr. Paul Ehrlich, Author, The Population Bomb

Thursday, April 19

- Religious Attitudes & Beliefs
  - Dr. Kenneth Watt, Ecologist, Stanford U.

Friday, April 20

- Politics, Economics, & Sociology
  - Kenneth Boulding, Prof. of Economics, University of Colorado

Saturday, April 21

- Entertainment
  - The Broadway cast of Environmental Sabbath

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 22

STARTING TIME

12:00 NOON

A MASS GATHERING AT BELMONT PLATEAU IN FAIRMOUNT PARK WILL MIX PUBLIC SPEECHES WITH ENTERTAINMENT, ALL RELATED TO ENVIRONMENTAL AWARENESS, THE PROBLEMS AND PROPOSED SOLUTIONS.

SPEAKERS:

- EDMUND MUSKIE
  U.S. Senator, Maine
  Author of "Dune"
  Urban Planner, Author and National Book Award Winner

- FRANK HERBERT
  Author and National Book Award Winner, 1967

- GEORGE WALD
  Nobel Prize Winner, 1967

- IAN MUIRHEAD
  Chairman, Dept. of Landscape Architecture & Regional Planning, University of Pennsylvania, Author of "Design with Nature"
  Co-Director with Buckminster Fuller, World Resources Inventory, Author Edition and Poet

- JOHN MCNALLY
  Author and National Book Award Winner

- ALLEN GINSBERG

ENTERTAINMENT:

- REDBONE, NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN BAND
  Swarthmore
  9:00 P.M.

- THE AMERICAN DREAM AND OTHERS
  Independence Mall
  Starting time
  1:30 P.M.

The Earth Week Committee needs your help. We are the nucleus for the Earth Day activities for over twenty major colleges in this area. We are here at Penn and we need you to carry out the activities and to implement the proposals that will be published by the technical symposia.

Come over to the Fine Arts Building, on the Second Floor.

Saves this page for your Earth Week Schedule.
Racquetmen Hope to Shovel Bruins--Weather Permitting

By LARA KLEPPINGER

With over a foot of snow covering the Brown campus and the weather forecast looking bleak, the tennis courts at Amy Level were expected to remain barren until after the holidays.

Last year the Quakers took their worst beating from the Crimson, 8-1, and if the match is played this year it will be a clean sweep for the Crimson.

Molly's one-two punch of Chapman and Gary DeFrancesca, who were instrumental in the Princeton victory of Bobby goats and Gary DeFrancesca.

"Faucian probably has their best ace in Chapman," he said. "And Bobby Gossy, prisoner of the Penn athletic department, is a man of many talents on the court and off the court. However, we've had at least five years.

But before the East and Blue racquetmen meet the Tigers are the season finals, which will be held in Princeton. The "Blue," as we named them, were at least, have at least five years.

Mother Nature, Villanova Pose Problems for Penn Nine

By BILL MITTE

Baseball coach Bob Murray spent the cold autumn months driving his squad, which spent the entire winter months playing in the相对于 track.

As the team struggled through the winter months, they were unable to find a home field advantage without playing at night. It's an old-fashioned baseball field, and if it's not the best, at least it's the most expensive playground in the city with the hardest wooden slabs this side of the Forest Hills tennis courts.

Despite the frigid conditions, the team continued to improve, and by the end of the season, they were a competitive force in the Ivy League.

With over a foot of snow covering the Brown campus and the weather forecast looking bleak, the tennis courts at Amy Level were expected to remain barren until after the holidays.

Adams Cautious as Stickmen Prime for Revenge with Elis

By JIM LORAY

After a continuous building throughout of the season, the post-season is now at hand. The Quakers are in the thick of the competition, and a win over Elis would put them in a strong position for a possible Ivy League championship.

The team has been working hard throughout the season, and with the pressure of the post-season now on, they are ready to give their all. A win over Elis would be a huge boost to their confidence and a step towards achieving their goal.