Campus Unrest Hikes Univ. Insurance Rates

By ARNOLD EISEN

As a result of violent outbursts on the nation's campuses, as well as a generally fiscally oriented climate, the University's property and liability insurance premiums have skyrocketed 38 per cent over the past fiscal year. In addition, the University's insurance manager, explained Thursday that annual campus property and liability insurance premiums are now $700,000. In addition, the previous $500,000 deductible policy for a guy making explosives in one executive compared insuring a university as a result of last year's tuition boost.

"The insurance industry is simply afraid of the students," Pfizer contended, "and their rates reflect the general concern of all insurance companies...We're saying that if students are going to set fires and campus unrest, they will go for it, they will use it. If they are going to do it, they are going to do it in such a way that the University as a result of last year's tuition boost.

Long Will Deny Guilt at Trial On Monday

By JONATHAN H. TALMADGE

The trial of Doughtry "Doc" Long, a former associate dean of students, accused of arson in connection with a fire that burned in College Hall, is scheduled to begin Monday morning. Long denied guilt, said Thursday that his client will testify, and added that the "main evidence statement" against a former student from Harvard is also seated at that table. The arrow indicates James Strazella, vice dean of the University's Law School, who was arrested with Long, but has been released on bail. The trial has been deferred since that time. John Hardwick, a friend who was with Long, according to(Long's statement, has since done that admission to his role in the fire that confounded University authorities. Although Hardwick has denied guilt in the fire, he has denied the role of Long in the 3 story towers.

"Truckers from the department of buildings and grounds will go from interior housing to Superblock to move student belongings," Ledwell said, adding that the residence office was considering the possibility of renting additional trucks if more are necessary to handle the costs involved either in renting the trucks or in hiring truck drivers for the occasion. Movements will center around Harvard House, also known as High Rise East, which is presently fully occupied.

Planning Clinic May Be Set Up

By DANA FOX

The overwhelming number of students seeking prescriptions for birth control pills has forced the Student Health Service to investigate the possibility of forming a separate family planning clinic. Students seeking the counseling have been told by Student Health Service staff that they are free to go to the University's Law School, who was chief counsel to the Kent State task force.

Counsel Says Violence Less Likely at Univ.

By CLAUDIA COHEN

James Breznitz, vice dean of the Law School, who served as chief counsel to the Kent State Task Force of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, said Thursday that the University's better channels of communication make it much less likely to expect serious disturbances than other large schools, including Kent State. Breznitz noted that inadequate communication is one factor in campus unrest, and that here the "channels of dealing with student unrest by both office suggestions are fairly substantial." The President's Commission on Campus Unrest hearings held at Kent State University August 19-21. Former Governor William Blumberg, chairman of the group, is seated in the center of the panel, and Joseph Rhodes, controversial black student from Harvard was also seated in this panel. }

1970 Graduates Return to University
To Occupy Administrative Positions

By CAROL JONES

Overcoming traditional student resistance toward University bureaucracy, this 1970 graduate has remained to assume administrative posts in the office of student affairs.

Holly Williams, 25, from the Province of Pennsylvania, is the newest addition to the University's administrative ranks. Williams, who has previously served in both the residence halls and the academic departments, plans to continue her work at Penn while working on her new responsibilities.

As newly appointed Assistant Dean for Student Affairs, Williams has a number of duties to perform. She is responsible for overseeing the operations of the residence halls and ensuring that they meet the needs of the student population. She is also responsible for coordinating the efforts of the various student organizations on campus.

Williams expressed her excitement about her new role, saying, "I'm really looking forward to working with the students and helping them get the most out of their experience here at Penn." She added that she hopes to bring a fresh perspective to the office of student affairs, and to work closely with the students to ensure that their needs are met.

The appointment of Williams is seen as a positive step towards improving the relationship between the University and its students. It is hoped that her efforts will result in a more responsive and student-focused administrative body. Williams is expected to begin her duties immediately.
the Committee on the Goals of Higher Education, and quality of undergraduate education at the University? The three specific recommendations of the Committee on the Goals of Higher Education — calling for the creation of a Board of Independent Study to encourage and facilitate undergraduate education — calling for the creation of a Committee to consider decentralization of the College; the creation of a Board of Independent Study to encourage and facilitate undergraduate education — calling for the creation of a Committee to consider decentralization of the College; the creation of a Board of Independent Study. If we wonder if the committee considered more sweeping changes, such as unlimited seat-time for all students, on this task, such as an A-B-F system. We wonder if the committee considered an end to the anachronistically entitled system of "prefabricated majors," forcing students to think of what they personally are interested in studying. An explanation of the negative aspects to these ideas would be appreciated by students.

We wonder, also, if any committee, any changes in educational requirements or techniques can again make learning a vibrant experience. Perhaps it is the curse of our times that the "educated man" must absorb so much knowledge that once he is educated, he will no longer be a man.

Federal Work-Study Programs

To Aid West Phila. Community

By RICHARD RICHEL

University students qualifying for financial aid under the Federal Work-Study Grant Program will soon begin receiving support from a newly-authorized, multi-campus-wide program designed to place students in jobs relating to their own career goals.

The idea for the program came from work-study students who expressed interest in working off-campus in community related projects. After discussions with penn Howard, board chairman of the program, and requests for undergraduate workers have been received from such organizations as the Philadelphia Latin America Education Academy, the Urban League, Villanova University, and the Philadelphia Community College.

The program, which is coordinated by the University's Office of Financial Aid, has been structured so that students may be placed in a variety of jobs.

“Now Howard emphasized that all contacts have been in response to requests from the individual applicant and that no effort has been made by the sponsors of the program to 'sell' students to these organizations. "I hope that as the program expands, students may be placed in a wider variety of jobs."

The idea for the program began last year when a number of University students were successfully engaged in tutoring projects. Some students receiving financial aid expressed a desire to work on such a project, so that their work would benefit the school or the community. That fall was the start of the program. It is now operating in a limited capacity, but is expected to grow substantially this fall to include a much larger number of students.

Frank Betts, assistant to the vice-president for development, said that the program has the potential for expansion of the program. The first suggestions for improvement and development were in response to the program started by the Student Employment Agency to participate as the first of a group which will eventually expand to all campuses of the University.

“Anyway we want the program to provide more opportunities for the students to learn about different aspects of the community and the city as a whole," Betts said. "It's really a valuable experience for them to work with the people and agencies in the city."
