Univ. to Take Stand On Lettuce Boycott

By SARAH WILSON

The University dining service will soon decide whether to take up the current lettuce boycott, following a request from the lettuce workers' union, the United Farm Workers of America (UFW). It has already been agreed that the University will support the UFW's boycott of California lettuce, said Monday, May 24, 1970.

The UFW had been asked to participate in the boycott, but as yet, none of them have officially supported it.

The head of the University Dining Services, Keith Hazeltine, said Monday, May 24, 1970, that he would not participate in the boycott until there is a decision by the University Dining Service. He also added that the dining service is in the process of selecting the lettuce suppliers, and will then decide whether to participate in the boycott. Hazeltine added that the decision will be based on the conditions of lettuce workers in California, and in order for the boycott to be effective, it would need the support of the lettuce workers in California. In order for the boycott to be effective, it would need the support of the lettuce workers in California, Hazeltine said Monday, May 24, 1970.

Hazeltine added that if there is a significant change in conditions between various lettuce areas and the lettuce workers, he would make his decision in favor of the boycott. He is attempting to arrange a boycott with the lettuce workers in California. In order for the boycott to be successful, Hazeltine said Monday, May 24, 1970, that the lettuce workers in California will have to be able to demonstrate that they are not just vying against another for the well-being of migrant workers.

The lettuce workers in California have been asked to present their case to the University, and Hazeltine said that he would not participate in the boycott until there is a decision by the University. a testimonial local. Chavez and his organizational team continued to work after they had already contacted the local media and local churches. Baseline explained, and they needed another avenue to capture their continued publicity and success.

They decided to expand their efforts to connect the University to the community. In this case, the dining service became an important conduit for the two organizations.

They agreed to work at the free school. "We are always there from 8 A.M. to 5:30 or 6 A.M. and stay with students until 11:30 or even later," he added.

All those affiliated with the school said they had a very negative reaction to newspaper coverage, saying that they feared returning to the school board and patience that might eventually force the school to close down.

The strike, however, was short lived in effect. Ross commented, because labor contractors could not possibly run up the costs and cut their labor from Sears. Since it is impossible to stop the production of California lettuce, Ross said, the only means of increasing conditions for workers is indirectly by production boycotts.

The UFO, Ross remarked, is attempting throughout North America to organize boycotts. However, he added, that volunteer boycott may not be effective. "It is tough on campus Monday to encourage a boycott of goods that would not have been bought anyway," California lettuce. The Food Fair chain was the primary object of target. Ross mentioned. When a Food Fair representative was asked Monday whether or not his chain has suspended its order of California lettuce, he replied, "I don't think so."

They're are existential.

That's the reason why everyone is riding them these days, not because it's cool and snazzy to hop up into your clunky old bicycle. But not because bicycles are some new-fangled transportation device. Bicycles have been around since ancient times, and their basic design has remained unchanged for centuries. It's the age of technological advancement and progress, and people are now looking to bicycles as a means of transportation that is both sustainable and healthy. The ultimate commitment to today's lifestyle: they buy a lock, a chain, the ultimate answer to the problems of the twenty-first century.

People clearly define the ride as an act of resistance, or even a form of protest. It is the ultimate expression of solidarity with the world. The骑行 is a symbol of the resistance against the forces of totalitarianism. It is no longer a symbol of rebellion, but a celebration of the individual's right to freedom.

No longer are bicycles just for the young, the news is out that women are also turning to them. It's no longer just a youthful activity, but a way of life. It's a way to ride, dream, and be. And with the rise of the women's movement, women are rediscovering the joy of riding a bicycle.

The ride is a form of exercise, and it's also a form of recreation. It's a way to escape from the daily grind, and to enjoy the beauty of nature. It's a way to connect with the world, and to feel a sense of freedom and joy.

And once you're on the road, the experience you've just ridden is now a part of your existence. It's not just a form of transportation, but also a form of exercise. It's a way to connect with the world, and to feel a sense of freedom and joy.

So if you're feeling down, or if you're just looking for a way to escape, then put on your helmet, grab your bike, and go out for a ride. It's the ultimate form of resistance, and it's a way to connect with the world. And who knows, you might just find yourself falling in love with the ride of your life.

As F. Scott Fitzgerald once said, "The rich people are very different from us, but we have money. We may as well make the best of it." And so we must ride our bicycles, and make the best of our lives.

And for you ecologists out there, remember that the bicycle is the ultimate form of resistance, and it's a way to connect with the world. And who knows, you might just find yourself falling in love with the ride of your life.
