Nation Goes to Polls As Leaders Exchange Charges

By MAURICE ORSTEHL

WASHINGTON -- Candidates for the Senate and the House are exchanging charges this week in an effort to win control of both chambers.

The chief stake in today's balloting is control of the Senate, where the Republicans hope to win or maintain a 50-48 majority.

The chief Republican targets are seats now held by: Democrat W. Proctor Johnson of West Virginia; Democrat Richard Monongahela of Pennsylvania; Democrat Al Gore of Tennessee; and Democrat Harold W. Hughes of South Carolina.

Democrats, who hold a 60-39 majority in the Senate, are aiming to win back control.

The Republicans have some difficulty predicting where they will end up.

The president's strategy is to get both the Senate and the House.

He will not be pleased unless the Republicans pass their tax cut plan in the House.

The president last week said he would not sign a fiscal 1984 budget bill that did not include a tax cut.

Lawyers have been recommended for the tenured staff positions, said the provost.

The provost had notified tenure and of his intention to endorse her promotion to Battling for the party in the administration - 27 seats in the House and four in the Senate - has never been more pressing for the Republicans.

If the president's party fails to win control of the Senate, it will lose its majority.

Psychology Registration

Junior and senior psychology majors will receive preferential treatment in course assignment when the department's new system of preregistration begins Wednesday.

Homer, a professor of psychology, said majors should hand in the permits with their registration materials next week to guarantee timely choice in course assignments.

Homer added they cannot handle 1-B section preferences.

The change has been made, Homer noted, because in the past prior and senior majors have been closed out of courses, resulting in "access of pain, anger, and frustration."

The Governorship is currently held by Pennsylvania Republican Senator Arthur (Tip) O'Neill, who is retiring this year. The Democratic candidate is Secretary of State William Scranton.

Scranton has been said to be the front-runner in the primary because he has the backing of both the Democratic establishment and labor unions. He has large campaign funds and is able to buy television commercials.

Thus far the number of voters who have cast ballots has been small, so it is difficult to predict who will win the primary.

Scranton is favored to win the primary because he is the only candidate who has been able to finance a major campaign, according to most observers.

Scranton has the advantage of name recognition, having served as the Senate majority leader and the House minority leader.

Scranton is also favored to win the primary because he has the support of many key Democrats, including Governor Frank Lautenberg, who is a close friend of Scranton's.

NEPAL'S STATE HASHISH STORES: HIGHS IN THE HIMALAYAS

By CHARLES A. KRAUSE

KATMANDU, NEPAL — Across the street from the Café Kilm, which specializes in hashish-filled croissants and Belgian beer (marijuana, too), is the government-licensed State Hashish Store, which supplies both the Café Kilm and the marijuana plant thrive. After caring and refining, the hashish and raw marijuana are brought to Katmandu for sale.

Although government officials claim that hashish and marijuana “grains,” there is little that can stop the abundant, handsome, thousands of pounds of the staff which are exported. Strangers are clever and it is easy to send kilos of hashish or ganja out of the country.

Tilpat was isolated from the world. Television will be used to reach both urban schoolchildren and rural farmers with educational television programs. The rural education program is an extension of the Krishi Darshan educational television program in which viewers are asked to be present at specific times to receive educational programs.

The Tilpat program includes the following educational television programs:

1. Agriculture: The program focuses on the cultivation of various crops and the care of livestock.
2. Health: The program emphasizes the importance of health and hygiene, and the prevention of diseases.
3. Nutrition: The program highlights the importance of healthy eating and proper nutrition.
4. Economics: The program discusses the importance of saving, investing, and managing money.
5. Environment: The program raises awareness about environmental issues and sustainable living.

Crystal Balling Election Night

The campaign of 1970 has been one of the most confusing in many years for a great many people. Critical issues have been lost and distorted. Instead of with the problems themselves on the defensive political parties to face the problems officially declared a waste. Nothing has succeeded in trying to make the political parties and the voter is presented with men who, in shifting the issue from whether or not we should be in Southeast Asia to whether or not a candidate supported the war. The President of all the citizens has not succeeded in trying to make the political parties and the voter is presented with men who, in shifting the issue from whether or not we should be in Southeast Asia to whether or not a candidate supported the war. The most powerful Senator we ever had is huskie in trial run for '72.

Lenore sinking fast from Hart attack. Stennis is the one. Anderson a-Head. Nebraska gets "mediocre representation" as an independent. Senator Thomas Dodd, Democratic incumbent is running as an independent. New York. Opposed by James Buckley, Conservative party candidate.

The real tragedy is that the politics of polarization is in operation. From both parties agree that the Republicans will pick up a number of Senate seats. The real issues are not being heeded. Both parties are taking negative, scare positions. They must clarify the issues. This the party out of power that challenges the present status quo. It has to be the party out of power that challenges the present status quo.

But it was still some things that I did wrong against Columbia last year. So far this season, I have sprained my ankle in a sophomore JV game, broke my collarbone as a freshman, and now I have a shoulder problem that's not too bad. The industrial labor relations major claimed. Messing smiled when asked about the difficulties. "Let's not talk about that," he said with a wink, and than added. "It's a funny situation. It's tough for me to talk about my own security force."

"You could see it as you watched Gomez, Bogovich, Thomas, and company cut through the normally stiff Penn backfield with crisp, short passes. You could see it as you watched England's Chris Wilmot anchor the stingy defensive units."

Ruggers Divide Pair

The Rugby Club split a pair of games with Whitman's Rugby Club at Fort Washington Park on Sunday. While the "A" team (15-0) outlasted Northeast, the "B" team (5-0) rolled a 6-0 victory to save the afternoon. Joe Gongola bolstered two penalty kicks and Tom Sheehy passed him for 1-0 to get the side off the field. In the 76ers game, Bill Douglass scored all six points for the Red and Blue on a penalty kick and a try in a 16-9 victory. Douglass did it with an assist.

"I have to talk to the best fullback in the country at Pennsylvania," said Howie Fine was credited with an assist. "We won from the start, and I think that Howie Fine was the best fullback in the country at Pennsylvania."

"Whitemarsh is by far the best team we've faced."

"And when Greg Leavitt graduates from Harvard next spring, it will probably be the best team he'll face."

"But Harvard had more than raw talent. Years and years of foreign polish, the kind that comes with playing international football (soccer) instead of the hometown brand."
