Mixed Univ. Reaction

By BEN OLIVIER

Curtis Reitz, the long-awaited choice for Provost of the University, was greeted with enthusiasm by students and faculty alike on Friday as he was announced as the new provost for the University. Reitz, currently a professor in the law school, will assume his new duties as provost on Jan. 1, 1971. He is replacing Dr. David Reitz

Reitz's appointment as provost was greeted with enthusiasm by the members of the University community. Reitz's former dean at the Law School, Robert Lampert, who as associate provost will serve directly under the new provost, both externally and in shaping University policy.

Reitz's appointment was greeted with enthusiasm by the members of the University community. Reitz's former dean at the Law School, Robert Lampert, who as associate provost will serve directly under the new provost, both externally and in shaping University policy.

...A political issue is added to the...
Letters

Concerned Colleagues Against Abortion Abuse

To the Daily Pennsylvania,

Due to the difficulties people are experiencing in obtaining a legal abortion, most people suffering these hardships have been forced to seek abortion services outside of Pennsylvania. These groups charge substantially for these services and naturally this results in higher costs to the patient. Since these services are not offered locally or at government expense, it is obvious that more funds are needed to meet their demands.

Concerned Colleagues Against Abortion Abuse

Plenum

From page 1: part of the program dealing with student services.

The drafters of the resolutions are designed to speak to areas where student money is spent on student-related areas. To an extent, this can help it (but this has isolated me from the campus in only the physical sense). Maybe I just lucked out. But I'm not complaining.

Friday, Dec. 9, 12:30 P.M. in University Counseling Service, will talk on "The Job Market for Undergraduate Women at Penn."

Campus Events

OFFICIAL PLACEMENT OFFICE: how do we help you? Come to the Placement Office to find out how we can help you find a job that will help you to pursue your career aspirations. Join us for lunch and discussion about the latest job openings and strategies for successful job searches. "All Questions Are Designed to Help You in Your Career Development."

Penn Player: The cookies are due December 15. Also, penn players will get a free brownie and a sweater.

Why Buy Retail!... When You Can Get It At The WHOLESALE CENTER

FIAT

850 Sport Spider

850 Sport Coupe

Plenum

From page 1: part of the program dealing with student services.

The drafters of the resolutions are designed to speak to areas where student money is spent on student-related areas. To an extent, this can help it (but this has isolated me from the campus in only the physical sense). Maybe I just lucked out. But I'm not complaining.

Friday, Dec. 9, 12:30 P.M. in University Counseling Service, will talk on "The Job Market for Undergraduate Women at Penn."
Egghead Meets Hardhat: The Intellectual in Middle-ish America

"Egghead Meets Hardhat: The Intellectual in Middle-ish America" is a title suggesting a discussion about the relationship between intellectuals and Middle American society, possibly exploring the perceived gaps or misunderstandings between these groups. The text likely delves into topics such as the respect and perception of intellectuals in Middle America, the role of education, and perhaps the cultural differences that may exist between the two groups. The mention of Dwight D. Eisenhower and other intellectual figures may indicate a historical context or a discussion of political and social contexts where these themes are relevant.

The content may explore the idea of intellectual pretensions being perceived as a barrier by the non-intellectual population, with both sides engaging in similar rhetoric for their own ends. It might touch on the question of how well intellectuals understand or engage with the concerns and values of Middle Americans, and vice versa. The text could also discuss the concept of education and its role in bridging these gaps or, conversely, maintaining them. The title implies a dialogue that seeks to understand the perceptions and aspirations of both sides to foster a better understanding and perhaps a bridge between them.
President Meyerson has made his choice, and despite any protestations or reservations on our part, Curtis Reitz will be the new provost.

In the only major public decision of his first semester as President, Meyerson has demonstrated that it is he, and not his newly named provost, who will be driving the force behind any educational advances within the University. While we find Curtis Reitz to be a man of unquestioned integrity and brilliance within his chosen academic field, we nevertheless greet his appointment as provost less than enthusiastically.

We had hoped that the new provost would champion academic reform within the University, especially in the undergraduate areas where quality is most lacking and reform most needed. But Reitz, who has spent his entire academic career within the Law School, shows little promise of satisfying this need. He is, for the most part, unknown throughout the various constituencies of the University. But Reitz's contacts with under- and graduate students or even with the younger, more active faculty members is limited. He is, for the most part, unknown throughout Pennsylvania 19104. Phones: (215) 594 6581. Display and

We had hoped that the new provost would have the tools to attract prominent new faculty members to the University, despite the University's weak stance in the area of faculty salaries. Yet Reitz is essentially an ingred product of the University, whose contacts with other universities are probably limited to the law faculty.

We had hoped that the new provost would have ready-made lines of communication to the University, and while his past activities limited to the law faculty. We had hoped that the new provost would have the tools to attract prominent new faculty members to the University, despite the University's weak stance in the area of faculty salaries. Yet Reitz is essentially an ingred product of the University, whose contacts with other universities are probably limited to the law faculty.

We had hoped that the new provost would have ready-made lines of communication to the University, and while his past activities limited to the law faculty. We had hoped that the new provost would have the tools to attract prominent new faculty members to the University, despite the University's weak stance in the area of faculty salaries. Yet Reitz is essentially an ingred product of the University, whose contacts with other universities are probably limited to the law faculty.

We had hoped that the new provost would have ready-made lines of communication to the University, and while his past activities limited to the law faculty. We had hoped that the new provost would have the tools to attract prominent new faculty members to the University, despite the University's weak stance in the area of faculty salaries. Yet Reitz is essentially an ingred product of the University, whose contacts with other universities are probably limited to the law faculty.
Tuesday, December 8, 1970

A student examines the goods for sale at the University Crafts Bazaar, now set up in Student Union every day from 11 A.M. to 2 P.M. The bazaar which contains goods made by various members of the University community and students, may become a permanent part of Student Union. Prominent among the booths have Bourbon goods, wooden sleds or fruit bowls, silk screen prints, crocheted hats and belts, and other jewelry. However any member of the University community who is willing to run a booth may also sell his goods. Originality is the key word here. Anyone who provides such goods may sell at prices lower than those of regular crafts stores.

Classifieds

JOCKS OR NO JOCKS?

That’s ONE of the Questions

AT THE PLENUM ON FINANCES

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 9

7:30 PM.

IRVINE. AUD.
Sports Shorts

Offensive and PETE LUCIANO is the lone Quaker on the 1970 Associated Press first-team all-sport list. In his senior year, he had 341 yards and six touchdowns on 90 carries. He led the team in scoring with 130 points. Luciano was a member of the 1969 Ivy League championship team.

Varsity basketball stats

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>TEAM</th>
<th>PER-</th>
<th>GAMES</th>
<th>MIN</th>
<th>POINTS</th>
<th>PERCENT</th>
<th>REBOUNDS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>MEN</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>WOMEN</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Gamble Says Football Must Be Satisfying

By PHIL SHINKIN

Someone might have expected Harry Gamble to be at Lafayette coach Jack Gagliano's side when he was introduced as Princeton's coach in 1966. But Gamble wasn't near the Ivy to try to take away Princeton's national gridiron title. He already had his own program to worry about. Gamble had been a player and assistant coach at Lafayette for 14 years, and after the 1965 season, he was named the school's head coach. He led the team to a 7-2-1 record in his first year, and in 1967, they finished 8-2-1, winning the Ivy League championship.

He was a successful coach, but Gamble was more than just a football coach. He was also a mentor, a confidant, and a friend to his players. He was known for his passion and dedication to the game, and his players respected him for it. Gamble's success at Princeton was a testament to his ability to lead a team and to develop young men into football players.

Gamble was a man of integrity, and he always put his team's best interests first. He was a role model for his players and for the community. He was a man who had a vision for what he wanted his program to be, and he worked hard to make it happen.

Gamble was a man of few words, but his actions spoke volumes. He was a man who believed in hard work and dedication, and he taught his players that success didn't come easy. He was a man who believed in the power of teamwork, and he taught his players that they had to work together to achieve success.

Gamble was a man who knew how to lead, and he was a man who knew how to win. He was a man who had a vision for what he wanted his program to be, and he worked hard to make it happen. He was a man who had a passion for football, and he was a man who was dedicated to the game. He was a man who was a true leader, and he was a man who was a true champion.