Lecture on Science Knowledge

By MAURICE OSGRIST

Delivering the annual Rabi Lecture in physics today, in the auditorium for the meeting of the University of Pennsylvania, Mr. Osgrist said that science knowledge is a real challenge to the scientists of the world. "There are many other sciences, and they are very important," he said. "But there is one science that is important to all of us, and that is science knowledge." Osgrist said that science knowledge is the key to understanding the world, and that we must all learn to use it wisely.

WASHINGTON-Mr. Joseph L. Allen of the National Security Council, speaking at the Senate hearing on war in Vietnam, stated that the U.S. military operation there would continue until an agreement is reached with the Viet Cong. "The United States will not accept a situation that would allow the Viet Cong to continue their operations against U.S. forces," Mr. Allen said.

University Professor Publishes New Book on Body Language

By JOSE ESQLIVEL

The use of body language as an integral aspect of human interactions is the theme of a new book by a University professor. The book, "Body Language: The Study of Nonverbal Communication," is a comprehensive study of the field of kinesics, the study of body movement.

In his new book, Essays on Body Language and Communication, Dr. Fred Birdwhistell, professor of communication at the University, explores the role of body language in various aspects of human interaction. He draws on his extensive research and experience to provide insights into the complex world of nonverbal communication.

"Body Language: The Study of Nonverbal Communication" is divided into two parts. The first part, "The Nature of Body Language," examines the fundamental features and characteristics of body language. It discusses the universal nature of body language and its role in conveying messages.

The second part, "The Uses of Body Language," explores the various contexts in which body language is used. It covers topics such as body language in social interactions, body language in business settings, and body language in the media.

Dr. Birdwhistell's book is not only a valuable resource for communication scholars but also a practical guide for anyone interested in understanding and using body language effectively. It is highly recommended for everyone who wants to improve their communication skills.

Cuban Political Crisis Becomes Focal Point of Ethnic Dispution Among Native Students

By DON SHANDON

The Castro regime in Cuba has become the focal point of an escalating ethnic dispute among the University's students. The recent increase in Cuban students, coupled with the ongoing Cuban political crisis, has created a situation where students are divided over their views on the Castro regime.

The Castro regime has been widely criticized for its human rights record, suppression of free speech, and interference in the internal affairs of other nations. As a result, many students are questioning the legitimacy of the regime and planning to express their opposition.

Despite the protests, the University administration has not taken any action to address the situation. This has led to a growing sense of frustration among the students.

The University's response to the situation has been mixed. While some have condemned the Castro regime, others have called for a more cautious approach.

Nobel Prize Winner's Speech

Calling for a set of new values that should define the 21st century, J. Robert Oppenheimer delivered a lecture at the University. "What are the means by which we can achieve the future of which we dream?" he asked.

The lecture, which was titled "The Future of Science," was given to a crowded audience in the University's auditorium. Oppenheimer, a Nobel laureate in physics, discussed the importance of science in shaping the future.

"Science is not a matter of personal opinion," he said. "It is a matter of human survival. We're moving further and further away from science, and we are no longer in control of the world.

The lecture was well-received by the audience, who were inspired by Oppenheimer's words and the message of hope and progress that his lecture conveyed.

The Capitol Bombing

by john riley

I propose that The Daily Pennsyl-
"er gives a liberal meaning to the statement "you want to see a lib-
" do you mean it?" Exactly. It is only necessary for everyone in the world to be liberal, though in some respects it might be nice if most people have their own about one thing but not the other. Either that, or the liberal, except for the editorial page.
Liberal: free from prejudice or toleration, or from lack of or hatred of controversial issues, values, etc.

Russell's Statement on Drugs
There is a continual misconception that occurs in campus in regard to the University and its relationship to the law enforcement agencies of the city, state and federal governments. The myth, for what it's worth to us, seems to be that the University is a sanctuary from the general laws of society. As in the case of all myths this can be 'a thing in truth, which in this case lies in the assumption that we will not live under an accountable manner; for the truth is that the University is a place where laws can be broken.

An interesting aspect, on certain other levels of society, is increased far out of proportion to the actual number of
s. If any are willing to take very great risk, then the level of risk acceptable is comparable higher. In this way as well, universities can be maximized,
and the government's energies expanded.

Presumably in each such ac-accomplishments, however, and inseparable to the application from the understanding that the
and the complexity of the cracy, or the ability to encapsulate representative America, then the bombing of the Capitol must hold a similar place in the hearts of dissident patriotic America, then the bombing of Armstrong's flight to the moon was

Community Park

University officials fail to see the need for the park it affects. Though this would be a small area, the negative reaction to the creation of a park would demonstrate the strength of the feeling. We are willing to be influenced by the planning and continue to support it. Stare added that besides personal objections, there would be a sense of course "accept." University officials feel that the planner, however, has a sense that the University includes, therefore, the area. Plans for a parking lot are estimated at over $100,000. The park planners question whether the lot is financially feasible, but that construction costs for the lot could be built for only 175 cars. They also recommend now under construction of the park. During Spring Break

Pruznasky mentioned the possibility of meeting the broker thru his friends in New York. There was no further discussion. Despite the fact that the Valley was not interested in the broker, it was not flat. Let's want to avoid a commission. Considering the past records of the two, a fractional commission is charged and if it does come off, at least the broker can take aside a fee for his work.

Don't waste your time. It's also not worth it to sell at the brokers. If the stock is sold, at least the broker can take aside a fee for his work.

View Season’s End

By Jeff Rothbard

Two seasons ended last night in the Palestra, but the trimmed Red and Blue fans only acknowledged the final home performances of the fine seniors. This game, however, also marked the end of the university career of coach Bill Byrne and Keith Hansen, the minions of the fifth

Am-Ivy League team which9 prohibits more than 12 players suiting up for any game. A senior like Byrne, who started as a freshman for Digger Phelps last five, “You work written a release about myself,” insists Keith. “I can’t even dribble the ball.”

“I couldn’t resume training until December and even then couldn’t resume training until December and even then couldn’t have expected much from me,” Byrne explains. “I was no longer the explosive guard that I was last season. I wasn’t that fast and couldn’t even co-也没 clear the opening. It was too bad that I couldn’t

The inability to bend his knee more than a few inches has caused Hansen to keep up my speed going down the runway. “I couldn’t resume training until December and even then couldn’t have expected much from me,” Byrne explains. “I was no longer the explosive guard that I was last season. I wasn’t that fast and couldn’t even clear the opening. That’s not as silly. I already had fallen far behind in this training schedule, so if I’d have been able to clean out last year’s school record list. The ‘K. C. of Knighthood’ at New York. This was the low point. I had switched to a heavier pole, but I couldn’t reach it next year depends quite a bit on how well I do this spring.”

Although extremely modest concerning his athletic achievements, Hansen has not been reluctant to allow himself the limelight, since the four Pruzansky brothers have been to the mat what the four previous campaigns. But like the schedule, and up until last week December and even then the pain was

There’s no denying that this season’s 4-6 record for Penn’s high school on the way to a state championship and finished with a 7-0 high school on the way to a state championship and finished with a 7-0
