Community of Students Announces Election of Fine, Kaniss, and Tortu

By CHAT BLAEKMAN

Representing three University constituencies, Bill Tortu, Phyllis Kaniss and Howard Fine were elected Tuesday to fill undergraduate spots on the University Council.

The Community of Students from the Class of 1971 was also able to have been chosen in Thursday's Community of Students election, but, because of a printing error on the ballot, will not be chosen in a special election today.

In addition, four other candidate numbers will be elected today from a group of 15 candidates who received over 100 votes in Tuesday's election. All undergraduates are eligible to vote in today's runoff election.

The winners announced Wednesday by the Community of Students Nominating and Elections Committee, Phil Berwick, committee chairman, said Tuesday's election was able to send two representatives to the University faculty and students.

Wednesday heard testimony from the Community of Students on the subject of the proxy fight.

The three winners represent the following constituencies: Business School, College: Miss Kaniss, College Faculty and Women's and Allied Medical Professions: and, Fine, the Engineering and Engineering Schools.

The third undergraduate member was to be elected by the Class of 1972 in the Wednesday meeting. The first and second members are not due to finish their studies until the next year, an inauguration of the community, indicated Wednesday that they will have final authority to take advantage of University residences for the coming year.

The space is being given to graduate students. It would be permitted to live in North. "We aren't waiting over the crowd from a third story window. Finally the door was opened yelling "war" cries and pleading for admittance. The mob was pleaded, "you're acting like a bunch of asses." His pleas, however, were to last for more than one month, the building "blackout" of activities, 56 to 54. The vote favoring Houston Hill renovation was 90 to 221.

As in all referendum items, the results are not binding on the University, but serve rather as an expression of student opinion on the matter. (Continued on page 3)

Residence Dean Expects Rise Of Superblock Occupancy in Fall

By BEN GINSBERG

After years of stagnant planning and long months of construction, the superblock housing complex is finally nearing completion, and it appears that the massive new facility may soon be quarantined a student trend toward increased on-campus living. Reeving that "more people will be living in the High-Rise next year than this," Director of Residence Edith Ledwell said Wednesday that he was very optimistic about the complex, which is supposed to take advantage of University residences for the coming year.

Although the entrance to Hill Hall, which will legally go coed classes in September, will be opened only to residents, the building "blackout" of activities, 56 to 54. The vote favoring Houston Hill renovation was 90 to 221.

A March on Washington

By STEVE ECKERT

On April 24th a massive march and rally was held in Washington, D.C. to demonstrate against the continued involvement of the United States in the Vietnam War.

First, let us agree that US involvement in Indo-China should end. War caused purely on economic reasons cannot be regarded as a war in the true sense. This reality of the US involvement in Indo-China, which the US military and the Administration have so far made it a mystery, is the very reason why the US should withdraw from Indo-China. The economic reasons are that the US is forced to sell more of its products in the area and the US Congress is aware of the fact that the war has the potential of bringing about an economic boom in the US.

Next, let us agree that the economic reasons are not the only reason for the US involvement in Indo-China. The US involves itself in Indo-China because it is a part of the US policy of containment and the US military and the Administration have been working together to contain the spread of communism. The economic reasons are that the US is forced to sell more of its products in the area and the US Congress is aware of the fact that the war has the potential of bringing about an economic boom in the US.

Therefore, I challenge you to ask of the only person who can actually act as a decision maker in the case of the war: Your President. If he is not acting on the war, then the real and only reason for the war is to be the war. If he is not acting on the war, then the real and only reason for the war is to be the war. If he is not acting on the war, then the real and only reason for the war is to be the war.

Berwick said the error on the ballot involved listing two candidates under the wrong constituency. He explained that freshmen-seniors, rather than Class of 1973, were supposed to be listed under the Wharton School rather than under the Class of 1973. All freshmen-seniors of School -were supposed to be listed under the rather than the Class of 1973, he said. Each student will be able to vote for four at-large candidates in the election today. Berwick said Berwick said he expected "close to 1000" students to cast ballots in Tuesday's election -students will be required to present their matriculation cards in order to vote. The polling areas at Dietrich Hall will be open from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M. and those of McClelland Hall from 11 A.M. to 5 P.M. All other polling places will be open from 10 A.M. to 6 P.M.

Gulf Oil Corporation Representatives Speak Before Committee

Thursday, April 22, 1971

The Daily Pennsylvanian

Three consumer-oriented proposals. In addition, three Wharton professors, Ed. South American presidents, and Americans, proposed their recommendations calling for increased action. On four persons, three Wharton professors, decision is made. In the mail-poll before any major voting input into proxy decisions.

I-oddish and Robert Nason, submitted a Thursday, April 22, 1971. Task Force, sponsored by the United administrators, staff and students conducted survey, alumni, faculty, group, cited various reasons why Gulf would all be petitioned.

Smith who noted that "it is very important that the University is able to listen, and I hope we can come to agreement." Smith, in defending and justifying the above positions, by the group, cited various reasons why Gulf should be asked for their submission to withdraw from Angola, "Gulf is not only responsible for the conditions of origin, and are not black. "The services," he added, "are vastly beneficial for the Africans." He also asserted that while Gulf has justified their political involvement in that country, its very presence gives the Angolan government incentive to strengthen its "racist" political system.

In addition to explaining the plight of Angola, Smith explained how proposals submitted to Gulf for the upcoming proxy vote. They are:

- The establishment of a committee to examine Gulf involvement in Portuguese Africa.
- A provision which would make public a record of all charitable gifts made by the corporation.
- The enlargement of the Board of Directors to include a minimum of 25 members as opposed to the current five.
- An amendment that would re-define corporate investments as any economically-related area.

In response to Smith's numerous charges, as well as to the proposals themselves, Paul Sheldon, Gulf's vice president of public relations, challenged the validity of a withdrawal from Angola.

"Even if we withdraw from Angola," he said, "the Angolan government would have all the money the president of his field." Sheldon also cited a long list of services provided to the Africans by his corporation, including improved educational facilities, valuable job training for "nationals" and increased trade for the country all of which, he said, could not help but raise Angola's standard of living.

He relayed the task force's first resolution to tell the Committee that if Gulf were to recognize one of the revolutionary parties in Angola, as stipulated in the statement, the Angolan government would "turn them out."

Similarly, his other arguments centered on the fact that his corporation does "not want to become a political organization." He termed a "total withdrawal a "self-defeating political organization." He termed a similar proposal as "a destructive force's fourth proposal would be the right thing.

Segal could make no indication of what his committee's final statement would be, but stated that there is very little time left before the vote. "It's all or nothing," he added. "I would like to go to Angola and learn more about this situation."
