University Will Sell 270-Acre Plot at Historic Valley Forge

By ROBERT KOTZEN
The University has announced the intention to sell 270 acres of land that it owns in Valley Forge. Richard Fox Associates, a real estate firm, has assured an option to purchase the land.

University Treasurer Wm. Johnson said Tuesday that the prospective buyer intends to use the land for educational purposes. He explained that the sale would net some $2.7 million in what University Vice President Wm. Johnson called "unrestricted" funds.

Economists Assess Wage-Price Freeze

by STUART STEIN
According to the most recent report of the Committee on Economic Forecasting Associates, President Nixon's new economic game plan will not produce "exceptionally large changes" in the economy during the next two years. Although some scholars and labor economists are forecasting a "considerable increase" in the price of goods, many experts do not expect it to rise by more than one-half a percent even.

The quiet revolution is occurring in Iran: the literacy rate has dropped from 10 per cent to 5 per cent in one year. The revolution is being spearheaded by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). UNESCO has been working with Iranian schools in order to encourage participation in the project, an incentive program of certain goals.

Dean of Students' Office Forms Student Career Advising Center

by STEPHEN HIG
In response to increasing student interest in combining careers and investigating alternatives to conventional careers planning "Advising Center" has been established in the Dean of Student's office.

The new service will feature career advising for pre-medical and pre-law students, together with advice and information for black students, potential firefighters, and self-identified "career advisors" who are interested in sharing their advice and information.

According to Dr. John J. Collins, student advisor at the University, the center is working to help students determine their career interests and to help them find jobs in fields that are not traditional to their interests.

Another advantage of the program is that it will allow students to share their experiences and insights with others who may be facing similar challenges. The center is open to all students interested in exploring career possibilities. "A great experience" is how one student called the semester-long period she is spending here under the Morgan State College-University of Pennsylvania Student Exchange Program.

The project allows undergraduates from Morgan State, a predominantly black, 4,000-student school in Baltimore, Md., to spend the fall semester at the University, and then return to Morgan Pennsylvania students to spend the spring term.

Hillary Zandi, professor of civil engineering, will describe the alternatives. At tonight's forum, slated for 7:30 P.M., speakers will discuss student-teacher relationships at the two schools, and how it's impossible to know "an experience I'd recommend to everybody," Mrs. Perry pointed out that this could be filled if it was to those who have been great.

Discussing student-teacher relationships at the two schools, one student who spent last spring in Baltimore, called Morgan "a more communal thing" and his stay there as "an experience I'd recommend to anybody." Mrs. Perry pointed out that this was unfriendly, but so far

The social revolution underway in South Vietnam is primarily identified with the National Liberation Front, Communist dominated organization... A popular political base for the Government of South Vietnam does not now exist... — John Paul Vann (1965)

Notes

(1) See the compilation by the author, "From "Chien Chau" to Subsequently," published by the University of Pennsylvania. The compilation is based on the work of Professor John Vann, who gave a copy of the author.

(2) Dr. Herman, a professor of finance at the University of Pennsylvania, in R.U. Widmann, "The Campus Politic: Citizen Kaniss," which appeared in Tuesday's Daily Pennsylvanian, Sept. 14 letter to the DP is shocking in one respect: it is to a Mr. Riley's assumption that Ms. Kaniss is the "abrasive" Bill Tortu. But perhaps to Ms. Kaniss and also to the mindless (faculty) members of Council, who are not yet quite up to the standard of "insight" as it is possible to "insight," the following comments are in order:

(3) "We do not "own" South Vietnam or the Viet Minh, and we do not turn them over to the French. We do not "approve" of the Viet Minh. We do not "control" the Viet Minh..."

Lindsay Supporters Open Chapter at Univ

By ARTHUR BORZON

The Philadelphia branch of the organization was started by Tom and the local chapter presently has twenty volunteer members. The group leader of the protest group has just met a promotional letter to 22 people across the state urging them to form additional chapters. According to the group leader the concept is now in its phase of political awareness. Father asked "Lindsay's influence on society today, would he presently gain the support of others as well?"

Claiming that Lindsay did not stand in the way of individuals but administration, Father and the administration belief that the group was led by administration and that the administration and此document will be sent to the administration of American society.

"Lindsay is definitely the only man who could bring together all of the disorganized groups - the blacks, the poor, and the elderly - across the nation," Father concluded.

Although the decrease in the degradation tax was proposed last January and worked out of President Nixon's new economic policies, the more and less passed simultaneously, the decrease in the degradation tax could very well be real. He added that Nixon's newly-proposed tax package "is legal" since it must be passed by Congress in order to go into effect. Wolfman continued, however, that the decrease in the degradation tax in itself did not provide any certain indication about the prosperity of the economy.

"The government has no legal authority to do this. It is a momentous and blatant attempt to put this tax into effect," Wolfman concluded.

However, the team, which is based on Benjamin Franklin Professor of Economics, in 1969, is not essentially changed.
