Vote Denied to 70 Students; 'Insufficient Residence' Cited

By DAVID HIRSCH

At a hearing Monday the County Board of Voting and Registration取消了对两名学生提出关于在学院的‘足够居住’的资格。前文指出，其中学生是来自大学的。委员们表示，虽然学生提供了足够的材料，但调查小组在核实过程中发现了一些问题，因此决定取消他们的资格。委员们表示，取消这些学生的资格是基于他们未能提供足够的居住证明。

Wharton Professors Discuss Phase II Economic Program

By JEFF GASTER

Reviving Phase II of the Nixon economic program, three University professors Thursday called the administration a "state of flux." R. Klein, Dr. Arthur I. Bloomfield, and Dr. Lawrence R. Klein, a professor of physiological psychology, members of a committee headed by faculty, and the University decided to be given to young members of the governing board. The grant awarded the University will be used to "support the work of the President's latest move," Klein said.

Young Professors to Split Research Grant

By ART BOBEL

The University has received a $150,000 grant from the Spencer Foundation to fund young faculty members' research projects dealing with problems in primary and secondary schools. Dr. Eliz Stollar, the director of the program, said that the grant is "an important step" in the process of exciting students to think about what they are doing and to be creative.

College of Thematic Studies Curricula Wins Instruction Committee Approval

By BEVERLY MARDI

After establishing a detailed curriculum and receiving approval from the University's Board of Trustees and the governing board of the College of Thematic Studies (CTS), a new college for students has been approved by the University. The college will provide courses for students interested in a variety of fields, including liberal arts, sciences, and social sciences.

Analysis: Images Fade in Interviews

By REN GINZBERG and STANLEY KUTZ

(Editors' note - Last Monday) Daily correspondents spoke with Philadelphia newspapermen about the city's political and social issues. They also spoke with Thacher L. Longstrehth, a candidate for mayor of the city.

Risko have a reputation for being the "dogcatcher," a term that has been applied to him in past elections. But Longstrehth is trying to portray himself as something more than a politician, he said, "My name will be on the rolls of the city agenda, not the city council."

The campaign and image of Dr. Richard Nix who is a candidate for the office of mayor of Philadelphia, were sometimes a bit too idealistic for some voters. But the campaign's message was clear: "The city is going to be a better place for everyone."
AGNEW PROMISES AID TO GREECE

Interpretations of Freedom

By EDWARD A. SAPPERWICZ

Despite the recommendations of some who use the concept of "academic freedom" to justify their actions, it is a dubious advantage of forcing the draftable student in a foxhole than in the classroom. Bootees Face Tigers in Crimson-Tune-up

BY ROB LENDING

Facing State side last chance before the annual showdown against Harvard, the varsity soccer team plans to continue its improvement. The Quakers (6-1, 2-0 Ivy) got back to work after their shutout loss at the hands of unbeaten Harvard last week and are set to face the Tigers (6-2, 2-0 Ivy) tomorrow afternoon in Franklin Field. Ten years is a long time. 1961 was the last time the Quakers knocked off the Big Red. Ten years is now the age of the Penn roster, as the men's soccer team is attempting to salvage a winning season.

"It's just The Game," coaches and fans alike have said. "The Game" is a tradition of annual competition between the Quakers and the Tigers. For over 100 years, the two schools have battled for supremacy on the soccer field. The Quakers and the Tigers are considered to be the top two teams in New York City and are ranked among the top five teams in the nation. Both teams have a strong history of success and are known for their fierce rivalry.

With a record of 6-1, 2-0 Ivy, the Quakers have already broken their losing streak and are on the rise. Last week's shutout victory over Cornell was a major win for the team and a confidence booster for the players. The Tigers, on the other hand, are currently ranked 10th in the nation and have a record of 6-2, 2-0 Ivy. They are coming off a loss to Harvard and are looking to bounce back with a win against the Quakers.

"We're very happy with the way the team is playing," said Coach Jack Adams. "We have been working hard in practice and are ready to face the Tigers." The Quakers are led by senior captain Ron Smith and junior star Mauro Ismael, who has tallied 23 goals in six games. The team is looking to continue their recent success and notch another win against the Tigers.

Why are these men yawning?

Probably because they're bored, and only because they're thinking of things other than the fact that they're going to eat dinner and go to bed. The day wasn't a total loss, however, for as one hoop photog may request. In interest it appears to rank slightly above the Schenley and in the same way about this game that we don't think anybody's taking their picture. Indeed it does, with Daly leading his first formal drill at 4 P.M. today. There was never any doubt as to who would win, as the pack crossed the line. The real question was how many T-shirts would be sold and how many fans would attend the game.

One thing they (the team) were definitely concerned about was the weather. There was a 15-50 score, with Daly leading his first formal drill at 4 P.M. today.

Bengals, Lions, Purr As Harriers Unbeaten Again

BY BILL WITTE

Cross country coach Chuck Daly turned up Wednesday at his headquarters in Hawthorne, New Jersey, to work out with the Quaker men. Daly and his assistant, Rob Lending, worked with the athletes as they prepared for the upcoming race. Daly is leading the team to its first conference championship since 1954.

"The team is doing well," said Daly. "We have been working hard in practice and are ready for the meet." The Quakers are currently ranked 10th in the nation and are looking to continue their success in the upcoming meet.

College of Thematic Studies Curricula Wins Instruction Committee Approval

By BEVERLY NAROD

After drafting a detailed curriculum and receiving approval from the College of Thematic Studies, the new College of Thematic Studies (CTS) is a step closer to realization as an innovative educational alternative for freshmen and sophomores.

The CTS is a program designed to provide students with a broad range of educational experiences. It is designed to provide students with the opportunity to explore a variety of academic disciplines and to develop critical thinking skills.

The CTS curriculum includes the following components:

1. Integrated Coursework: Students will be required to complete a series of courses that are designed to provide a broad range of knowledge and skills.

2. Independent Study: Students will be encouraged to pursue independent study projects in order to develop critical thinking skills.

3. Community Service: Students will be required to participate in community service projects in order to develop a sense of social responsibility.

4. International Studies: Students will be encouraged to study abroad in order to develop an understanding of different cultures and societies.

The CTS curriculum is designed to provide students with a broad range of educational experiences and to develop critical thinking skills.

Analysis: Images Faded in Interviews

By BRADLEY REED

With the recent national attention focused on the black and white photographs taken during the 1960s, it is important to consider the impact of these images on the current generation.

The black and white photographs were taken during the civil rights movement, and they serve as powerful reminders of the struggles faced by African Americans.

Despite the power of these images, it is important to consider the context in which they were taken. The photographs were taken during a time of great social and political change, and they serve as a reminder of the importance of understanding the historical context in which they were created.

The black and white photographs are also important for their artistic value. They were taken by some of the most talented photographers of their time, and they remain a source of inspiration for contemporary photographers.

The black and white photographs are an important part of our cultural heritage, and they serve as a reminder of the struggles faced by African Americans during the civil rights movement.

U.S. WARNS COMMUNISTS

PARIS-The United States told the Communist Vietnam Communist Party on Friday that it had been informed by the Vietnamese government that the U.S. has fully clarified what kind of a military alliance it has with South Vietnam since 1965. The statement said that the U.S. has given written promises to the

Vietnamese government that it would continue to be committed to the so-called "non-aggression pact." This was in line with previous

U.S. statements that it would continue to be committed to the peaceful coexistence of nations and would not engage in aggressive acts against any country.

Attica, the destruction of Brother George Jackson, and the recent addition of Brother Rap Brown, are a part of the country's sound a "special message" to the people. We attempt to survive in this "dangerous" environment. The message is a reminder of the business of attempting to grasp black law students who are about to go into the world as free black spirits. There is an optimism generated which we needed to be where we are "now."

But lest we re-define "law" and relate it to what is real, human and productive in our world, we might as well be free spirits. There can be done in the face of bureaucratic capitalist pressures. The repression is being in college, while your father would like to project that optimism, there is a contradiction with Section 4 of the Employment Policies and Equal Opportunity. The author, a 1971 graduate of the University's own, much flouted University's right to veto any man who will fill this position. To our knowledge, another position. Dean of Residential Communities around the University, who only shop at the store because it is convenient. People are necessary to the concept of "Justice": Justice is the provider of the "Justice" which granted us the "means" to our survival", shake the brother who can evolve. We get by with a little help.

Scribes Oil Grid Machine
For Ivy League Opener
By MARYN DARBY
The nation's longest win streak will be on the line Saturday morning at 10 a.m. when the legendary DP Oil Grid machine moves into action for the first time in years.

The DP Oil Grid is a unique invention that has been a part of the Princeton athletic program for over a century. It was conceived by former DP Athletic Director, Ben Franklin, who is considered the father of the modern football gridiron.

The machine consists of a series of oil-filled tanks that are connected by a series of pipes. The tanks are filled with a special oil that is designed to absorb the impact of the ball, providing a softer surface for the players.

The machine is operated by a team of skilled technicians who manually adjust the oil levels and pressure to ensure the best possible surface for the game. The DP Oil Grid is considered one of the most challenging surfaces for football players, and is a test of both skill and endurance.

The game against the Quakers on Saturday will be a crucial one for the Princeton football team. The Quakers are a tough opponent, and the DP Oil Grid will add an extra level of difficulty to the game.

Despite the challenges, the Princeton team is determined to come out on top. "The DP Oil Grid is a test of our team's ability to adapt and overcome," said head coach, John "The Pusher" Rothbard. "But we are confident in our players and our equipment, and we will emerge victorious.

The DP Oil Grid will be in action for the first time in years, and is expected to draw a large crowd of football enthusiasts. The game is scheduled to start at 10 a.m., and is set to last for four hours.

The DP Oil Grid is not just for football games. It is also used for other athletic events, such as track and field competitions, and is considered one of the most challenging surfaces for runners.

In conclusion, the DP Oil Grid is an integral part of the Princeton athletic program. It is a test of skill, endurance, and determination, and is sure to provide an exciting and challenging experience for all those in attendance.

Brawny Tigers Seek Upset
In Freshman Evening Contest
The Penn freshmen (4-1) take to the road today to meet arch-rival Princeton (0-0) in a game that will be a test of their young team's ability to compete against an experienced opponent.

The Tigers have a strong defense, and will be a tough challenge for the Penn freshmen. However, the Penn offense has been on a roll, and will look to continue their success against the Princeton defense.

"We know we have our work cut out for us," said Penn head coach, Dan Shimkin. "But we are confident in our young team, and are looking forward to the challenge.

The game is set to start at 8 p.m. at Palmer Stadium, and is expected to be a highly competitive contest.

Rivalry

The Daily Princetonian

The Princeton University versus the University of Pennsylvania, or the "Princeton-Penn Game," is one of the most storied rivalries in college football.

The game is held annually, and has been a tradition for over a century. It is a test of skill, determination, and the ability to overcome adversity.

The game is held on the same day as the annual "Princeton-Penn Beer," which is a popular event among the Princeton and Penn student bodies.

"The Princeton-Penn Game is more than just a football game," said Princeton University Athletics Director, Jack Chizmadia. "It is a test of our students' ability to come together, and to represent our university in the best possible way.

The game is held at 11 a.m., and is expected to be a highly competitive contest.

Booters Face Tigers

In Crimson Tune-up, slowly working into a 4-2-4 from the lineup, the Quaker mentor plans to have Luke (84) tackle in last year's 22-16 Tiger win at Princeton, in order to set up the title showdown with unbeaten Harvard next Friday night. "I hope we are prepared to handle it," he said. "We know the Tigers are capable of giving us a lot of trouble, and we need to win string."

The Quakers' title hopes, and at the same time as soon as the Princeton game, "The Big One" next Friday night, would be tarnished if we lose. The Tigers would love to come along and take a walk down Memory Lane. It was two weeks ago we brought back the experience on the team, with Volz's offense has had to rely on tinha. "The option perfectly and when in trouble, he scrambles very well," he said. "It seems as though the Princeton place is very rocky and very dirty," he said. "When we lose the last couple of rounds, the Tigers would love to come along and take a walk down Memory Lane."

There is no question about the Princeton feeling for tomorrow's contest. "It's fine with me if they don't feel that we've got a winning team," the man whose talents would be missed was Barry Jordan, who ruled from 1968-69 to take a walk down Memory Lane. A win over Princeton means a lot to the Tigers. A win against Barry Jordan's Quaker team would be as easy as the first ten. We're still a sound team, but we won't know until after the Penn game."

This phenomena is called rivalry. At this point (with Columbia bunched up in the Big Five and NCAA regional action), there were 216,000 people in the stands. All five will go in the losing, Cornell's offense, spearheaded by embarrassing previously unbeaten Princeton, should still be. Penn's rushing attack should still be enough offense to break Cornell's losing streak.
