U. Trustee Dunlop receives Wharton Gold Medal Award

By SCOTT GIBSON

The award-recognized in the financial world as a special distinction - was given to Stanford R. Dunlop, member of the Pennsylvania Graduate Military Society, and a former trustee of the University, for "Dunlop's leadership in the development of a world class business school.

The presentation ceremony, held in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, also marked the 60th anniversary of the Bellevue Graduate School.

The presentation was made by J. W. H. Vare, chairman of the Pennsylvania Graduate

Military Society Board of Trustees.

Dunlop, who was born in 1883, was cited "for his outstanding leadership and service to the University, for the establishment of the Dunlop Foundation in the area of business education, and for his contributions to the University and the country.

Dunlop is a former trustee of the University, and a former trustee of the Pennsylvania Trust Company.

QUEEN ELIZABETH TO GET PAY RAISE

LONDON - A parliamentary committee recommended Thursday that Queen Elizabeth's salary be raised to $2.45 million a year, a raise of $78,000 per cent. Although the government had pledged to keep down wages for the rest of the country, sources said the hike is certain to be approved. One hundred party members, however, termed the raise "the most obscene and obscene pay claims in the

Glee Club’s ‘Paint the Red Town’ Shows Variety in Music, Staging

By SCOTT SHELDON

“Paint the Red Town,” the University of Pennsylvania Glee Club’s latest production of musical theater will be presented tonight and December 19 and 21 at 8 P.M. in the Annenberg Center’s Zellerbach Theater.

Bruce Montgomery, musical director of the club, said that “the musical extravaganza will be a potpourri of various settings and designs using the stage to its fullest capacity.”

In “Paint the Red Town” we meet in the 1920’s as part of the series of Busby Berkeley’s style, in fact our conductor is the creator of our program, and if we want at the beauty of African music and its impact on music in America,” said Bruce Montgomery, musical Director of the club. He added that “by staging and choreographing our range and by skill the impact of our music.”

The use of clothes, costumes, tape recordings, lighting and elevator lifts will all be used in the presentations.

The performances will cover a wide range of musical styles from classical to contemporary. Montgomery said, “The music of Handel and Randall Thompson was used in the performance.”

“There is so much to look forward to in this performance.”

Montgomery concluded that “though our trip to Russia was essentially serious in intent, we’re doing this show in a light way just for our audience to laugh with us at the travaganza will be a potpourri of projects.”

Tickets are available for $3 to the general public and for $1.50 to students at the Annenberg Center box office.
Comment on the Forum

by GENE P. ABEL

After the Second Campus Forum on December 1, 1971, my feeling is reinforced that very little of substance can be accomplished with such a large group, especially when the issue is charged with emotion. The fact is that those who wish to change the status quo would like to have my support for the President's argument regarding the broadening of the sphere of employment opportunity at the University of Pennsylvania. I consider it a fact that we have shown remarkable discrimination by not offering employment to individuals of minority groups, and I believe that it would be to our advantage to consider all individuals regardless of their sex or race when attempting to fill positions in both the faculty and non-faculty ranks of the University.

However, when the last action and an affirmative action plan is implemented, we must be very careful not to exclude one sex for another. The world is not the way we would like to see it, but the way it is, and unfortunately there may be a number of areas in which the number of qualified individuals available that happen to be of either a minority group or sex. The University has the responsibility to ensure that no sex or race is the limiting factor on who fills a position.

I have not been in touch with the current Chairman of the Administrative Assembly or the Executive Committee nor the faculty, so I am not sure what the current position of the University is on this subject. I would like to have my opinion heard on the matter, and the Department of Student Life should be aware of the attitude of the students. It should be noted that this is an important issue to the students, and I would like to know the current position of the University as to affirmative action on a campus that is so different from the others.

In conclusion, there must be a great problem in filling as many positions as we might have qualified people from either minority or female groups. Therefore, if we are to move ahead and take the step forward that an affirmative action plan would envision, we must take the step to consider all available candidates to fill a position. Upon making a selection, the single criteria that should be used is to provide an opportunity for all qualified candidates to be considered for the position, and it should not be based solely on the sex of the individual in a position as it is now.

In other words, this is or any other program of the Administrative Assembly, it is the responsibility of the President to ensure that the best person qualified to hold the position. Upon making a selection, the single criteria that should be used is to provide an opportunity for all qualified candidates to be considered for the position, and it should not be based solely on the sex of the individual in a position as it is now.

The South was a battle ground in the 1860's, as it was in the 1870's. And even in 1971, as in 1863, the South is going through a period of reorganization—of political and social structure. The changing political nature of the South is the battle in the making that will decide the fate of the South in the 1970's Presidential election. It is no longer a region where a great majority of the electorate can take for granted. And it is a region where all electoral votes as candidates can safely be ignored.

The development of the South is one of the most probable that will take place in the current 1971 Presidential election. It is no longer a region where a great majority of the electorate can take for granted. And it is a region where all electoral votes as candidates can safely be ignored.

There are over 17 million whites in the South who today vote only for the candidates of the Democratic Party, and the Democratic Party is the only party that has been able to canvass the Southern vote. I have been in touch with a number of qualified individuals who are interested in the election, and they are concerned that this election is not being canvassed adequately in the South. I have been told by a number of qualified individuals who are interested in the election, and they are concerned that this election is not being canvassed adequately in the South.

Penn Players Demonstrate Fine Acting Skill in Three One-Acts

By PAUL M. GURWITZ

Penn Players are serving up a set of three one-act plays I would recommend to anyone who has a spare evening this weekend. Judged on the basis of the best Player's efforts I've seen to date.

The heart of our review of the evening is Edward Albee's short play The Sandbox, directed by Steve Paul, a newcomer to the Players. The performances were excellent, well-received in a sold-out house last season, the play itself is a new commitment to the American Dream, the same as the American Dream is actually the Angel of Death, in Cal Thomas's adaptation of James Cagney's The Proposal, directed by Andy Radolf, in the story of the betrothal of two very young and desperate refugees, a figure about sixty years older than the couple, the drama itself. And there was obviously an attempt to present a character of the American Dream, the play's hero, a repressed lover, is played by Gordon Goodman, another Players' newcomer. Unfortunately, Goodman tends to play the role a bit hysterically. Here he is required to present a costume to the show, rather than keeping it at a constant pace, which emotion he did show would probably prove more effective.

The best of the show was the performance of the two newcomers to Penn Players, Karen Vandenhoog and Peter Troll. Kari, playing Grandma, brings the sand to the play in a way that she is to be in her daughter's place, and the performance was more than comparable to the performance of two newcomers to Penn Players, Karen Vandenhoog and Peter Troll. Kari, playing Grandma, brought the sand to the play in a way that she is to be in her daughter's place, but the difficulty was more than comparable to the performance of one newcomer in The Sandbox. Karen Vandenhoog, a new addition to the Players, has good future ahead of him on Penn stages.

The more of the evening was, for me, the most enjoyable of the three. In The Sandbox, the American Dream is actually the Angel of Death. C.A. Crafts Bazaar Will Offer Gift Shoppers an Alternative

By ANNE O'CONNELL

Christmas is coming and John Wanamaker is getting lit, but the "snow and sell" Crafts Fair at the University's Christian Association (C.A.) this weekend may help to channel some of the gravy into the pockets of local craftsmen.

Sponsored by the Center Counseling Office and the Christian Association, student members of the C.A. have created an alternative to the usual holiday hustle by inviting craftsmen from all over Pennsylvania to exhibit their wares, ranging from such sundries as cotter's wheels and hat pin sets to such assemblages as the staff of the C.A. Eatery. Warren also suggested the possibility of live entertainment, as an open invitation to play.

Participating craftsmen have been asked to volunteer to donate a portion of their profits to defray the cost of materials.

College Board Scores Shift

Students who register in their home towns are better off because of the diminished financial aid budget for the 1972-73 academic year, Nolan concluded, depending on the state of the American economy and on what we do with financial aid.

The number of applicants to the University, however, "went down overall," Nolan said, explaining that "the number of students applying to the College and C.A. building dropped considerably in the last two years.

As usual, Navy's basketball team is being considered the cradle of Eastern college basketball. In fact, it spawned the tradition of playing Maryland basketball. In spite of the recentquiets, it remains the scene of the most exciting games of the year. Tonight, the 1971-72 season opener, Navy and Army will play for the first time between the two teams.

The surprising Midshipmen (1-0) will be playing these two teams to their first victory in the season's opener since the 1969-70 season.

Cronauer, who made the most of his seven-foot height advantage (5-10) in the massacre, is the sparkplug of the squad. The team's future on five-ten guard Howie Smalley.

Squashmen Start Upphill Battle. With Opener against Renowned Big Red

By Sara Kleinfinger

Most coaches aren't as lucky as Navy's varsity squash coach, Al Molloy, who has four freshmen in his program. Until February, the squash team had only two freshmen in their program. Molloy had to find a way to fill the gap left by the graduation of two of his seniors. Molloy had to find a way to fill the gap left by the graduation of two of his seniors.

Although the number one spot is listed as a "stay-at-home," the freshmen will be needed to help the team maintain the level of play that the team has established.
