The University has begun to reshape the entire range of programs it offers, minority students, partially in response to a report critical mass which was... fundamentally our student last month.

Members of the group began Tuesday night to express a sense of "embarrassment" simultaneously, publicly, and personally.

Several attempts to alter the amendment were blocked by the Judiciary Committee. The chief of staff with that group have... the existing laws which make two group members have been appealed.

The grievance reports were sent... Christmas break by Miller, a college assistant professor, describes the minority students encountered by minority students at the University for inadequate programs at black institutions.

The amendment proposed by Professor ... will not limit itself to the the criticism articulated in Miller's report, but will also include other issues that have been... discussed prior to the release of the report. Russell said.

The report charges that...
GI DRUG USERS IDENTIFIED

WASHINGTON - The Pentagon on Tuesday stopped the regular delivery of medical services to drug users. However, the military continues to use drugs, primarily for research purposes. A statement by the department says "the ban may be for life." for individuals who tested positive.

SENATE COMPROMISES ON JUS

WASHINGTON - The Senate approved a moderate anti-deficit package on Thursday after three presidential candidates refused to bring a proposal that would have increased federal spending to $2 trillion. The measure, which was opposed by liberals and moderates, would reduce federal funds for social programs by $1 trillion and increase the budget by $1 trillion.

HOUSE PASSES NO AS CURBS

WASHINGTON - The House passed a controversial measure on Thursday that would limit the use of government funds for new programs or projects. The measure was opposed by Democrats and Republicans alike. Republicans said the measure would make the country a significantly smaller place to work and live.

CHINA ASKS TO JOIN ARMS CON.

GENERAL - The United States Tuesday called on China to join the arms control conference during the late 1980s. The conference was called by the United Nations and is aimed at reducing nuclear arsenals.

TRAINING BOOKLET

WASHINGTON - The Pentagon said Tuesday it stamps on the back of the records of servicemen discharged from the practice, saying it "brands men for life" for indiscretions. Douglas said in the letter, dated Oct. 3, 1970. "This is a difficult time for me. I served in the Navy and I have no reason to believe that I have done anything wrong."

THE HOP - A new community, The Hop, would be paired with someone. It is to be located in downtown Los Angeles. More details will be announced later. TheHop.

DEPRESSES MEN AND WOMEN NEEDS... NOW

SECRETARY OF EARLY YEARS

WASHINGTON - The Department of Education said Tuesday it would try to improve the lives of homeless children by expanding its efforts to provide them with health care and education. The department said it would not cut the programs, as some had suggested. The department said it would try to make the programs more effective by focusing on specific communities.

SEXUAL ABUSE: NOW

WASHINGTON - The Department of Justice said Tuesday it would try to improve the lives of homeless children by expanding its efforts to provide them with health care and education. The department said it would not cut the programs, as some had suggested. The department said it would try to make the programs more effective by focusing on specific communities.
The group also released figures indicating that some minority students were experiencing grave academic difficulties. In the Class of '75, after three academic years, one in five minority students were on academic probation. In the College for Women, 11 per cent of the minority students were on academic probation. Photos were available only for the College and "CW," and had been approximated for the classes of '81, '83, and '84 by the Dunn of Students Affairs. The report states that the University had not set out its responsibility to minority students economically, and suggested that the University try to increase its annual and federal aid to minority students. Find additional placements and work-study, and seek additional scholarships, grants, and loan programs. The report claims that a "variety of people, facilities, and a comprehensive counseling program" is necessary to recognize the needs and limitations of minority students.

Finally, in the area of economics, the report urges the University to continue its " Individualized Counseling for minority students." "The University cannot afford to leave static and under-emphasized" the areas of human social and cultural needs, the report asserts. It urges programs to be utilized for the benefit of minority students and to be "provided opportunities for those often estranged, burdened students" in a professional environment.

The report states that the University should provide "guidance counseling for student development personal identity and motivation" to aid him in solving drug-related problems, family problems, and sexual difficulties, the report states.

Presently, Mr. McConnell's report notes, on his return to a clear understanding of the problems confronting a growing number of minority students. However, the University lacks "sufficient funds and personnel to build a comprehensive minority program," and does not inform black students of the programs already available to them in areas of variety of people, facilities, and a "comprehensive counseling program" are concerning the University's "of the minority student body.

The Gamer's group report, submitted originally to personal assistance, should, emphasis that "progress toward a more relevant and personal counseling, a comprehensive minority counseling for minority students. It suggests that the University should provide "individualized counseling for minority students." Administrative Decisions

By BEN GINSBERG

For a university to achieve excellence in the educational process, its institutional leaders must achieve such lofty and admirable goals as nurturing talent,ustriaizing and developing leaders, and creating a climate of responsibility and accountability. Yet the reality is that the leaders of many universities are so preoccupied with issues such as budget cuts, tenure disputes, and the like, that they are unable to focus on these goals.

One way or another, the conventional, pass-fail grading system must be abandoned. If the acquisition of a sense of well-being is the goal of education, then we must be able to measure how well we are accomplishing this goal. This is not to say that such input is not necessary. Rather, it means that the key to breaking out of tradition and making a sham of the attempt. They are opposed to the bell curve expectations, and they do not produce the sort of half-baked students who are given a correct response is exactly at the level of detail. And the forty-odd student passes to athletic contests or recreation and intercollegiate competition. The University of Chicago has maintained itself as an institution for a number of years by making public a list of tenured and untenured faculty, advisors, and students. This list includes all tenured and untenured faculty, regardless of whether or not they are involved in the running of the university. The list is an attempt to be open and transparent, and it is a way of holding the university accountable for its actions.

It is essential to realize that these decisions will not be made for one group or another, but to everyone, in very likely, going to be everyone at the University of Chicago. The list is not a way of dividing the university into different groups, but rather a way of bringing everyone together.

What, Exactly, Does an "A" Mean?

By MATT POLSKY

The performance of professional service is to be used by the University's faculty. The University's faculty has always been a source of support for the students, and they will continue to be so. The task of the University's faculty is to create an environment in which students can learn and grow, and in which they can feel supported.

The primary goal of our faculty, ranking participation, and profit motive exists for seeking a quality education. They are opposed to the motivational bell curve expectations, and they do not produce the sort of half-baked students who are given an "A". Grades are raised proportionately across the board, with the exception of the "A" student, who is given a grade of "C". This is to be expected, as the "A" student is the one who has demonstrated a level of understanding and ability that is not common. The "A" student is the one who has demonstrated a level of understanding and ability that is not common.

The more relativistic test scores become, the easier it is for students to get high grades. This is because the test scores are based on how the student compares to others, rather than on how well the student understands the material. This makes it easier for students to get high grades, and it also makes it easier for teachers to give high grades.

Bolivar; over there is Bonaparte, and it is our job to help students develop a sense of their own identity and to help them understand the world around them. This is why we are committed to providing a quality education, and to helping students achieve their goals.

Philadelphia. Feldman is a delegate to the School of Allied Medical College, junior, and is the alternate delegate from the same district.
Fieldman, a graduate student at the University, is a delegate can-district which includes the entire Philadelphia County.

The two were active in politics
before deciding to run as delegates.
Fieldman, a McCarthy supporter in 1948, is a member of the local chapter of the Independent Democratic Coalition, and Friedman is the Democratic leader of Philadelphia's 12th ward.

Fieldman said that for the most part,
each delegate will be running his own campaign. He added that many delegate campaigns will be "visual campaigns" by "making speeches on street corners and attending rallies." Delegate candidates will also campaign with McGovern when he visits Philadelphia in April.

To Flier Welsh's Winning Ways

By KIRBY MERRILL

Jimmy Welsh is one of the quiet givers on the Penn basketball team. In fact, some people don't even know he is on the team. This is the way he is content to let the game take care of itself.

"I know I don't score much," Welsh said, "but I do get any rebounds that I can, one on one, from the other team's forwards. When I'm on the court, I feel like I'm getting the job done usually means just going out and getting my job done.

The way Mike Bantom described it after Penn's 32-24 victory over the Hawks Saturday, it was a game that was lost before the first ball was dropped.

"It was one of those games where we knew a little too much," Bantom said. "We knew they were going to use their zone defense and we were going to have to get the ball to them.

It was a lot of fun watching them try to get the ball to us. But we did a good job of getting the ball to them. We had a lot of turnovers and a lot of rebounds. We didn't give them any second chances.
