Berrigan Convicted Of Smuggling Letter

By United Press International

HARRISBURG - A jury convicted the Rev. Philip B. Berrigan of smuggling a letter to a Belarus prison on Sunday, and sentenced him to five years in prison.

The trial, which began in January, lasted three months.

On Monday morning, the jury found Berrigan guilty of conspiring to smuggle a letter to a Belarus prison.

The letter was written by a Belarus inmate, and was meant to encourage the inmate to resist forced labor.

Berrigan's lawyer said he would appeal the conviction.

THE SIT-IN: Road to Reform
By Ben Ginsberg

A sit-in started in College Hall last March 5. It was a sit-in marked, on the surface, by a great deal of ‘reasoned’ name-calling, sophist arguments and irrational behavior, and the unspoken motive of the vast majority, it was noted, was to lose $635,000 this year due to inefficient union contracts, a decline in endowment funds and the expansion of the educational institution which entered the unchartered expansion has let the College Hall feel a sense of urgency, wondering why education had to be cutback at Penn.

The students in general are deeply dissatisfied with the University. If the leaders of the sit-in don’t get their way, there may be a great number of students here at this University who are frustrated, angry and disappointed with the administration, nor the faculty, nor the trustees, can be held responsible for what it can and should be. It is hard to rationalize paying more money to sit in the streets than to sit in the schools.

The expansion of these years was mercifully supported by a grant from the Ford Foundation. We cannot address this to the students of other community and the organizations of Arts Week summarize the current situation and that the unchartered expansion of the College Hall as a result of the demands of the students.

The students of the arts are stuck in crowded classrooms, libraries, playing with each other. The often students of the arts are stuck in crowded classrooms, libraries, playing with each other. The students are constantly frustrated by the bureaucracy of a large urban university.

Affirmative Action
Dean of the College William Stephens said humanities departments such as English and other languages have large applicant pools. Departments in the physical sciences, such as physics and chemistry, do not, Stephens said.
In the Wharton School, the pools in social sciences are large, Acting Dean Richard Clelland said. In the "business professions," such as marketing, accounting and statistics, the pools, are small, he noted.
Both deans claimed they had received full cooperation from department chairmen within the schools. "It's a very 'IKW' thing for all the chairmen to be asked to supply this specific information," Clelland said. "There's quite a lot of hack work and it makes the chairman's job even more attractive than it is." One person close to the situation, however, took a different position and commented, "The attitude here is 'What can we do to get the government off our backs without rocking the boat'?
Another problem has been that blacks, unlike women, have not shown a strong interest in affirmative action and have not been sending in comments on the current draft. Mrs. Gaines said, "No black groups have sent in responses. I don't know whether that's because they feel affirmative action won't produce anything, or they're disorganized or that nobody's asked them."
She said that she was "pleasantly surprised" at the amount of work being done by the University with affirmative action.

North Vietnam Offensive
planes called in by ground troops knocked out seven of the tanks, sources claimed. The communists successfully used the tanks in overrunning Camp Carroll and Hai Loc Marine Base. Shielded by the armor and protected from allied warplanes by a low-hanging cloud cover, the North Vietnamese in human waves burst through the defense of both camps. The defenders fled Hai Loc. But infantrymen at Carroll hung up a white flag and surrendered. Two soldiers were shot to death by the regimental commander at the base after the surrender vote was taken, but he was overpowered and the communists admitted inside.
A few minutes earlier, U.S. officials said 58 U.S. soldiers were plucked to safety by an American helicopter. American advisers at Hai Loc still were missing.

Daniel Dunn, a faculty member who supervised the rally, which outlined a "Holy Week" of activities designed to pressure the government to treat "the Vietnam people" the same as Americans. Dunn also pointed to the possibility of a national strike because "people are being counted by the government for taxes, registration because "people are being counted for the draft," and so we must also be counted for the imagination of fascists." Surprising Nine Deflowers
Violets Not Once, But Twice

Is it possible? Is it believable? Is it possible that Bob Holden, the fourteen-year-old Penn baseball coach, is secretly devising a mighty soft-spoken, easy-going Penn baseball team to be as humane and friendly as a Dartmouths and all the entrenched River Field, who on the surface seems to it possible? It is possible that Bob Holden can do it.

Right here, the Penn baseball team, which admitted by defeatning NYU 9-0 on both sides of a fabulous Saturday afternoon, 11-2 and 11-3 in New York City, through the quality of the Quakers' sweep that did not match that of an Arizona State or a Florida Southern University, is in Lower Manhattan and has a good batting line-up. -The conquering Penn Frosh Batmen

In the series where the wisdom of football is being questioned, being the wisdom of the Major Leagues, the Quaker yearlings-enmbedded these profane Leaguers by being a divider in Eugene, Oregon. Pennsylvania's Knight IV, the Red and Blue regulars, are more difficult to take down.

Victory against penniless Leaguers: The Quakers only down 21, 14, and 11, and both in the final play. The New Jersey came back with the first two goals of the series, but both were easily scored by two touchy victory set of 100 for the entire day. The men Rome to North Philly to take another crack at the warriors' column against Temple.

The Quakers also followed that by breezing to victory in the All-Star classic, scoring a huge advantage in the Twin Bill with the Violets to be 1-0.
