Comm. Threatens State Senatorial Scholarship Aid

By ROGER WEINBERG

The House Education Committee Wednesday is scheduled to begin hearings on a bill which has been in effect at the University since 1963. The bill, sponsored by Sen. James F. Stover of Scranton, would prohibit the University from granting scholarships to students whose families have incomes of more than $5,000 per year.

In the past, representatives from the State Senate and the University have opposed the bill, arguing that it would discriminate against students whose families have higher incomes. However, the bill has been introduced every year since its inception, and this year's hearing may be the first time it has received a full hearing.

The hearing is expected to last for several days, and is open to the public. Anyone interested in speaking on the bill is encouraged to attend.

Student Meat Market

By JOHN KARIN

Eight to nine hundred students are expected to register for more than 1200 slots available at the University campus.

The meat market, which has been held every Wednesday night for the past 10 years, is a popular event among students who are looking for a place to buy high-quality meat at a reasonable price. The market is open to all students, regardless of their affiliation with the University.

The market is held in the Student Union, and is open from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Anyone who is interested in registering for the meat market is encouraged to do so as soon as possible.

U.S. Asks Political End to War

By United Press International

Philadelphia — The United States and the Soviet Union are pressing toward a political solution to the Vietnam war, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger announced today.

"The United States and the Paris peace talks effort was made to clear the road for the beginning of a political settlement in Vietnam," he said. "It is the key to the future of South Vietnam and the future of the United States as a nation that values peace for all the world."

Tuition programs: More hidden costs?

It is apparent in the article that the university is considering tuition policies that the student body is not being aware of. The hidden costs from wage and price increases make it difficult for students to understand the full impact of these policies. Many students may feel that they are not being provided with the necessary information to make informed decisions about their education.

The task force is looking at ways to enhance communication within the university. Some of the measures proposed may include increasing the involvement of students in decision-making processes and improving the availability of information about tuition programs.

The registration process is simple, you need only to sign an affidavit stating that by Nov. 7 you will have paid in the state of the university and the district for 30 days. To help matters along, it might be wise to bring a Pennsylvania Driver License, rent receipt or proof bill to prove residence, although none of this is required. Also,Ames campus at either location no matter where in the area you live. Various voters' rights committees will be on hand at both locations to handle any hitches that may arise.

If you are registered in another state, you may want to consider registering here. A large bloc of student votes has consistently been more clear than scattered ones. This process is also simple; you do not have to cancel your former registration if you register here, of course you can vote from either location.

There has been much talk about the youth vote that the reasons for registering should be self-evident. In the immediate area, contests for Congress and the statehouse could easily be decided by the youth vote. And the way the national parties scrabble for after the youth vote should provide evidence that the strength is national in scope as well.

This area has a short, but proud voting record. Both Republican and Democratic localities have had significant numbers of eligible citizens who were registered and voted. The registration policies of the university have been reviewed in order to avoid a year of college students for the very rich and to force students out of school who are the very poor.

CHICAGO - Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz said Thursday a federal investigation into the grain deal and its many public service programs.

WASHINGTON — The State Department said Thursday that it may have been mistakes when it changed that North Vietnam is supplying military equipment to Palestinian guerrillas for some attacks against Israel.

Earlier in the day, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray charged that arms were flowing from North Vietnam to Palestinian guerrillas, but officials later explained that its warnings appeared to be the result of reporting mistakes.

Department spokesman said they Bray doesn't mean it's a direct link coming from the North Germans.
