Wharton to Consider Curriculum Changes

By STEVE BIDDLE

A wide-ranging curriculum reform proposal which would reduce the number of course units required for graduation at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce was announced yesterday by Dr. Donald E. Graham, director of the College of Business Administration.

The proposal, which would reduce the number of course units from 40 to 36, would be presented to the faculty by committee during the upcoming week.

In addition, the proposal would give students a choice of a wider range of business courses to take, and would provide for a more flexible curriculum.

The proposal is the result of a study conducted by the Wharton Curriculum Committee, which was established last year.

The committee recommended that the number of course units be reduced from 40 to 36, and that the curriculum be made more flexible.

The proposal is expected to be approved by the faculty, and to be implemented next fall.

The "gateway" building will be a 20,000-square-foot structure that will house offices of the four agencies affiliated with the University.

The building is expected to be completed in 1967.

RAPID GROWTH

The University of Pennsylvania has experienced a rapid growth in recent years, with the enrollment of more than 25,000 students.

The increase in enrollment has been accompanied by an increase in the number of faculty members, with the result that the University has become a major force in higher education.

The University has also become a major research institution, with the establishment of several research centers and institutes.

DuBois Center Offers Course On Black Lit. by Dick M. Hynes

The W.E.B. Dubois residence project will launch a new survey course- Afro-American literature tonight.

The course, which will continue to other sections, will be taught by American Studies Professor E. W. Holt, a teaching fellow from Morgan State College.

According to Holt, the course is designed to introduce the popular lecture series which was introduced at the DuBois center last year. Students are selected on the basis of black studies courses offered in the course offerings in the area of Afro-American studies.

Holt and the course will be formal in nature and will include syllables, exam sections, and guest attacks. It will meet two evenings each week and is open to both freshmen and sophomores.

Holt hopes interested students will show up for the next meeting at the course offerings in the area of Afro-American studies.

The first class meeting will be at 7 P.M. tonight in the DuBois Center.

This course in Afro-American literature is the first in a series of black studies courses which will be offered at the University to enrich the classes in black religious and political thought.

Supreme Court Legalizes Abortion

By United Press International

WASHINGTON-The Supreme Court has agreed to continue a hearing to decide whether the states can prohibit abortions during the first trimester of pregnancy.

Blackmun did not clearly state how the decision would be reached, but he made it clear that he was opposed to any effort to place such a ban on abortion.

Blackmun's majority opinion on the question that abortion is a right, and that it should be regulated, would have put the question before the court, so that the court would have to decide whether the states could make it a crime to perform an abortion.

On the other hand, the court's rejection of the majority's position could mean that the court will have to consider the question of whether the states can make it a crime to perform an abortion.

The court has already been hearing arguments in the case for two days, and it will continue to hear arguments on Wednesday.

Peace Agreement Reported

WASHINGTON-Peace talks are reportedly being held in New York between the government and the People's Front for the Liberation of Palestine.

Reacting to the reports, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said, "The United States has no intention of lending its support to any effort to bring about a cease-fire in the Middle East."
The Daily Pennsylvanian, the University of Pennsylvania's student newspaper, published on Tuesday, January 20, 1873, features articles and editorials discussing various topics including academic policies, recruitment, and campus life.

Letters to the Editor

Commission's Fund for Black Faculty Defended

The Daily Pennsylvanian editorial on page 4 defends the University's decision to fund the recruitment of qualified black faculty members, as opposed to the opposition's view that a mere declaration of intent to create a more diverse faculty is insufficient. The paper argues for substantial support to ensure meaningful and lasting change.

The Hilton and the Campus

By Joanne M. and Ken Klimish

It is time for members of the University community to see some questions concerning the construction of a Hilton Hotel and restaurant complex, which will include several levels of traffic being built in an area already heavily congested. If a new parking facility is needed, how can it be allocated to a hotel which will not serve the University community? And why has the University, in deciding to use the land it had, failed to take into account the interests of students and faculty who are constantly concerned about the needs of others? A brief study prepared by Albert St. Victor and Associates for Franklin Enterprises, the developer of the hotel, shows that there will be substantial traffic impacts. It is time for the University to consider the needs of students and faculty who are constantly concerned about the needs of others. A brief study prepared by Albert St. Victor and Associates for Franklin Enterprises, the developer of the hotel, shows that there will be substantial traffic impacts.

Two More Objections

By Mark Solomon

There seems to be a raging concern in the University and surrounding communities regarding the proposed construction of a Hilton Hotel next to the University Museum. I would like to add two points to the discussion.

1. The hotel's location next to the University Museum seems to be the most critical point. The hotel will provide an additional strain on the city's resources.
2. The hotel's location is close to the University Museum, where the parking problem is already severe. This hotel will only add to the already existing problem.
