Medical School Black Admissions Plan

By STEPHEN HOBLE

A student-initiated proposal to make the first black student to be admitted to the Medical School will be brought to the student council at its meeting April 15.

The admissions proposal, presented to the council by Student President Robert Lee, was approved by the Student Council on March 29. The proposal would increase black enrollment from 11 of 354 to 1 of 120. It would be based on a "parachute" plan, since the first black student is expected to be a freshman classman of 10 to 14 per cent of next year's business class.

The student authors of the proposal concluded the figures would bring in a "reasonable goal to work toward, rather than a set of numbers." They noted that qualified black applicants (27 were rejected) must be re-examined by other medical schools to increase black enrollment.

The black medical student group, which is lobbying for the increase, did not object to a gradual increase. The action has also been supported by the Student Council, which in a small move, had members express official endorsement of the proposal.

One member of the group said the present level of medical school minority enrollments over the past three years had "been a failure," according to the authors. They did not object to a gradual increase, either, since they thought the suggested percentage is "reasonable for the first in the trend.

A committee of the proposal preparers will meet the Executive Committee of Temple University Medical School and other minority leaders to discuss the feasibility of a plan and to explore the possible problems in obtaining institutional support for the plan.

One of the authors of the proposal noted that the suggested percentage is "reasonable" for the minority admissions of the American Medical Association and said that the plan was not intended to "force" an increase in the rate of black students.

The executive committee of the proposal preparers will meet with minority leaders to discuss the feasibility of a plan and to explore the possible problems in obtaining institutional support for the plan.

An examination of current enrollment figures reveals that despite special efforts to recruit black students, the number of qualified black students has increased only minimally while black applicants have continued to increase. The discrepancy exists primarily because other medical schools have "outgunned" Pennsylvania with more enticing financial aid packages. This is not always based on the individual's need.

By Alred Gellhorn, dean of the Medical School, said that over 400 of all medical students receive financial aid packages, with lower median stresses than Temple.

The proposal does not address itself to this situation directly, but asks that Temple University Medical School be approached as one of the standard institutions which must be included.

The goal would be "to keep the pace with the current trend."

Although informed sources in the medical school leaders agree that the plan is a "good" idea, numbers think adoption of the proposal may "create problems" for the school and faculty. Prosecution Sums Up Watergate Case to Jury

By United Press International

WASHINGTON—A defense attorney in the Watergate case yesterday charged that two former officials of the Democratic Party re-election campaign diverted thousands of dollars in campaign funds to secret slush funds.

After an hour-long argument by prosecutor Karl A. Gilbert, 35, and Judge John J. Sirica reversed the charges today. The judge said that these diverted funds will not be proved.

The trial is expected to continue until the end of the year.

More Letter Bombs Discovered in West

The FBI said today that eight letter bombs discovered and destroyed in West Berlin were sent to the same address in East Berlin. Sirica said here is more than four results.

The author said all mail was sent to the Wannsee bomb factory, located in Berlin's suburb. One of the letters was addressed to President of the East German University, a physicist named Dr. H. W. Eisen, Jr.

Sirica said that this is an enterprise of their own, divesting that they could destroy the world.

Many Functions Served By New Women's Unit

By MARINA LACOSTE

The new unit for women, a new department at the University, has been established at the University. The project was organized by a group of women from various walks of life, including recent University graduates, professional women, retired women, and mothers of small children. Matrizes Kelly, program coordinator, and Dr. John Free, director of the University Counseling Service, are supervised by the Women's Center.

The purpose of the project is to help women regain confidence necessary to gain their goals. Women have a need to talk about the practical problems of going back to work or school and the needs of the women who are involved in these activities. Counseling will stress four major categories: child care, continuing education, individual counseling and a "job bank." Mrs. Kelly said.

Dr. Arthur Dale, professor of education, and Dr. John Free, director of the University Counseling Service, will supervise graduate students running "minicamps" of little study groups. Mrs. Kelly said.

The seminar, which has been presented throughout the country is expected to attend the program by the volunteers interested in presenting seminars. Dr. Frederic Chacker, assistant professor of Dentistry, will supervise graduate students at the University. The project is to help women regain confidence necessary to gain their goals. Women have a need to talk about the practical problems of going back to work or school and the needs of the women who are involved in these activities. Counseling will stress four major categories: child care, continuing education, individual counseling and a "job bank." Mrs. Kelly said.

The Resources for Women office is in the Tea Club room of the Faculty Club and is open for counseling Mondays from noon to 3 P.M. and Wednesdays and Thursdays from 8 A.M. to noon.

Starting the week of February 5, groups will begin meeting in two hour sessions for five consecutive weeks. The sessions will be held on Fridays from 8:30 A.M. to 10:30 A.M. and from 1:00 P.M. to 3:00 P.M. The last day to sign up for these study groups is Wednesday, January 31.

Don't Move Ben

The plan which has been set up in the air for a number of weeks which really will take place at the end of the month is the possibility of moving of Ben Franklin from College Hall. This was the topic of one of the last meetings of the College Hall Board, which was held last Friday night. The board is considering the matter of the removal of Ben Franklin, who has been a fixture of College Hall since it was built.

In light of this decision, it is important to understand the reasoning behind the move. Ben Franklin is seen as a symbol of the values that College Hall represents, and his presence on campus can serve as a reminder of those values.

However, there are also practical reasons for moving Ben Franklin. The current location of Ben Franklin is in the middle of the building, which can make it difficult for students and visitors to find him. Additionally, the move could allow for more flexibility in the use of the space, as College Hall is a busy place with many activities taking place throughout the day.

The move of Ben Franklin is not without controversy. Some students and faculty members have expressed concern about losing a symbol of the college's history and tradition.

In conclusion, the move of Ben Franklin is a decision with both practical and symbolic implications. It is important to consider both sides of the issue and make a decision that is in the best interest of the college and its community.
This center and Wednesday’s "try out" day were key because Quakers have an excellent opportunity to improve their skill and test the theater to its limit. We don’t have enough players to be able to handle everything we want to do.

“We have to play good, sound defense and get our noses in the right direction. It’s going to be a tough, physical game, and we have to prove we deserve their respect. We have to be mentally prepared, and everyone’s going to be ready. We can’t allow our backs to be a little weak in conditioning, because you’ve got to go at it 100% all the time,” said Ed Parkinson, current head coach.

Ed Parkinson currently leads the Quakers with an overall record of 3-3. He has just now saw his sixth game. The defense’s main worry is that the Notre Dame and Paul Huff-Grayf-Wax have an extra advantage when up against the defense of the Princeton offense, led by singer Doug El, who talked first in the meeting.

Quakers Track Tigers in Hoop Showdown

By BLISS BISSINGER

In 11 games this season the Princeton-Quakers' defense, the last of the 14 deficiencies, has been the least. It has been the biggest surprise of the conference, as players such as defenseman Pete McNamee (left), have been doing for the New York Knicks. But one quarter of college eligibility means no help from Ted Nashan in guard Phil Hankinson in Penn's win at the Palestra last Friday.

The Red and Blue still have a lot to prove, but hopes to resist the Quaker backcourt. Ed Engles' offensive threats come really keeps them going," Daly echoed Carazo's sentiments in that. The offense is an area of concern for Princeton. They are 0-4 in their last four contests and are looking to bounce back against the Quakers tonight. They will be looking to improve their record to 4-3 and stay in the race for a spot in the Ivy League.

So far this season, the Tigers have been shuffling their lineup in search of a winning combination. Bill Finger.

The offensive part of Manakas' game is his ability to pass and create opportunities for his teammates. He is a key player for Princeton as they look to secure a spot in the Ivy League.

The game will probably be decided by how well each team handles the other's strengths and weaknesses. Princeton's guards are big, which gives them an advantage in the rebound area, while Penn's guards are quick and agile, making them a threat on the fast break. But we'll have to make our shots.

Both coaches look for a tough, competitive game. This will be a matchup of two good man-to-man teams, and it'll be a good game," emphasized Carazo. The game will probably be decided by who can handle pressure better and make the most of their opportunities.

Recreation Department Stresses Participation of Univ. Community

By DOLL ADAMS

The department is stressing the importance of physical activity and recreation to the university community. The program offers a variety of activities, including swimming, basketball, tennis, and more. Using the department as a resource can help students stay active and engaged in their college experience.

The department's focus is on promoting a healthy lifestyle and creating a positive environment for students to socialize and enjoy their time on campus. They encourage all students to participate in the various activities offered, as they can help improve mental and physical well-being.

The department is always looking for ways to improve and expand their offerings. They are open to feedback and suggestions from students and welcome ideas for new programs or events.

Frosh-fetti

Of all the athletes Princeton has, the frosh have one of the biggest opportunities to shine. They have the chance to step up and make a name for themselves, a welcome change from being on the sidelines.

This year, the frosh are looking to make an impact in their firsts in the Ivy League. They are excited for the opportunity to compete against their peers and show what they're made of.

Overall, the frosh are eager to show what they can do and contribute to the Princeton basketball team.
