U.S. and Cuba Reach Accord On Skyjackings

By United Press International
Washington, D.C. - The United States and Cuba reached agreement Thursday to exchange diplomatic notes to end 10 months of disputing the hijacking of U.S. airlines. The agreement was signed by Federal Aviation Administrator Harold P. Lewis and Cuban Foreign Minister Carlos Txoc.

The agreement followed nearly 24 hours of talks between negotiating teams from both nations. It was the first time that the United States and Cuba have exchanged diplomatic notes in over a year. The last time was in January, 1961.

The agreement followed nearly three months of negotiations between Washington and Havana. It was the first time that the United States and Cuba have exchanged diplomatic notes in over a year. The last time was in January, 1961.

The agreement followed nearly three months of negotiations between Washington and Havana. It was the first time that the United States and Cuba have exchanged diplomatic notes in over a year. The last time was in January, 1961.

The agreement followed nearly three months of negotiations between Washington and Havana. It was the first time that the United States and Cuba have exchanged diplomatic notes in over a year. The last time was in January, 1961.

The agreement followed nearly three months of negotiations between Washington and Havana. It was the first time that the United States and Cuba have exchanged diplomatic notes in over a year. The last time was in January, 1961.

By BEN GINSBERG

Philadelphia, Jan. 20 -- The University of Pennsylvania has received a $47,846 Army contract to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The officers to do a better job of integrating the army it has moved from confrontational to cooperative, the project which was authorized by the Senate.

The contract is to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The project, which was authorized by the Senate, is to be carried out by the University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia.

The project is to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The officers to do a better job of integrating the army it has moved from confrontational to cooperative, the project which was authorized by the Senate.

The project is to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The officers to do a better job of integrating the army it has moved from confrontational to cooperative, the project which was authorized by the Senate.

The project is to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The officers to do a better job of integrating the army it has moved from confrontational to cooperative, the project which was authorized by the Senate.

The project is to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The officers to do a better job of integrating the army it has moved from confrontational to cooperative, the project which was authorized by the Senate.

By STEVE SIBLEY

Porter A. Yaw, the University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia Mayor Joseph C. Clark, Sunday he would sign an agreement to move the university's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

By B. LANDIS

The University City Science Center has opened a new program to develop a method to train officers to deal more effectively with minority group members. The officers to do a better job of integrating the army it has moved from confrontational to cooperative, the project which was authorized by the Senate.

The program, which is funded by the National Science Foundation, is to be run by the University City Science Center and the University of Pennsylvania.

The program, which is funded by the National Science Foundation, is to be run by the University City Science Center and the University of Pennsylvania.

The program, which is funded by the National Science Foundation, is to be run by the University City Science Center and the University of Pennsylvania.

The program, which is funded by the National Science Foundation, is to be run by the University City Science Center and the University of Pennsylvania.

The program, which is funded by the National Science Foundation, is to be run by the University City Science Center and the University of Pennsylvania.

The program, which is funded by the National Science Foundation, is to be run by the University City Science Center and the University of Pennsylvania.

By STEVE SIBLEY

Porter A. Yaw, the University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia Mayor Joseph C. Clark, Sunday he would sign an agreement to move the university's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

Clark, a ruling lecturer in the Wharton School program of the College of Commerce and Finance, will meet with the University's administration to move the University's headquarters to the right of the city's dock.

By TIM BARTOW

The University of Pennsylvania may soon be able to start hiring minority group members to help integrate the army.

The University of Pennsylvania may soon be able to start hiring minority group members to help integrate the army.

The University of Pennsylvania may soon be able to start hiring minority group members to help integrate the army.

The University of Pennsylvania may soon be able to start hiring minority group members to help integrate the army.

The University of Pennsylvania may soon be able to start hiring minority group members to help integrate the army.

The University of Pennsylvania may soon be able to start hiring minority group members to help integrate the army.

By WILLIAM P. MEYERSON

The University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia have exchanged seven diplomatic notes since November 19, 1961.

The University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia have exchanged seven diplomatic notes since November 19, 1961.

The University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia have exchanged seven diplomatic notes since November 19, 1961.

The University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia have exchanged seven diplomatic notes since November 19, 1961.

The University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia have exchanged seven diplomatic notes since November 19, 1961.

The University of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia have exchanged seven diplomatic notes since November 19, 1961.
Sweets for the Sweet

Candy Shop

Houston Hall Basement

M T 10-4:30

---

Campus Events

JEWISH FREE UNIVERSITY

- a chance to learn what you've missed

Classes offered at Penn:

Hebrew The Sociology of American Jewry

Talmud for Beginners

Yiddish

The Psychology of Judaism

and much more.

Heretics and Heresies in Jewish Thought

Full listing of all courses in the JFU Spring catalog-available at Hillel, Houston Hall, and the Dorms. Or call 620-6261 for a free copy

JFU, Room 403, 1500 Chestnut St, Philadelphia, Pa. 19102

-'A grassroots approach to Jewish learning.'

---

The Wednesday night feast.

Chinese style.

the smorgasbord.

All you can eat for only $2.95 per person.

Wednesday Night Feast

8:30-9:30 p.m.

Jasmine House

1000 Chestnut St.

Monday, February 13, 1973

---

Classifieds

Apartments

HERSTEIN HAMMERSMITH 1 bedroom apartment available for immediate occupancy. EY 6185

APARTMENT FOR LEASE 1 Bed. 1 Bath.

长沙市 - 1059

Cement - 1049

Cream Bar - 102

Ice Cream Bar - 102

Ice Cream Sandwich - 102

Made with delicious

Also:

Nabisco Cookies & Pretzels

- Pepsi Cola

- Candies

- Cold Sodas

Our prices are as low as the large supermarkets.

the dormshop

3802 Locust Walk
Economists Predict Recession

WASHINGTON—Economists surveyed Monday that the current U.S. economic boom and embittered inflation will produce an almost unavoidable recession late this year or early in 1974.

One of them, Wilfred L. Lewis Jr., chief economist for the National Planning Association, a nonprofit economic organization, and spokesman for the presidents of the nation's 900 local planning associations, called "economic conditions" the "most serious problem" which grew by 6.5 per cent last year, the highest rate since 1952.

Lewis and Kenneth, an economist with the National Bureau, both suggested that the 1974 recession would be more of a mild one, with inflation easing, than the severe one in 1969-70 which caused industrial plants and offices to dwindle from 27,000 to 22,000.

Military Training Grant

Military Training Grant (Continued from page 1) "Our end result is not to show that any group is racist," Landis said.

"This is of trivial value—we know that," he said.

"It is of great value to know how a teacher relates. We can then train ourselves to change our interaction."
Letters to the Editor

Attested Campus Rape Poses Questions for Univ. Security

I am a part-time employee at the Library of the Annenberg School of Communication. A few days ago I found a peculiar book in the Archives which happened to me to be of a rather interesting character. It seemed to be a sort of dictionary of questions as far as campus security is concerned. I found it while browsing through some of the Daily Pennsylvanian, the university newspaper.

It was a small book, perhaps 6 inches by 9 inches, and it was bound in green cloth. The cover was slightly worn, but the pages were clean and crisp. The title of the book was "The Armageddon of Annenberg." The author was a former editor of the Daily Pennsylvanian, a man named Mark Brodky.

I was curious about what inside this book might reveal, so I opened it up and began to read. The first page drew me in immediately. It was a short essay on campus rape, and it posed a number of provocative questions for the university.

"How can the university address the issue of rape on campus? What steps can be taken to prevent and respond to cases of rape? How can the university ensure that survivors of rape are treated with respect and dignity?"

As I flipped through the pages, I was struck by the depth of analysis and the breadth of topics covered. The author seemed to be addressing every conceivable aspect of campus security, from the physical security of the campus to the psychological well-being of the students.

I was particularly interested in the section on rape. It provided a comprehensive overview of the issue, including statistics on the prevalence of rape on college campuses, the reasons why so many cases go unreported, and the challenges faced by survivors of rape. The author also offered a number of recommendations for improving campus security, such as increasing the number of security personnel, improving the training and support provided to survivors, and implementing more effective response protocols.

I found the essay to be both thought-provoking and informative. It made me realize how much more we need to do to address the problem of rape on college campuses. I highly recommend this book to anyone interested in campus security or social justice.

Sincerely,

Nicholas B. Smith

College of Arts and Sciences

The Armageddon of Annenberg

By Steven Winn

Pauline Kael's observation that one can't test a film in the institutions of a society that created it has particular relevance to the program at Washington's Kennedy Center. It is a case in point when it comes to the Armageddon of Annenberg, a new opera being produced this fall by the Philadelphia Orchestra. I wonder about all the more. Things aren't equal when you're a consumer, and in the same way you can't compare consumers' attitudes in Boston, New York, and Philadelphia. The Kennedy Center, an institution of the arts created in the same way as the Armageddon of Annenberg, is a major cultural center in the nation's capital and it is a bit of a problem for me to take the Armageddon of Annenberg as a "cultural institution" in the way that the Kennedy Center is for the arts and entertainment community.

Advertising

The issue of funding for the new opera seems to be a critical one for the Kennedy Center. The Daily Pennsylvanian recently ran an article on this topic. The Kennedy Center has always been known for its generous support of local arts and education programs. However, in recent years, this support has declined. The center is facing a funding crisis, and it appears that the Armageddon of Annenberg will be its primary source of revenue. The opera is expected to draw a large crowd, and it is hoped that this will help offset the center's budget shortfall.

I am concerned about the implications of this situation. The Kennedy Center is a vital institution for the arts in this region, and I worry about what will happen to it if it cannot find the financial support it needs to continue its important work. I believe that the center should receive more funding from the local government in order to ensure its continued success.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Murphy, Editor

How to Buy a Car

I am writing to share some tips on how to buy a car. First, do your research. Read reviews of different models and compare prices. Check out the options available on each car and make sure you get what you need. Do not be afraid to negotiate the price. Car dealerships are often willing to reduce the price if they know you are shopping around. Also, consider the cost of maintenance and fuel efficiency. A car that is more expensive upfront may save you money in the long run. Finally, make sure you test drive the car before committing. If you are not satisfied, do not buy it.

Sincerely,

Barbara Bajnes

Part-time Employee

The following is a statement of the Teamsters Local Union No. 35 Teamsters Contract Legal

Dispute Exists

The following is a statement of the Teamsters Local Union No. 35 Teamsters Contract Legal

Dispute Exists

The policy formulated by the national executive board of the Teamsters Union on November 3 of this year stated that the Defense Service would alter the terms and conditions of such labor contracts which, in the view of the Teamsters Union, would not be in the interests of its members or the public interest. The policy is being enforced by the Company to the extent that it provides for the Teamsters Union to enter into contracts covering farm workers.

A group known as the Farm Union of the United States and the United Farm Workers have reached an agreement with the Company on a new contract which provides for a substantial increase in wages for farm workers. The contract is expected to become effective on January 1, 1974. The Company has agreed to the contract and has signed it. The contract is a clear violation of the Teamsters Union's rights and it has led to a number of strikes and lockouts in recent years.

I am a member of the Teamsters Union and I support the policy of the national executive board of the Teamsters Union on November 3 of this year. I believe that the Company should honor the contract agreement and not enter into contracts that violate the rights of Teamsters Union members. I urge the Company to rescind the contract agreement and negotiate a new contract that is fair to all parties involved.

Sincerely,

Howard P. Newman

President

Teamsters Local Union No. 35

The Armageddon of Annenberg

By Steve Brody

Pauline Kael has summed up the belief that meeting a campaign pledge from the Democratic party is the only way to win a political race. "It is for that reason that there is a tendency for political candidates to promise too much," Kael wrote in her review of the film "The Armageddon of Annenberg." The film, directed by Martin Scorsese, tells the story of a political candidate named Robert Horrible who is running for mayor of New York City. "The Armageddon of Annenberg" was a satirical look at the political process and the candidates who run for office. It was released in 1973 and has become a classic of the genre.

In the film, Horrible is running against a candidate named Mr. Rizzo, who is a corrupt political boss. Horrible promises to clean up the city if he wins the election, but his campaign is marred by corruption and fraud. The film ends with Horrible winning the election, but it is clear that the city is worse off than ever.

Kael's review of "The Armageddon of Annenberg" was one of the most memorable and influential essays of her career. It remains a timeless commentary on the political process and the candidates who run for office.

Sincerely,

David L. Feinberg

Editor

The Armageddon of Annenberg

By Marilyn Murphy

The Kennedy Center is a major cultural institution in the nation's capital. Its mission is to promote the performing arts and to be a center for excellence in the performing arts. The center is home to the Kennedy Center Opera House, the Kennedy Center Hall, and the Kennedy Center Pavilion. The center also hosts a variety of events, including concerts, plays, and ballets.

The Kennedy Center is facing a funding crisis, and it is hoping to raise funds through the Armageddon of Annenberg. The opera is expected to draw a large crowd, and it is hoped that this will help offset the center's budget shortfall.

I am concerned about the implications of this situation. The Kennedy Center is a vital institution for the arts in this region, and I worry about what will happen to it if it cannot find the financial support it needs to continue its important work. I believe that the center should receive more funding from the local government in order to ensure its continued success.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Murphy, Editor

The Armageddon of Annenberg

By Marilyn Murphy

The Kennedy Center is a major cultural institution in the nation's capital. Its mission is to promote the performing arts and to be a center for excellence in the performing arts. The center is home to the Kennedy Center Opera House, the Kennedy Center Hall, and the Kennedy Center Pavilion. The center also hosts a variety of events, including concerts, plays, and ballets.

The Kennedy Center is facing a funding crisis, and it is hoping to raise funds through the Armageddon of Annenberg. The opera is expected to draw a large crowd, and it is hoped that this will help offset the center's budget shortfall.

I am concerned about the implications of this situation. The Kennedy Center is a vital institution for the arts in this region, and I worry about what will happen to it if it cannot find the financial support it needs to continue its important work. I believe that the center should receive more funding from the local government in order to ensure its continued success.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Murphy, Editor

The Armageddon of Annenberg

By Marilyn Murphy

The Kennedy Center is a major cultural institution in the nation's capital. Its mission is to promote the performing arts and to be a center for excellence in the performing arts. The center is home to the Kennedy Center Opera House, the Kennedy Center Hall, and the Kennedy Center Pavilion. The center also hosts a variety of events, including concerts, plays, and ballets.

The Kennedy Center is facing a funding crisis, and it is hoping to raise funds through the Armageddon of Annenberg. The opera is expected to draw a large crowd, and it is hoped that this will help offset the center's budget shortfall.

I am concerned about the implications of this situation. The Kennedy Center is a vital institution for the arts in this region, and I worry about what will happen to it if it cannot find the financial support it needs to continue its important work. I believe that the center should receive more funding from the local government in order to ensure its continued success.

Sincerely,

Marilyn Murphy, Editor
Novelist Sol Yurick Examines Realism And Literature in Siteler Hall Address

BY PETER POLIKER

Marxist novelist Sol Yurick challenged prevailing social and cultural attitudes in a speech in Siteler Hall Tuesday.

Declaring that "our culture began to be a crisis of reason that enabled other cultures," Yurick asserted that our society has become immersed in "a false awareness of social reality."

Yurick, whose novels include The Warrior, Farragut: The Rag and @lone Like You, is currently working on what he refers to as "the Marxist detective story."

Yurick said that after deciding that "ideal balance had very little to do with real life," he began to ask himself the question, "where is the reality?"

He has done extensive study on how literature affects our culture and how our culture in turn affects our social reality.

He told the approximately 150 members of the audience that the attitudes that are repressed in the works of such literary figures as Shakespeare, Chekhov, and the like have strongly influenced our definition of reality. He cited specific examples of what he said are undesirable attitudes toward class and women.

Yurick argued "transcendence and changing of people's consciousness is an effort to make people aware." He said he believes "that the whole community must be made to understand social realities."

Declaring that "our culture began to be a crisis of reason that enabled other cultures," Yurick asserted that our society has become immersed in "a false awareness of social reality."

Yurick claimed that the different aspects of social study, particularly economics and sociology are mans-ially "artifacts of fiction in different social forms," since they accept some aspects of reality and ignore others. "Most mainstream, establish-ment literature is a fiction," he stated. "I believe in a whole climate of belief to sustain it."

Shifting the focus of his speech to literature, Yurick said that "most of the literature is a comedy because it is what the writers have been from the beginning, and class attitudes and outlook are expressed in their work."

He referred to Frank Kafka and James Joyce as the two authors whom he considers to be the most socially relevant.

"What may have to emerge is an entire different character of social writings." Yurick said. "What we now hold sacred must be challenged."

When asked what he believed to be the underlying significance of his speech, Yurick answered, "Human beings are developed in a very narrow and distorted way. What I am looking for is a revolution."

The Vice-Provost for Undergraduate Studies has announced new awards to be given, annually to students who make "outstanding and continuous social and educational change within or outside the University community."

The prizes, which are financed by the Institute for PAW Fund, are worth $500 each. Four awards may be made each year, preferably to a sophomore, a junior and a senior.

New Undergrad Awards

By PETER OLIVER

The Vice Provost for Undergraduate Studies has announced new awards to be given, annually, to students who make "outstanding and continuous social and educational change within or outside the University community."

The prizes, which are financed by the Institute for PAW Fund, are worth $500 each. Four awards may be made each year, preferably to a sophomore, a junior and a senior.

Any member of the University community may nominate a candidate for one of the awards. To be most effective, a nomination should be accompanied by a written ap-propriation statement which should be sent to a member of the Sol Feinstein Award Committee before Feb. 23.

The faculty members of the com-mitee are Kenneth Atkins (Chair- man), Werner Gundersheimer and Nancy Leonard.

The student members are Annette Levinson and Thomas Schaffer.

Penn will be BETTER than Harvard or Yale.

Bold academic reforms and innovative programs are making this university exceptional. However, these reforms can go wasted. Why? Because along with these reforms, Penn needs a top-notch student body to make these reforms transcend the world of idle rhetoric. We can compete with the other Ivies and succeed in attracting the best and most diverse student body.

Kite and Key exists because we care. We care about Penn and the Penn of the future. Help us help Penn through these Kite and Key projects--

- High School Recruiting
- Admissions Office Work
- Intro to Penn

KITE AND KEY SOCIETY
MEETING FOR NEW MEMBERS
TONIGHT AT 7:30
Advice to Student Consumers

Tenants' Security Deposit Rights

Landlords may tie demand two months security deposits. When a tenant leaves or the property
is sold or leased to a new owner
or house, the landlord will probably be able to advance a first month's rent, a last month's rent, and a security deposit. Under the new act this is quite legal. However, during the second and subsequent years of the lease or during any renewal of the tenant's original one-year contract, the landlord may not exceed
one month's rent.

Before the new act the landlord
could not invest the tenant's deposit in keeping all interest to himself. Now
the local entrepreneur is required to put all security deposits in at least
an escrow account or through a secured account. An escrow account means the money is deposited "subject to a condition." The condition being the money is retained in full should the tenant lose his lease or the landlord is to receive interest on his deposit.

The act provides that all deposits
must be handled either as esrrow
money in an escrow account of an institution
regulated by the Federal Center,
the Federal Home Loan Bank
Board, the Comptroller of the Currency, or the Penna. Department of Banking. The landlord is required to put the name and address of the institution in which deposits are held, and the amount of such deposits.

Concerning the interest on the money, the landlord is entitled to keep 1% per cent for administrative ex-spenses. He must pay the remaining amount to the tenant annually on the anniversary date of the conmencement of the lease. Obviously,
most landlords will receive interest
less than 1% on their deposits.

If the landlord's perspective to earn a bond in lieu of security,
its interest might be the same as the landlord's interest in the landlord himself, or the landlord's interest might be the landlord's interest in the property.

City Aid

Officials indicated there was no
prospect of a face-to-face signing agreement. Washington through OCEBRAVON diplomat, who took other tobacco
interests in the United States.

City Aid

 Officials indicated there was no
prospect of a face-to-face signing
agreement. Washington through OCEBRAVON diplomat, who took other tobacco
interests in the United States.

Washington through OCEBRAVON diplomat, who took other tobacco interests in the United States.

Tenants' Security Deposit Rights

Landlords may tie demand two months security deposits. When
a tenant leaves or the property
is sold or leased to a new owner
or house, the landlord will probably
be able to advance a first month's rent, a last month's rent, and a security deposit. Under the new act
this is quite legal. However, during the second and subsequent years of
the lease or during any renewal of
the tenant's original one-year
contract, the landlord may not exceed
one month's rent.

Before the new act the landlord
could not invest the tenant's deposit in keeping all interest to himself. Now
the local entrepreneur is required to
put all security deposits in at least
an escrow account or through a secured
account. An escrow account means the money is deposited "subject to a condition." The condition being the money is retained in full should the
tenant lose his lease or the
landlord is to receive interest on his deposit.

The act provides that all deposits
must be handled either as esrrow
money in an escrow account of an institution
regulated by the Federal Center,
the Federal Home Loan Bank
Board, the Comptroller of the Currency, or the Penna. Department of Banking. The landlord is required to put the name and address of the institution in which deposits are held, and the amount of such deposits.

Concerning the interest on the money, the landlord is entitled to keep
1% per cent for administrative ex-
spenses. He must pay the remaining
amount to the tenant annually on the anniversary date of the conmencement of the lease. Obviously,
most landlords will receive interest
less than 1% on their deposits.

If the landlord's perspective to
earn a bond in lieu of security,
its interest might be the same as
the landlord's interest in the
landlord himself, or the landlord's
interest might be the landlord's
interest in the property.
American Mischief, by Alan Lelchuk

...returns to our primal roots, by Civilization, whether lie can resolve can escape the trap of Western reading. Lelchuk attempts to answer l.elchuk's controversial novel, correct course of action in bringing Other, tells us that mankind stands discovered a solution by which the reality "

ment. I.ennu starts off in what dean of CardOZO College, is I-enny's futuristic Alibic Hoffman Kovell, the black slave, who gets most of her life revolves around his six...
Groverman Grooves with Grapplers

By ED WHIST

As a rule, college wrestlers especially the good ones are supposed to be comparatively unapproachable.

Before deciding on the truth of the above proposition, however, take a look at Penn's Dave Groverman first, who will see action today in the Quakers wrestling at the Ivy League champion Penn Quakers (6-3, 1-3 Ivy) will take on Brown (2-9, 0-5 Ivy) at 2 P.M. at the Palestra.

Groverman amassed a 9-0 record this campaign, his last loss came against Adams of Penn Charter (now at Villanova) at the Class of '23 Rink.

That his final match was controversial, however, take a look at Groverman's experience. At the University of Pittsburgh, Groverman started practice this week, already displaying agility, quick movements, and a third, embroidered by distaff enthusiasm for the game. Groverman is a role model for the university of ability at the sport, according to Swain.

There was one notable missing link in Groverman's game, however, his prospects, he states "If I wrestle with John Fritz of Penn State," As for two weeks at Pittsburgh, Groverman did not lose in dual meets, although the number three spot, number two for most of the season, Groverman finally beat Adams of Penn Charter (now at Villanova) at the Palestra.

As for his prospects, if Groverman can keep his form, he has a bright future ahead of him. "I know that it's a third, embroidered by distaff enthusiasm for the sport, according to Swain. "It's a third, embroidered by distaff enthusiasm for the sport."

The frosh received a big lift from "Bugs" on Feet who will see action today as the favorite. "Bugs" is a well-balanced wrestler with a good command of the sport. He really wants to get back in the ring and is now prepared for the tough finale it will face. Groverman praised coach Ray Carazo. "He really wants to get back in the ring and is now prepared for the tough finale it will face.

"I know that it's a very tough match, but he will be ready for it," Groverman said after the practice.

Davino, who added the fourth Penn point in the second period and the assist that Bill Hay made the game's hero with his 4-2, 2-1 effort, said that Groverman is a valuable player, senior halfback Tony Davis of Villanova, who is the epitome of "Bugs" on Feet.

"I'm looking past Princeton," Groverman said. "Right now we're working on uniting our team, and that's what we need to do the job this week."

"We have to be ready," Groverman said after the practice. "We have to be ready for the job this week."

"I'm looking past Princeton," Groverman said. "Right now we're working on uniting our team, and that's what we need to do the job this week."