Room Draws Leaves 150 Without Housing

By LEYNE

Although space was not an immediate problem to the residence hall, there are several possibilities to the problem of student housing for the future. These problems are not a complete solution, but they are a few examples to be used as guides toward a solution.

These possibilities for student housing are not yet realized but they may be brought into existence in the near future. The problem of student housing is a complex one and the solution is not easy. However, it is important to continue working toward a solution and to keep the possibilities in mind.

The possibilities for student housing include the creation of a new residence hall, the expansion of existing residence halls, and the use of alternative housing arrangements such as off-campus housing.

The new residence hall would provide additional space for students, allowing them to live in comfort and convenience. The expansion of existing residence halls would also help to alleviate the problem of student housing.

Alternative housing arrangements, such as off-campus housing, could be used to provide additional options for students. These arrangements could include apartments, roommate arrangements, and other housing options.

The possibilities for student housing are not yet a reality, but they are important to consider as solutions to the problem. The University must continue to work toward a solution and to keep the possibilities in mind.

The Student Council will be working to find a solution to the problem of student housing. They will be looking into the possibilities for new residence halls, expansion of existing halls, and alternative housing arrangements.

The University has already made some progress in finding solutions to the problem of student housing. They have created a new housing policy that will guide the University in its future housing decisions.

This policy includes provisions for new residence halls, expansion of existing halls, and alternative housing arrangements. It also includes provisions for the University to work with other institutions to provide additional housing options for students.

The University has also created a committee to study the problem of student housing. The committee will be working to find a solution to the problem and to make recommendations to the University.

Winthrop Sargeant’s Divas: A Study of the Golden Age of Opera

BY ANDREW ROSEN

Distributed by Routledge and Kegan Paul, 1000 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10018. $16.50.

Winthrop Sargeant’s Divas: A study of the golden age of opera. Sargeant’s latest book is in the body of the book itself. From her first opera, Madama Butterfly, to her last, Beginnings, Sargeant has tried to capture the essence of the diva. Time and again, she has come up with the same conclusion. One might say that the diva is a woman of great art, great stage presence, and great voice. The diva is a woman who can make the audience feel the very essence of the music. The diva is a woman who can make the audience feel the very essence of the music. The diva is a woman who can make the audience feel the very essence of the music.

Sargeant has chosen to study the careers of great opera singers, each of whom is in every sense of the world, a diva. Sargeant captures vividly the personality, the stage and off-stage lives of these singers. Each of these lives is unique, yet each has a common denominator. Sargeant’s biographies of these singers are not simply a series of biographies, but rather a series of portraits. Each portrait is a study of the diva, and each is a study of the woman behind the diva. Japanese and Israeli dependents, including 19 children, was to be completed by Friday, the day the intelligence sources said the Communists would attempt their attack on Phnom Penh too discom-forting.

Diplomatic sources said the evacuation was prompted not only by the security problems but also because of shortages of fuel, power blackouts and a shrinking water supply.

Last Oct. 1, the American Embassy in Phnom Penh quietly evacuated all dependents, except for the wives of American diplomats and their children. The embassy adopted a "single men only" policy for new person-nel. WASHINGTON--The House Wednesday, April 11, 1973, voted to override President Nixon’s veto of an important trade bill after receiving a majority of the Senate’s support for the measure.

The vote was the second in a week, with 202 Democrats opposed. Voting to uphold the veto were 211 GOP members and 8 Democrats.

“We have an opportunity to work together, we can hold the line against wasteful, inflationary expenditures,” said Representative John M. McKown, D-Texas. “This is responsive government at no a second impressive victory in a week.

“This bill is supported by the American people in all areas, in all economic prosperities, in all social and racial groups,” Representative John H. Chafee, R-R.I., said. “Its benefits are immediate, and it is costless. We are voting now to maintain the American way of life against pressures that could bring it to an end.”

President Nixon had said his veto of the bill was intended to “checkmate” a proposal to relax the 1950’s type ban on trade with the Soviet Union. The bill would allow trade with non-Soviet Russia.

Representative Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., said the Senate had voted to repudiate the veto “with a 92-7 margin.”

Jews for Jesus? Yes. Quite a number of Jewish students are turning on to Christ nowadays. Not seven out of eight as we show here, tongue in cheek, but it is a significant trend all over the nation.

Why? We don't have any simple answers. All we know is that a lot of people's lives are being changed.

How? Some say that the deep emptiness they used to feel is gone. Others tell how anxiety and loneliness have been replaced by love and a new sense of belonging. All of them are convinced of one thing. They have discovered a deep personal experience.

Is it really that simple? That depends on you. Take, for instance, the seven students in the above picture. Each of them simply prayed and told God they didn't understand all this, but they believed Christ could change their lives.

It worked! Something happened. For the first time, they experienced a closeness to God. Only one thing happened they didn't expect. The feeling didn't go away. It stayed, and grew stronger each day.

Can this experience happen to you? Maybe. If you recognize a need in your life and really want Jesus to meet it — he will. Christ said that he came to give you a more abundant life.

If you want that to happen just ask him right now. But don't play with Him. If you ask really mean it. That's the only way Christ can make it happen to you. If you do, we can promise you one thing. It will probably be the greatest experience of your life.

Then just give us a call right here in Philadelphia at Fl 2-2022. Just tell us you did, and it worked. You won't have to explain. We'll understand.
Advice to Student Consumers

PCB Charges Realtor With Illegal Practices

In response to several complaints against Weisenthal Realty Co., PCB feels it is in the public interest to:

The majority of the complaints lie with Weisenthal Realty's dubious security deposit practices. According to the Landlord Tenant Act (P.L. 69) of 1971, a security deposit cannot exceed the first months rent, nor can the landlord hold that deposit for the payment of damages to the tenant, nor can the landlord make a deduction of damages in excess of the security deposit. Many times in this security deposit can be disguised as a part of the security deposit. This disguise, however, does not necessarily justify a tenant breaking his lease agreement. Please contact PCB if you have any questions.

PCB had also heard several complaints involving Weisenthal Realty's practices concerning the refund policy of security deposits. These complaints seem to reflect a uniform policy of making unreasonable and excessive deductions. While it is possible to ascertain the credibility of these complaints, a fairly uniform policy of high deductions is believable.

PCB feels for those reasons that students should avoid Weisenthal Realty and rent from a more reputable landlord. A comprehensive list of recommended landlords is available at the PCB office, third floor Houston Hall.

The Pennsylvania Consumer Board exists to solve problems with landlords and to inform the consumer of the rights through adequate literature. Questions or problems can be submitted by calling the Consumer Hot Line: 215-898-6000.

A list of courses has been organized to acquaint students with available offerings in Afro-American Studies. The feasibility of the majority of undergraduate major programs will enable most students to elect courses from this list. Included with the comprehensive course guide is a sample policy of making unreasonable and excessive deductions. While it is possible to ascertain the credibility of these complaints, a fairly uniform policy of high deductions is believable.

Lewis Serves Double Duty As Trackman and Hoopster

By DANNY SHERR

"Larry, I'm not surprised," Jim Tappen said in surprise. "You want to do an activity on Larry Lewis?"

Everyone knows who Larry Lewis is. He is one of the top basketball players in the nation. Larry is scheduled to play at Penn this year, but at the time of this conversation, he was busy practicing for his January 31 junior varsity game at Cagefield Gymnasium. Larry is a senior at Lower Merion High School, where he has been the starting point guard for the past three years. He has also run a 46.9 in the quarter mile.

Larry's track season as a freshman couldn't have been any better. He won 11 meet and placed 20.8 head hundred in the Big Five Championships last year, and he placed 3.8 in the 400-meter run. This year, Larry's main goal is to break his own records in the 200- and 400-meter runs. He has been working out since the end of the season and is in good shape for the upcoming season.

Larry's performance in basketball has been outstanding. He was tabbed All-Ivy first team and second team All-American, and helped lead the Quakers in scoring. At the end of last year he had been tabbed AU-Ivy and second team All-American, and helped lead the Quakers in scoring.

Second Team, Second Season, Second Chance

Some athletes sport a single tournament; others possess a hundred. Some athletes win only the major events; others win only the minor ones. Some athletes feel that they have been more than Closure.

But with any coach, and he will tell you that luck and hard work have more often produced a double championship than in a single one. The double championship is a more difficult and rewarding goal. Larry Lewis is a double championship winner, and he has the opportunity to make it happen.
