Troops Guard Quiet Easter In Jerusalem
By United Press International
JERUSALEM—Thousands of pilgrims and police, protected by armed Israeli soldiers, guarded Christendom's most joyous day with a solemnity and reverence that centered in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, long the scene of Holy Week ceremonies.

The day dawned bright and clear, and the thousands of Eastern Orthodox and Roman Catholic pilgrims who have been streaming into the city for Holy Week gathered early at the entrances to the sacred site. They pitched their tents, set up their stalls and began a round of pilgrimages and prayer.

The procession, which started at 6 a.m., was led by Bishop George A. K. Thomas of the Greek Orthodox Church, who was accompanied by a group of monks and clergy.

After the procession, the pilgrims were divided into groups and led to the various sites of interest. The most popular sites were the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Church of St. Peter in Gallicantu and the Church of the Holy Spirit.

The day ended with a mass at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, attended by thousands of pilgrims from around the world.

In Jerusalem, a pontifical mass was celebrated by Pope Paul VI in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, during the procession in keeping with tradition.

The procession was followed by a solemn and emotional ceremony, attended by the kites of the Holy Sepulchre, and an apparently bitter survival of a lifetime's belief in the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

As the High Mass was finishing, it was learned, police and military officials flanked Msgr. Daniel J. Wolf, who said he was in charge of the building construction.

Education and Protest: I

For the past week or two students have been conducting a protest against the car parking regulations. Their purpose is to send a message to the university administration that the current regulations are unfair and must be changed.

The protest is focused on the University Housing Office, which manages the parking policies for students living in dormitories. The protesters argue that the regulations are too restrictive, especially for students who rely on cars for transportation.

Wharton Student Protests Campus Parking Regulations

For the past month I have lived on campus, and have become very familiar with the parking regulations. These regulations are arbitrary and unfair, and they need to be changed.

Senior Gift

Since there is a waiting list for space in the adjacent University city, my college roommate and I have been spending a lot of time driving around to find a place to live that is close to campus. I must say that the experience has been quite frustrating.

We have found that the available apartments are very expensive, and they are located in the wrong areas. As a result, we have been forced to look for a roommate who is willing to pay the rent.

Campus Security: Some Conclusions

By Marshall Berger

While the problem of crime in the University area may never be solved, there are certain steps that the University can take to reduce the problem. These steps include:

1. Increasing campus police presence
2. Strengthening the enforcement of existing regulations
3. Providing better lighting in high-risk areas
4. Increasing the availability of emergency call boxes

To Precede All PUC Movies

BY MIKE LEIBOWITZ

In three movies to follow, you'll find little extra for your money, starting this spring.

Penn Union Council sponsored movies, three of which were pre-screening Witchfinder General, are on the docket. And it's not just that the three screeners are in a row, but the fact that they're back-to-back is enough to make a movie lover jump for joy. And it's not just that the three screeners are in a row, but the fact that they're back-to-back is enough to make a movie lover jump for joy.

Strip integrated computer programs with careful analysis of past years as part of research projects to make films. Working with an RCA computer, the project was designed to define the characters and in "tell the computer what the patterns look like in the data." The output of the project appeared in the following seven years, and they made a black and white film directly from these scores.

Strip explained that the film in "like Christmas" that had a "happy ending." The computer program taken over two minutes to run, he explained, and cost about $50 to run.

New routes for the campus bus system have been established in response to complaints from the University's students. The new routes aim to improve the service and reduce the wait times for students. The routes are designed to connect the main campus with the student housing areas, making it easier for students to commute to their classes and events.

The committee only meets about once or twice a year, but special task groups are formed to deal with specific problems. "We are an action-oriented group," Taubin explained.

LSAT REVIEW CLASSES
The LAW BOARD REVIEW CENTER, offering professional preparation for the LSAT features:
1. A faculty of practicing attorneys
2. Extensive materials designed to duplicate LSAT questions.
3. A thorough analysis of the nature, structure and scoring of the LSAT.
4. Methods for quickly and accurately analyzing and answering the types of problems that appear on every LSAT.

Our follow-up inquiries show that our average student increases his LSAT score by over 70 points, with some achieving nearly a 200 point increase.

NEW YORK—Once upon a time, the New York City Marathon was an American League was considered as powerful as the major ones. However, the event, which was organized by the Amateur Athletic Union, was the first time that it was held as a national event.

Call all hands—Cassius Marcellus Clay wrote a note to the Editor of the New York Sun on the significance of the event. Clay noted that the marathon was a symbol of the spirit of Americanism and noted that it was a symbol of the spirit of Americanism.
