Year for Action
Students to Get Added Credits

By CHERY BUNN

Students participating in the University Year for Action program this year will receive more credits than last year and will attend a weekly "problem solving" forum.

Andy Hyde, coordinator for the program since July, said course credit for fieldwork increased this year from three credits to four. The forum, she said, was added as a "supportive service" for the students.

The year-old program, funded jointly by the University and the Federal government, offers students from all other programs an action year.

Participants spend the year working 40 hours a week in a community project. It includes two academic courses each semester. They also are paid.

The program is open to Urban Studies students only, but Dr. Seymour Mandelbaum, faculty sponsor at the University, said the community experience will be available in other fields of study.

The program credit upgrade increased because it was felt students should receive more credit for the hard work required by the program. Faculty member1 Franklin Finkenmayer said the forum will help students with the problems they encounter in their work. If the students' time is spent solving problems at an open forum, everyone will benefit. Students together, he said, can solve their problems.

Finkenmayer said the program felt inhibited and didn't help much in solving students' real-world problems.

In the past, the program was placed under the authority of Vice-President Harold stepper. This year, the coordinator will become a full member in supervising the program.

Finkenmayer said both students and the coordinator and coordinator have moved to the University.

Another change this year, Hyde said, is that most of the program's 40 hours of credited service can be spent in the community project.

She said the program 13 or 19 students started at the beginning of fall, while the 16 students in community projects which the Federal government approved. The students organize and run the projects for a year.

Local Art Work on Display in Houston Hall

The watercolor works of a native Philadelphian have been featured as the first exhibit in the newly opened gallery in the Student Union's Houston Hall.

The gallery, which opened Sep- tember 5, is currently displaying the works of Robert F. Kirkland, an art teacher at the Philadelphia School of Industrial Arts. The gallery is scheduled to close September 30.

Kirkland said he plans to have five two-month exhibits in the Student Union's Houston Hall.

The art center of the Pennsylvania College of Art and Design will show the work of Jonathan A. Kirkland, an art teacher at the Philadelphia School of Industrial Arts, which is scheduled to close September 30.

Station Manager Clarifies WXPN Problems

I would like the opportunity to reply to a recent article of the week concerning WXPN antenna woes.

Unfortunately, for all concerned, your source at our radio station did not give you an accurate picture of our problems. Although we are having a great deal of technical difficulty, we have not been broadcasting at all.

Since the conception of the project to move our transmitters to the roof of Ritter Hall, Houston, Mr. Levy has been working diligently with us. Despite Dr. Haggard’s quibbling, resolution of our antenna problems has been far from simple. Among the hurdles that we have had to cross are high winds, stormy weather, and unexpected technical difficulties.

When we have been able to test our signal, we have not been able to determine the source of the trouble.

Our problem! Although are are bringing the bids down somewhat and the vendors Involved and was able to in die spring when estimates for the time, our Inability to mi .1 great deal ol technical i f i c-

University Trustees Meeting

The University of Pennsylvania Press

Director of Public Relations Donald Sheehan, who will report on the formulation of a Wharton advisory board, explained Thursday that similar boards are being formed for other schools of the University. Noting that plans are underway for the "enlargement of the University exchange program with institutions in the British Isles and Europe.

Meyerson's report on his summer trip will touch on continuing efforts to enlarge University exchange program with institutions in the British Isles and Europe.

Meyerson said that "leading representatives of the various fields of interest at Wharton" would be asked to serve "as a bridge between the institution and the outside world."
The committee, which would include
representatives of the various fields
may also be formed.

Penn Booters Get Chance at Champs
In Possible Preview of Miami Match

BY JAY STACEY

It may not sound as if it might very well make sense to throw at the preview of the 1972 NCAA Soccer Championship. Perhaps. Despite the fact the team is the second one to qualify for the title game. Since the teammates are the same year, the focus will be on their experience together. The team has been a fixture in the tournament over the past few years. The players have been through the grind of playing against the top teams in the nation. They know what it takes to win.

The team is led by senior forward Bob Funk. Funk is the top scorer in the country this season. He has scored 13 goals and added three assists. With Funk leading the way, the team has a good chance of advancing to the championship game.

The coaching staff is also experienced. Head coach Bob Dorr has guided the team to four appearances in the tournament. He has a good understanding of the game and how to prepare the team for the big stage.

The Penn team is a well-rounded squad. They have players in all positions and are very versatile. They have a good mix of experience and younger players. The team is very likely to make a deep run in the tournament.

Overall, the Penn Booters are a strong contender for the championship. They have the experience, the talent, and the desire to win. With the right breaks, they could potentially pull off a upset and win the whole thing.
